French Rulers Debate Hitler's Peace Terms; Bulk of Fleet Reported Taken Over by Britain

Senate Curbs Sale of Arms 'Essential' to U. S. Forces

Restriction Written Into Bill to Speed Navy Shipbuilding, Sent Back to House

Climaxing a ten-hour session of bitter debate over the Administration's "aid-the-Allies" policy, the Senate last night passed legislation mildly restricting the sale of Army-Navy equipment to Great Britain.

An amendment prohibiting any further disposal of Army-Navy materiel to the Allies unless the Army chief of staff or chief of naval operations certifies it as "not essential to the defense of the United States" was written into a bill to speed up Navy shipbuilding.

As first adopted by the Senate, the proviso would have barred sales of all usable equipment, as it would have required certification that the supplies "could not be used" in defense. Later this phrase was striken out, but a requirement that Congress be immediately notified of all transfers or sales was retained.

Sent Back to House

The bill—one of the major planks of the Administration defense program—was then passed and sent back to the House for action on the amendment and other changes made by the Senate.

Senator Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, a leader of the isolationist bloc, charging the President's foreign policies were courting disaster, called upon Mr. Roosevelt to resign and turn over the reins of Government to Vice President Garner.

He and others urged an investigation of what they called Secretary of War Woodring's "dismissal." Nye said he would be "very much surprised" if it was not learned that the Kansan was forced out because he refused to give our "national defense secret No. 1," a bomb sight, to the Allies.

Calls Critics Partisan

In Hyde Park, President Roosevelt accused his critics of acting from partisan rather than patriotic motives, and Senate Majority Leader Barkley told the Senate he had been advised by Maj. Gen. H. H. Arnold, Army Air Corps chief, that "at no time or under any conditions has any consideration ever been given to revelation of any secret bomb sight."

President Roosevelt, at a press conference, answered criticism that his appointment of Col. Henry L. Stimson and Col. Frank Knox, Republicans, to the Cabinet indicated his was a "war party."

He said he had thought the matter over after going to bed the night before, and was struck, as other people would be struck, by the differences between some leaders. There are those who think in terms of partisanship, he said, and those who think in terms of patriotism. There, he added in effect, he rested his case.

Barkley declared on the Senate floor:

"I think it is rather unfortunate that here in the Senate, which is a

SENATE PASSES Navy building measure, amending it to restrict sale of Army and Navy equipment abroad after long and bitter debate over the Administration's "aid to the Allies" policy.

CONFEREES REPORT out the $1,000,000,000 emergency tax bill to help finance the defense program, first eliminating the excess profits tax and war-time levies.

SENATE IS ASKED to investigate Harry Woodring's "dismissal" as Secretary of War.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT defends Cabinet shifts, brands as crooked some criticism of his proposed Pan-American cartel, and invites other countries to join the United States in a struggle against totalitarian economics.

WALSH CONDEMNS sale of arms to Allies, says he'll resign before voting for war. Nye says the President courts disaster, suggests that he resign.

Congress To Pass Arms Tax Bill Today

Conferees Agree On Billion-Dollar Emergency Measure

The billion-dollar emergency tax bill to help pay for this year's national defense program was approved last night by Senate and House conferees in the form desired by the Administration, and will be passed by both houses today.

In an effort to clear up all "must" legislation to permit a recess tonight over next week for the Republican National Convention, the Senate remained in session until late last night.

The last-minute rush saw Senate passage of the House-approved $918,528,418 agriculture appropriation, and also a bill authorizing an increase in the Commodity Credit Corporation's capital from $900,000,000 to $1,400,000,000. The House OOO to $1,400,000,000.

The Senate recessed shortly before midnight after almost 12 hours continuous session. Nerves were on ragged edge as Senators snapped at each other throughout the evening session.

Adams, La Follette Clash

Senator Adams (Democrat), of Colorado, and Senator La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, clashed angrily when the latter objected to immediate consideration on the conference report on the $1,157,711,357 relief appropriations bill.

Majority Leader Barkley tried vainly for an armistice with a unanimous consent request that a vote be taken on the conference report not later than noon today.

Warplanes Also Escape, Capital Told

Defenders Blew Up 2 Battleships Nazis Said They Seized, U. S. Officials Hear

Surrender of the French fleet to Germany, long feared by Great Britain, has been averted, according to information reaching high officials here.

The French navy, it is reported, has been taken over virtually intact by the British fleet, under whose high command it has been operating during the war, and is beyond the jurisdiction of French government officials who might otherwise be compelled to turn it over to their Nazi conquerors, officials have been advised.

Some of the French warships have put into British ports, it is understood, and others are with the British armada at sea.

Planes Flown Away

In addition, a large number of French fighting planes was said to have been flown to England as well as to North Africa, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

Even some warcraft under construction have been towed away from France to escape seizure by the Germans, according to the information here, and the new 35,000-ton battleships, Richelieu and Clemenceau, which the Germans claimed yesterday they had taken over in their nearly complete state, actually were said to have been blown up by the French because they could not be towed away.

It was the general impression here that the French naval commanders probably had not seriously resisted efforts by the British to take them over, choosing to continue to battle with their allies rather than be forced to cooperate with their enemy in the "battle of England."

Most in Mediterranean

Location of the French craft, of course, was a secret, but it was assumed most of them were still in the Mediterranean.

It was reported, according to the Associated Press dispatch, that one battleship, believed to be the Jean Bart, which was to have been commissioned next month, was towed to an English port, where, presumably, she can be completed for service against the Germans.

Tankers for Britain

London, June 22 (AP).—A Reuters (British news agency) dispatch from Istanbul today reported that six French tankers anchored there had been transferred to British ownership and had hoisted the British flag.

For Economic Defense

Join Trade War on Dictators, President Urges Americas

Copyright by New York Times

Hyde Park, N. Y., June 21.—President Roosevelt today proclaimed this Government's intention to safeguard the welfare and security of Western Hemisphere nations with its economic power as well as military might.

He invited any other countries to join the United States in its fight against totalitarian economics.

In a statement on Administration plans for an inter-American economic union shortly after his arrival from Washington on a week-end visit, Mr. Roosevelt described the far-reaching scheme to control all Western Hemisphere exports as "part of a program of economic defense designed to supplement our military defense program."

It was the President's first public utterance on the Pan American cartel scheme and the first indication that it might be extended to overseas countries in the Administration's effort to block totalitarian economic aggression. He said, "This program of cooperative economic action by the American republics and possibly other countries is being undertaken in response to new—but, we hope, temporary—developments in international relations."

The President said the proposed capitalization of a gigantic export corporation through which his plan would be carried out would be between $1,000,000,000 and $2,000,000,000. It would provide a pool into which exportable surpluses of West-

Frightened Rumania Turns Nazi-Fascist

Viewed as Desperate Move to Woo Reich, Prevent Partition

By the Associated Press

Bucharest, June 21.—King Carol cast his lot swiftly and squarely with Germany tonight.

He began formation of a new totalitarian party on the Nazi pattern and, it was reliably reported, drafted decrees to turn Rumania into a state of the Nazi-Fascist type.

Tomorrow night he will make the first political broadcast of his life to tell his people about his new "Party of the Nation."

This will supersede the present Party of National Rebirth. Its bases will be "nationalistic, Christian and racial."

The Nazi Iron Guard will play a big part in the new set-up. The strong Peasant Party, too, will be in it.

The Iron Guard organization long was banned and a vigorous attempt was made to destroy it, but recently, "penitent" members have been pardoned.

Waves of Bombers Pound East England

Naval Air Force Attacks Big Guns Of Nazis at Calais

By the Associated Press

London, June 21.—Bombers of the naval air force struck today at the positions in Calais of big German guns with a range of 30 miles or more which point at this island across 22 miles of the English Channel.

These "successful attacks," as the air ministry described them, were carried out about the same time that Royal Air Force fliers dropped more than 400 incendiary bombs on the airdrome at Rouen, France, itself a German-occupied port on the Seine estuary more than 150 miles down the Channel from Calais.

Three Waves of Bombers

It seemed probable that the British had begun an air offensive to blast out the heavy cannon which the Germans established along the Channel after the Allied retreat from Flanders and which they might be expected to use in any attempted invasion of England.

The air ministry bulletin said the fleet air arm bombers, protected by Hurricane Fighters, "swept down on the target at Calais in three waves, dive-bombing in the face of

Assault on Island Is Heaviest to Date; Many Fires Started

By the Associated Press

London (Saturday), June 21.—Wave upon wave of German bombers blasted at southern and eastern England with heavy demolition and incendiary bombs early today in the most violent attack so far of the battle of England.

Roaring across the coast for the third big attack of the week, the Nazis rent the early morning air with thunderous explosions and started numerous fires which cast a crimson glow over the countryside. The air ministry announced three civilians were killed in the raids.

[The British apparently replied in kind with a raid on Berlin, where an alarm was in effect for 36 minutes and antiaircraft guns around the capital fired at invading craft.]

The bark of antiaircraft guns, the chatter of machine-guns and the challenging whine of British fighter planes made an earsplitting overtone to the sound of the raiding planes and the intermittent thud of the exploding bombs.

The Germans bombed one northeastern locality in relays for more than two hours. In one area the bombs fell so wide of any mark that they were believed to have been jettisoned by a plane seeking to outrun the hot British pursuit.

Air raid alarms shrilled with the approach of the first attackers and the civilian population crouched in shelters while the battle raged on.

One salvo of high explosive bombs struck a lumber yard in an undisclosed eastern area, shattering windows in the immediate vicinity and shaking buildings as far as 3 miles away.

Italy Awaits Bid of France For Peace Talk

Rome Indignant That Enemy Treats Solely With Nazis

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, June 21.—The Italian government tonight was awaiting notification from France of the naming of plenipotentiaries for peace talks similar to those held in Compiegne.

Meanwhile, the whole development has been wrapped in such secrecy that no one knows whether the Italians are going to discuss terms on a separate basis or whether the whole Axis problem has been taken up at Compiegne and the Italo-French parley will be merely formal.

There was some anger here when the French originally applied solely to the Germans for an armistice, as the Italians say they are equally responsible for the French collapse. However, there is no confirmation of the report that Chancellor Hitler forced the French to apply also to the Italians for terms. In any event it is thought possible that the separate parley may be confined to a ratification of terms already reached at Compiegne.

Meanwhile, the war is almost nonexistent. Bizerte and Malta were bombed again and other raids made in Africa. In Libya, it is

Fuehrer Tells Conditions From Chair Used by Foch

Compiegne Forest Session Persists Past Midnight; 'Yes or No' Demanded

The War Today

FAR INTO THE MORNING hours, French and German delegates in the historic forest of Compiegne today are discussing Hitler's terms for an armistice.

THESE TERMS THEY GOT from Hitler himself in the same railway coach, on the same spot, that French Generalissimo Foch won German surrender 22 years ago. The conditions, not disclosed, call for a "yes" or "no" answer.

MARSHAL PETAIN'S government in Bordeaux is receiving reports of the negotiations from the French emissaries. They are studying the Hitler terms. It is expected they will answer soon, perhaps at a cabinet meeting called for today.

HIGH GOVERNMENT officials in Washington hear that the French navy, virtually intact, is in British hands. These reports say the French destroyed uncompleted ships which couldn't be towed to British ports. This was in the face of German high command's claims of capture, intact, of two nearly completed 35,000-ton French battleships at Brest.

A LIKELY PRELUDE TO, if not the main attack, on England is begun by the Germans, with wave after wave of bombers hailing destruction on the east and northeast British coast. Britain replies with an air raid on Berlin.

Surrender Debated

By Louis P. Lochner

Compiegne Forest, France, June 21.—A yes or no answer—unconditionally and now—was demanded of France tonight to the terms of a conqueror's peace dictated by Adolf Hitler.

The four emissaries who held the fate of the French in that answer remained in steady telephone communication with their government. They conferred for a second time, too, tonight with the representatives of the Fuehrer.

[Late dispatches stated that French and German delegates still were in session five hours after the beginning of the second night conference—or well past midnight, French time. The French were reported in constant communication with Bordeaux by telephone.

30-Page Message Reported

[Bordeaux reported receiving a 30-page, coded message, which included the Hitler terms. Work decoding this was begun immediately.

[The International News Service reported from Bordeaux that the French Senate had gone into session there to consider the terms. Marshal Petain, French premier, was reported in conference with his War Council, and it was said had called a full cabinet meeting for early this morning.

[There was no indication from Bordeaux concerning the nature of the terms.]

Whatever the French reply, Hitler has ordered brought to Berlin the

G. O. P. Seeks Peace Plank That Avoids 'Ostrich' Isolation

By Robert C. Albright,
Post Staff Writer

Philadelphia, June 21.—A Republican resolutions subcommittee recessed initial sessions here today without any foreign policy plank commitments but preponderantly opposed to an "ostrich" isolation stand in the present international emergency.

There were indications, meanwhile, that European developments, particularly the Franco-German peace terms, may influence the final tone of the central plank.

Should the Nazi peace terms reflect a determination to annihilate France, some committeemen believed it would insure the inclusion of an "aid to the Allies" provision.

Isolationist resentment that had surged to the front in the first hot party anger over the President's appointment of Frank Knox and Henry L. Stimson appeared to have cooled some overnight.

Other developments as party leaders sought a peace plank that still would not "bury our heads in the sand" were:

A source regarded as excellent said Col. Knox had informed several persons a few days before his appointment that the President told him he would not seek a third term under any conditions. Knox was said to have told the same persons that he did and does believe the President will not run.

Initial drafts of other important platform planks were completed, with a labor plank antagonizing neither the Congress of Industrial Organizations nor the American Federation of Labor, and a tariff plank declaring for Congressional ratification of reciprocal trade treaties.

Joseph W. "Tieless Joe" Tolbert and his nine South Carolina followers were rejected by the Republican National Committee as delegates to the Republican National Convention by a vote of 63 to 18. The action cost some delegates to Senator Taft, to whom Tolbert was pledged.

All afternoon the party's national defense and foreign affairs subcommittee threshed over conflicting views on the party's war stand.

Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, chairman of the group, at the end of the session said nothing has happened to change his own views

Junior Chamber Backs Plan For Compulsory Training

The United States Junior Chamber of Commerce, each member of which is of draft age, voted yesterday to accept compulsory military training as a "necessary element of an adequate national defense."

At least 75 per cent of the 2,000 young men attending the chamber's national convention in the Mayflower Hotel, made a show of hands in favor of the proposition, after an hour's debate in a session marked frequently by cheers and—sometimes—by boos.

At one juncture of the proceedings, opinion appeared to be about evenly divided, with the volume of cheers and the shouts of "no" almost equal. But when the final vote was taken and the measure carried, no cry of dissent was audible above the cheering.

Exuberant delegates from the Western cow country who brought their hip artillery to Washington to celebrate have discovered the Capital doesn't care for shooting at the moon in its streets, even with blank cartridges. At the request of police, 220 pistols had been checked with hotel house detectives last night by Western delegates.

The resolution embodying the compulsory military training provision was remarkable in at least one respect. It contained no preamble, and no long succession of "whereases."

It was presented by Walter Finke, Minnesota State welfare director and friend of Gov. Harold Stassen. He explained that the measure had been drafted after long considera-

Over Our Shoulder

a preview of the Sunday Post

"NAMES MAKE NEWS" is a fundamental of the newspaper craft, and there's a wealth of name-news in the Sunday Post's special articles this week.

COL. KNOX

Col. Knox is a newspaper publisher and former Republican candidate for the Vice Presidency.

Henry Stimson is a Republican "elder statesman," was Hoover's Secretary of State and Taft's Secretary of War, on great occasions contributes to The Washington Post's "letters to the editor" department.

If that just about sums up your knowledge of these two men who have just been appointed to the defense posts in the Roosevelt Cabinet, you'll take special interest in Hedley Donovan's article about Stimson and Knox.

STIMSON

Gerald Gross, who gave you that fine article about Knudsen last Sunday, continues his series on the members of the defense council with an article on Stettinius.

Edward T. Folliard contributes a group of word sketches of leading Republican candidates: Dewey, Willkie, Taft, Vandenberg. Folliard will also have his usual excellent war review.

Like Gellett Burgess and the Purple Cow, Eddie Folliard's attitude toward politicians is, "I'd rather see than be one." And Eddie has seen a lot of them.

Reporting a Reporter

Mustered out of the Navy in 1919, Folliard got a job as a reporter and has been a Washington newspaperman ever since, on The Post, for 15 of those 21 years. During that period he has had the kind of training and experience a writer of textbooks on journalism would call "ideal": Police, Obituaries (that's when you learn to get dates and initials right!), Courts, District Building, General Assignments, Congress (for seven years), the White House.

Some of his assignments included a tour of the country in 1929 to inspect airports, covering all conventions since 1928, a trip on the S.S. Arizona when Hoover inspected our Caribbean Islands, the Knickerbocker Theater disaster, the Hauptmann execution, the return of the S.S. City of Flint after its escape from the Nazis in Norway, the Edith Maxwell trial, accompanying the King and Queen on their trip through Canada and to the United States.

FOLLIARD

Eddie Folliard took a bundle of Washington Posts on the destroyer that met Lindbergh off the Virginia Capes on his return from Paris, and handed one to the flier—the first American paper he had seen since the flight.

A native Washingtonian, Folliard has witnessed every inaugural since the Taft blizzard of 1909; covered every one from Harding's on.

Three scoops Eddie is proud of: His story of the mutiny on the S.S. Algic (he got that one in Baltimore harbor, and did the Baltimore newspapermen hear from their editors about it!)—the first and exclusive interview that Andrew Mellon gave about his gift to the Nation of the $50,000,000 art collection and $10,000,000 art gallery—and the "Red Annapolis" series, about the camp at which Communist seamen were being trained near West Point.

Come to think of it, that was a double scoop, on the Red Annapolis itself, and a scoop on what we now call fifth column activities, since this was the first that came to light.

For the last ten months Eddie has been spending the last two days of each week on his Sunday Post war review, from "phony war" to blitzkrieg. On the wall over his typewriter some office wag has pasted a sign: Official War Communiques Issued Here.

Not so far wrong at that.

The circulation department says to remind you that The Sunday Post costs only a dime—8 cents to city and suburban daily Post subscribers, who need only phone NAtional 4200 to place the order.

Roosevelt Leads Nation to War, Dewey Says in Closing Speech

Prosecutor Offers 10-Point Platform For G.O.P. Adoption

By International News Service

New York, June 21.—District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, concluding his Republican Presidential campaign in a Nation-wide broadcast tonight, charged that President Roosevelt is heading the country toward war and called for his repudiation at the polls in November, should the Chief Executive seek a third term.

Dewey also laid down a ten-point platform which he urged the Republican Party to adopt as its standard for the 1940 compaign.

Dewey attacked the Nation's present state of unpreparedness and held President Roosevelt largely to blame for the condition.

He said:

"It is Franklin D. Roosevelt who today is edging the country toward participation in the European war. War would serve to cover the utter bankruptcy of his domestic policies. War would serve to hide the futility of his foreign policy.

Dewey declared that Roosevelt, in appointing Col. Frank Knox and Henry L. Stimson to his cabinet, staged a political raid on the eve of the Republican convention because he "seeks to protect himself from the political consequences of his failure to prepare the Nation's defenses."

"I am regretfully forced to the conclusion that these changes in the Cabinet were made. . . . for the purpose of creating a war Cabinet," stressed the district attorney.

Lists Basic Principles

The New York prosecutor declared the national welfare demanded reaffirmation in the Republican platform of certain basic principles. He listed these as:

1. The United States must be strong enough to control its own destiny.

2. The United States must pursue a strong and consistent foreign policy designed to protect our national interests.

3. Society has a permanent, deep-rooted obligation to its aged its blind, its sick, its unemployed.

4. As the first requisite of a strong nation, we must provide for everyone an opportunity to work.

5. Agriculture must be restored to a position of parity with the rest of the national economy.

6. Labor must be assured of its fundamental right to the protecton of constructive labor legislation.

7. We must encourage the expansion of private enterprise.

8. The seven-year trend toward national insolvency must be reversed.

9. A stable currency and a strong, independent banking system constitute the safeguards of the people's savings.

10. American agriculture, American labor, and American industry must be protected against foreign economic aggression.

and he expects no minority report.

Landon has favored "proper aid" to the Allies within Neutrality Act restrictions, declarations against war-provoking acts and a flexible policy that can be adapted to changing world conditions.

"We have completed our hearings," said Landon. "We had a free and frank discussion and exchange of views by all present. That's all I can say."

Compromise Studied

Asked if the plank might be affected by the German peace terms, Landon said that "with things happening so fast in a changing world situation, it might have some effect on what the convention will do."

"Would it influence what your subcommittee will do?" he was asked. "It might," he replied.

Every point of view is represented in the group, from those favoring a flat labelling of the Democrats as the "war party" and a flat "no war" Republican pledge to the other extreme of every possible assistance for the Allies short of actual war participation. It is likely neither extreme will prevail.

One midway stand known to command the interest of some in the committee was turned over to the group by Representative Curtis (Rpubuican), of Nebraska. Some influential members are known to favor it as a "compromise."

This plank provides:

We pledge ourselves not to betray the American citizens in their insistance to keep the United States out of war.

We favor meeting all future eventualities in the established American way. We favor refraining from all hasty and overt acts that might antagonize foreign nations. We pledge that whatever may occur in the future, we will not depart from the constitutional safeguards of representative government nor surrender individual liberty and freedom in this country.

We pledge ourselves to do everything humanly possible to keep the United States out of war.

No Promise of Aid to Allies

Significantly, this version makes no provision for aid to the Allies, neither does it rule it out. Nor does it make a flat pledge that under no condition will this Nation go to war.

Dr. Glenn Frank, chairman of the Republican program committee, as well as Landon, insisted that the Knox and Stimson appointments had not altered his views on the platform.

He said the appointments "have no more effect on this convention than if two Baptists had moved into the President's Cabinet and two Methodists had moved out."

Frank has opposed "bat-blind isolation" and favored aid to the Allies through the normal channels of trade, while condemning the President's handling of foreign affairs.

Favor Labor Act Changes

As other less vital planks started shaping up, they generally followed the basic recommendations of the Frank program committee report.

A subcommittee draft of the labor plank deglares the Republican Party has always supported labor and its rights and approves the principle of collective bargaining. It cites public criticism of the manner in which the National Labor Relations Act has been administered and recommends amendments to correct administrative complaints. It indorses restrictions on immigration for the protection of labor.

An anti-sit-down plank is understood to have been presented and dismissed on the ground that the issue is not now a live one.

First draft of the tariff plank is understood to criticize reciprocal trade action to date as not conducive to peace or the best interests of agriculture and industry.

This plank in its tentative form asks Congressional ratification of reciprocal trade treaties, charging present methods constitute executive usurpation of legislative powers.

Other planks taking form are said generally to follow the Frank report emphasis on correcting New Deal methods rather than attacking outstanding reforms.

The national committee in rejecting "Tieless Joe" Tolbert's South Carolina delegate claims approved instead a faction led by George Norwood, Greenville banker, and J. Bates Gerald, Summerton attorney. Edgar Morris, Washington businessman, is a member of the winning delegation.

Active in the fight against "Tieless Joe" and for the Norwood-Gerald faction was Edward F. Colladay, of Washington, natoinal committeeman. Colladay's son, David C. Colladay, and his law partner, Joseph C. McGarraghy, drew a brief on which the Norwood-Gerald group based its claims.

Colladay has been actively promoting a "Taft-Dewey" trade, under which representatives of these two candidates would get together, compare strength and decide thus who would take first and second positions in a combined convention effort. He indicated the move has support in the winning South Carolina delegation.

"Tieless Joe," who has been coming to Republican conventions and getting seated longer than most delegates remember, said "the fight is just starting." He was seated by the convention in 1936 after the committee had ruled him out.

Willkie Arrives Today

Wendell L. Willkie, whose rapid strides as a candidate have excited half a dozen efforts in other camps to head him off, will arrive here today and hold a press conference. Oren Root, New York lawyer and original Willkie man, opened headquarters here today.

Root denied vehemently that Willkie's chances were impaired by appointment to the Cabinet of Knox and Stimson, who hold similar foreign affairs views. He said nomination of Willkie, "a Democrat by birth but a Republican by conviction," would provide an effective answer to the President's "coalition" move.

"The President is slipping with the independent voters and appointed Knox and Stimson to recoup," said Root. "It is with independent voters that Willkie has his widest appeal."

Knox Declines to Comment

Boston, June 21 (AP).—Col. Frank Knox said tonight he had "no comment" on a Philadelphia report that President Roosevelt had assured him that he would not run for a third term when the Chief Executive first offered him the Navy Secretaryship.

Knox, Republican Vice Presidential candidate in 1936 who was nominated by the President yesterday to be Secretary of the Navy, was questioned as he stepped from a Chicago plane en route to his Manchester (N. H.) home for a few days' rest.

Hamilton Criticised

New York, June 21 (AP).—Two widely known Republicans, William Allen White, publisher of the Emporia Gazette, and William J. Donovan, Assistant Attorney General in the Hoover Cabinet, today criticized John D. M. Hamilton, chairman of the national committee, and other party leaders for virtually reading Col. Frank Knox and Henry L. Stimson out of the party.

Referring to the appointments of Col. Knox as Secretary of the Navy, and Stimson as Secretary of War, White said: "It seems to me that the President has done the patriotic thing."

If the Republican National Convention adopted a "peace at any price" plank, he said, the party would not even carry Maine and Vermont in the November election.

White, who is chairman of the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies, defined "peace at any price" as a refusal to implement the Monroe Doctrine, an opportunity which, he said, might come within six weeks if England succumbs to Nazi attack. He expressed amazement that certain "elements" of the party want to "monkey-doodle around after the Fascist vote" by a "peace at any price" maneuver.

Donovan, who was commander of the "Fighting Sixty-ninth" Regiment in the World War and Republican candidate for the New York governorship in 1932, expressed his disapproval of party reaction to the Knox and Stimson appointments, in a telegram to Hamilton. It read in part:

"We should . . . approve the designations and commend the acceptance of these two distinguished . . . men. We . . . should recognize . . . our duty to support without imputation of motive the Commander in Chief . . . who faces the duty of preparing our Nation for defense."

Americas Urged To Join Cartel Plan

ern Hemisphere countries would be deposited for orderly marketing.

Talking to reporters, Mr. Roosevelt apparently sought to anticipate arguments against the plan by branding as crooked the people who might say it was contemplated to import Argentine beef or wheat into this country in competition with the production of American farmers. The whole idea, the President explained, was to get exportable surpluses off this continent for sale abroad.

His statement on the plan he approved yesterday with instructions that authorizing legislation be worked out as soon as possible was prepared before his departure from Washington where he directed the calling of a meeting of American republics to consider the plan. Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles called the conference at Havana, Cuba.

The President's statement said:

"Our discussions have gone forward in regard to action designed to advance the economic relationships in the Western Hemisphere and to create new means and bases of economic cooperation among the American republics. In some of its essential features, this program of cooperative economic action by the American republics and possibly by other countries is being undertaken in response to new—but, we hope, temporary—developments in international relations.

"It is not intended to replace the program of reciprocal trade agreements which had been steadfastly pursued by the government of the United States. We continue to believe that the basic principles of that program offer the most effective basis for mutually beneficial economic relations among nations, and we are determined to work, as circumstances permit, for their fullest possible application.

"The program of action now being formulated involves a proposal, which is being placed before the American governments for their consideration, to create by mutual agreement an appropriate inter-American organization for dealing with certain basic problems of their trade relations, including an effective system of joint marketing of the important staple exports of the American republics.

"We intend also to proceed promptly and vigorously throughout many existing agencies to deal with various immediate difficulties now facing some American republics. Appropriate legislative proposals necessary to make possible certain of the operations in connection with the projected program will be submitted to the Congress in due course.

"These measures are a part of a program of economic defense designed to supplement our military defense program. They are intended as a further safeguard for the peace of this hemisphere and as a means of protecting our economy and the economies of the other American republics from the repercussions of the disturbed international situation."

Neither in his prepared statement nor in his informal explanation did the President mention German or Italian barter methods against which his plan is aimed.

However, Mr. Roosevelt did mention that South American meat exports had declined by nearly 50 per cent in the last six months from Argentina, Uruguay and Brazil.

Fifth Column Imperils U. S., Bernays Says

Publicist Speaks At Virginia Institute Of Public Affairs

By the Associated Press

Charlottesville, Va., June 21.—Edward L. Bernays, counsel on public relations and president of the Council on Public Opinion, said today fifth column elements in this country were numerically insignificant but were important because they tended to break up "the unity of the country that we should have now, more than ever before."

In combating the fifth column, he suggested two lines of attack in an address at the University of Virginia Institute of Public Affairs.

"The first," he said, "should build the democratic way of life as well as acceptance for it. The second should meet the fifth column situations by implementing existing organizations and methods and by adding new ones to cope with them.

News, propaganda and fifth column activities and their effect upon the public mind featured both afternoon and night discussions by authorities on the molding of public opinion.

David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America, said that despite the fact that improved communications had been "perverted for destructive purposes by makers of hate and war," it remained true "that only through communications can there be that meeting of minds which must be obtained if world opinion is to establish and maintain peace."

Dr. Horace C. Peterson, professor of history in the University of Oklahoma; Dr. S. Shepard Jones, director of the World Peace Foundation and lecturer in the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, and Dr. Max Lerner, member of the political science faculty of Williams College and former editor of The Nation, were others touching upon these subjects during the day.

sort of a loudspeaker, we should speculate about some dereliction of duty when we do not agree with the policies of the President."

Earlier, the Senate Military Affairs Committee decided to hold public hearings on the nomination of Henry L. Stimson to be Secretary of War and to call the nominee for questioning. The hearings will not begin until after the Republican convention next week. Similar action is expected to be taken today by the Senate Naval Affairs Committee on Col. Frank Knox's appointment as Secretary of the Navy.

Both Stimson and Knox have been strong supporters of the President's helping-the-Allies-short-of-war policy. Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, urged that Stimson be questioned about his views and said he had recently advocated a step which would be an "act of war"—the sending of war supplies to Great Britain under convoy by American naval vessels.

Vandenberg also asked that Woodring be called and asked about press reports quoting him as stating his dismissal was sought by a "clique of international financiers" because he opposed "stripping our defenses to aid the Allies."

In the House, Representative Carlson (Republican), of Kansas, introduced a resolution calling for a Congressional investigation of what he called Woodring's "dismissal."

Walsh Accuses "Men of Property"

Senator Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, in an impassioned speech, charged "some men of property" are attempting to force the United States into war to "save their investments abroad."

As packed, silent galleries listened intently, Walsh, chairman of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee, urged that no further guns, planes or ships be sold to the Allies. He declared that such sales "build up hatreds that will endure for years in nations with which we have no quarrel."

"I want every gun, every bullet, every bomb, every boat available for our use if we go to war," he shouted.

Warning against provoking the totalitarian powers, Walsh said he would resign from the Senate rather than vote for a war which we had brought upon ourselves. As he concluded, a dozen or more Senators walked over to shake his hand.

Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, answering him, assailed the "outworn military tradition that the only way to defend yourself is to wait until the other fellow hits you".

He declared that France waited behind a supposedly impregnable defense and yet now "lies prostrate in process of being ravaged by the dictator who is anathema in the eyes of every Christian and true democrat."

Senator Nye, in demanding that President Roosevelt resign, said it "seemed certain" that the President had made some promise of military aid to France. He said that Britain and France had planned to hold off the Nazis until the United States was ready physchologically and physically to come into the war, but that when the German blitzkreig smashed the French so soon, "Mr. Roosevelt was unable to deliver."

"Insinuation," Says Minton

Replying to Nye, Senator Minton (Democrat), of Indiana, declared his speech was "just one insinuation piled on top of another."

"I'd be ashamed to make such a charge," he said. "Of course America didn't make any such promise as the Senator says. The United States is not going into any war until it becomes America's war."

Senator Schwellenbach (Democrat), of Washington, challenged Nye's charge regarding the Army bomb sight, declaring that he "hadn't any more proof of that than he has for any other of the statements he has conjured up out of his imaginatoin."

"It is time," he added, "that people high in public life have some restraint in their utterances."

As the Senate went into a night session the debate waxed even more furious.

Senator Pepper suggested that part of the American Navy be turned over to Great Britain, to be manned by British crews. Attacking "champions of appeasement" in the Senate, he shouted:

"Hitler ought to be drawn and quartered and his blood spilled over the nations he has trampled on."

Clark Would Publish Letter

Senator Holt (Democrat), of West Virginia, replied that the danger to the United States came from "interventionists" here "who want to tear Hitler apart."

Senator Clark (Democrat), of Missouri, announced he would introduce legislation calling upon the President to make public Secretary Woodring's letter of resignation, which the White House said was "too personal" to publish and which reportedly criticizes Mr. Roosevelt sharply for sending American planes and arms to Europe.

Navy Knows No Party

Chicago, June 21 (AP).—"The Navy knows no party," Col. Frank Knox declared today in a statement on his acceptance of an appointment by President Roosevelt to be Secretary of the Navy.

Col. Knox, whose action was denounced by Republican Party leaders meeting in Philadelphia preparatory to the G. O. P. National Convention next week, asserted:

"National defense is not a partisan question. It should have the united support of the people regardless of party. Congress in the past few weeks has acted with substantial unanimity on every national defense proposal."

Col. Knox, who resigned today as one of the eight Illinois delegates-at-large to the Republican convention, said:

"The Administration of the Navy Department is in no sense political. The Navy knows no party. At a time of tremendous naval expansion it is vital that its management shall be wholly nonpolitical. The President has asked me to serve as Secretary of the Navy on that basis and on that basis I have accepted.

"We are in danger now because we are inadequately prepared. The President has said I can help him. If I can help him get us ready for any emergency I must do so. What happens to me is unimportant. If I should be cast in the discard a few months later, the only questions I must answer to myself are these: 'Did I do my duty? Did I do it well?'"

Republican headquarters here announced that Col Knox's place on the State's delegation to the national convention would be taken by Mrs. Mabel G. Reinecke, of Chicago.

Smedley Butler, Outspoken Marine Officer, Dies at 59

Had Been Critically Ill Four Weeks; Family at Bedside

By the United Press

Philadelphia, June 21.—Maj. Gen. Smedley Butler, U. S. M. C., retired, died at Naval Hospital late today. He was 58.

He had been seriously ill and was confined to the hospital for four weeks.

Dr. J. J. White, commander of the Naval Medical Corps, attended Butler. He said that the famed Marine officer died from an abdominal condition affecting the gall bladder and liver.

Members of the immediate family, including Mrs. Butler and his daughter, Mrs. John Wehle, and his two sons, Smedley Butler, jr., of Dewarth, N. J., and Thomas Richard Butler, of West Chester, Pa., were at the bedside.

Gen. Butler was born July 30, 1831, in West Chester, Pa., of Quaker stock which settled in Chester County before the Revolution.

Spectacular in later life as Philadelphia's director of public safety and as an officer of the Marine Corps, Butler tried to enlist in the Pennsylvania National Guard when he was 16, but was barred by his age.

SMEDLEY D. BUTLER

Served in Spanish War

The next year the war with Spain broke out and despite the opposition of his Congressman father, Thomas S. Butler, the youngster joined the Marines and faced the Spanish trenches at Guantanamo as a first lieutenant.

He helped quell the Philippine insurrection at the close of the war, was wounded in the leg at Tientsin during the Boxer uprising and won his first citation for "eminent and conspicuous bravery" in rescuing wounded under fire.

He built the Marine base, Camp Elliott, at Panama, then went to Nicaragua, where he established sanitary measures to stamp out yellow fever.

Congress awarded him a Medal of Honor for distinguished service at Vera Cruz in 1914 but he at first declined it, contending he had done nothing to warrent it. His second Medal of Honor was won in Haiti in November, 1917, when, with 23 Marines, he scaled a 300-foot embankment and stormed the heavily occupied Fort Reveliere. He crawled through a drain pipe with two men and captured the citadel.

Developed Camp at Brest

During the World War, Butler was assigned to development of the American debarkation camp at Brest, a job which won him a Distinguished Service Medal. President Wilson made him a brigadier general at the end of the war and assigned him to command of the Marine base at Quantico, Va.

In January, 1924, Mayor W. Freeland Kendrick, of Philadelphia, looked around for a man to take his policemen out of politics. President Coolidge gave Butler a leave of absence to take the job and Butler used his direct action tactics on the city's crooks, narcotic peddlers and bootleggers, using an absolutely free hand to crush insubordination and crookedness in the police force.

Mayor Kendrick asked him to resign after 18 months and he returned to the Marines in command of the San Diego base, where he again came into the limelight by ordering the arrest of a Marine colonel for drunkenness.

Blast At Duce Backfired

He stirred an international incident in referring to Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy as a "hit-run driver" and was ordered by Charles Francis Adams, then Secretary of the Navy, to explain his remarks. The explanation did not satisfy and he was ordered to stand court-martial while Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson sent an apology to the Italian Ambassador.

The court-martial suddenly was called off, Adams announcing that he was satisfied that Butler was not aware he was speaking for publication.

Another time Butler used the word "hell" in a radio speech and was cut off the air.

He retired from the Marine Corps on October 1, 1931, after 30 years service, and in later years spent a good part of his time making speeches against war.

Woman Hit Brown, Craven Tells Inquiry

Glasses Broken, Fellow FCC Commissioner Relates to Senators

By the Associated Press

Senator Tobey (Republican), of New Hampshire, demanded yesterday Senate rejection of the reappointment of Thad Brown as a member of the Federal Communications Commission after conflicting testimony about a woman slapping Brown in a New York City night club.

Brown repeatedly denied any recollection of the night club incident after T. A. M. Craven, another FCC commissioner, testified before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee that Brown had brought a woman to his table at the Diamond Horseshoe in New York City and Brown's glasses were broken when the woman slapped him.

"There is a man nominated for reappointment for seven years to the commission controlling radio and he has been guilty of conduct unbecoming a gentleman and telling falsehoods about that," Senator Tobey shouted.

Craven said that he, Brown and Norman Case, another FCC commissioner, went to the night club after a dinner, that sometime after he and Case were seated Brown joined them.

"He brought over a lady and was holding her by the wrist, apparently to keep her from attacking him," Craven said.

Later there was the sound of a slap, Craven continued under Tobey's questioning, and Brown's glasses were on the floor broken.

Craven said he had taken a drink but could not testify as to drinking by Brown or others.

"Had a Drink or Two"

Brown, under questioning, said he "had a drink or two" but heatedly denied he was "under the influence of liquor."

We have testimony that you took a strange woman over to introduce her, she slapped you and broke your glasses, and you have no recollection?" Tobey pressed Brown.

"I have no recollection of the incident," Brown replied slowly.

"I've heard of cases of mental aberration but this is exhibit No. 1," Tobey shouted.

Craven disputed Tobey's charges that the party was a "drunken brawl" or that the Diamond Horseshoe was a "hot spot."

"I'd be proud to take my wife, mother or sister there," the FCC member said.

Earlier, Senator Tobey charged that William S. Paley, president of the Columbia Broadcasting Co., engaged in a 1932 "stock rigging" which netted him "a cool million dollars."

In making the accusation Tobey questioned the wisdom of the FCC's licensing of C. B. S. to continue broadcasting.

Knox Transaction Discussed

"We think Columbia is doing a good job and public service," Brown replied.

Tobey also asked Brown about payment by the National Broadcasting Co. of "$625,000 to Frank Knox and the Chicago Daily News for one-half interest in" a radio station.

The New Hampshire Senator noted that the station was valued at $44,726 for "physical properties" and the amount paid was "some 1,400 per cent of this value."

This transaction, Tobey said, was typical of inflated values on "good will values" of radio station transfers approved by the FCC.

Chairman Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, broke in to ask if Knox was the recent addition "to our coalition Government."

Tobey replied in the affirmative and said there was some question as to whether "Knox had taken over the Democratic Party or the Democratic Party had taken over Knox." The Chicago publisher, a Republican, was nominated by President Roosevelt Thursday to be Secretary of the Navy.

After Brush With U-Boat, Refugee Group Pleaded Against Halting of U. S. Liner at Eire for Others

1,786, Including 700 Children, Land With Sirens Howling

By the Associated Press

New York, June 21.—Safely home after a dramatic brush with a submarine, the United States Liner Washington docked today with 1,786 passengers, most of them American citizens who fled the European war zone.

It was disclosed that a group of passengers, headed by Donald Harper, New York and Paris lawyer, petitioned Capt. Harry Manning to proceed directly to the United States after the submarine encounter instead of making a scheduled stop at Galway, Ireland, to pick up additional refugees.

Capt. Manning communicated with the State Department and the next day posted a bulletin which said that authorities considered it unwise to change the ship's course as outlined to belligerent nations and that any change might jeopardize the vessel's safety.

It was disclosed, too, that some members of the crew held a meeting at Lisbon to consider a protest against stopping at Galway.

British Children Arrive

The Cunard-White Star liner Britannic, armed and painted buff and black, also arrived from Europe today with 788 passengers, including almost 400 refugees from central Europe and more than 100 British children.

Passengers reported the ship was convoyed for two days by British destroyers after leaving Liverpool, June 11. When news of the French defeat was posted, passengers said, the ship "was like a morgue."

Among the passengers was Jan Masaryk, former Czech Minister to Great Britain and son of the founder of the Czecho-Slovakian Republic. He said he would visit his sister, Alice Masaryk, in Chicago.

The liner brought nearly 100 British seamen to man freighters purchased from American owners.

Harbor Sirens Greet Liner

Passengers on the Washington said a notice posted at the United States consulate at Bordeaux warned that "American citizens taking passage on the vessel are advised that each must, of course, assume the risk of the journey for himself and that the Government of the United States can make no guarantee as to the safety of the voyage."

Whistles and sirens of harbor craft greeted the Washington as she moved up the bay and a crowd estimated at between 1,500 and 2,000 persons, many of them waving American flags, waited on the pier.

There were 700 children on board, many of them infants who slept in baskets on the covered decks. Forty-five mothers and their babies were quartered in the "A" deck lounge and the confusion at feeding time was an experience some of the passengers said they never would forget.

Among the passengers was the United States Minister to Denmark and Mrs. Ray Atherton, who were in Copenhagen when the Germans invaded Denmark. They were overjoyed when Mrs. Atherton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Jooker, of New York, boarded the Washington at Galway.

Fireworks Row Sputters To Armistice

Silver Spring's annual fireworks over possession of the town's choice fireworks stand sputtered to an armistice last night, while the two opponents got their second wind and prepared to resume today the legal sparring which featured yesterday's clash.

Objective of both sides is to secure the location of a stand at Forest Glen road and Georgia avenue from which popcrackers and squibs will be sold during the Fourth of July holidays. Antagonists are Louis Jackson, of Bethesda, and the Service Company, First Infantry, Maryland National Guard.

Guard Was Outflanked

Last year the Jackson forces outflanked the Guard by operating a stand in rear of that maintained by the militiamen. This year, Capt. Ward Caddington, company commander, who is a member of the board of permanent registry in civil life, leased the entire grounds, he told Justice of the Peace Kelley Magee. Last night Jackson moved to the assault with a tent and a force of men.

Caddington counterattacked with a warrant charging Jackson with trespass. Jackson countered the counterattack with a like warrant for Caddington. Then Jackson's lawyers informed him that an order directing both to stay off the grounds from Magistrate Ralph Shure, of Silver Spring Police Court, was ineffective because trespass issues are for the circuit court. Jackson went on with his tent raising.

Reinforcements Arrive

Reinforcements came to Caddington's aid in the form of one of his attorneys, Donald Bowie, jr., who sat himself on the tent, still spread on the disputed ground.

Casualties included six aids of Jackson arrested on trespass warrants but released on personal bond before Jackson agreed to a truce. But, county police said, Bowie remained in sedentary possession of the tent to guard against a possible blitzkrieg in the first blush of dawn.

U. S. Offers Reward In Counterfeit War

In connection with a vigorous campaign against counterfeiting, the United States Secret Service announced yesterday that rewards would be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any persons passing counterfeit notes.

The service asks that all persons approached by spurious bill tenderers retain the note, telephone police headquarters or the Secret Service, and then through some pretext, attempt to detain the suspect until police arrive.

Should the suspect leave, the department says, write a description of their appearance and the license numbers of any automobile involved.

Japan Weighs 'Strong Hand' Against Allies

Direct Action Studied For Dutch Indies, French Indo-China

By the Associated Press

Tokyo (Saturday), June 22.—Circles close to the government indicated today Japan's policies were crystallized around a program calling for closer relations with Germany and Italy, possibly direct action in British-French possessions in the southern Orient and a negative attitude toward any American efforts toward rapprochement.

These quarters said Japan's foreign policy had shifted to this three-point program to meet the rapid turn of events in Europe.

Regarding the British and French holdings in the southern Orient, they said Japan at least would take a "stronger hand," if not direct action.

Hongkong, Indo-China Involved

Hongkong, British crown colony, and French Indo-China are the chief possessions of the Allies in the southern Orient.

Japan and the United States have been without formal trade relations since last January 26 when Washington denounced their 29-year-old commercial treaty. The action placed commercial relations between the two countries on a day-to-day basis, although customs duties remained unchanged.

[The United States repeatedly has asserted that any move to restore formal trade relations with Japan must come from Tokyo.]

Unfavorable to Stimson

Japanese reaction generally was unfavorable to the appointment of Henry L. Stimson as Secretary of War in President Roosevelt's Cabinet.

The independent newspaper Yomiuri declared that during the Japanese conquest of Manchukuo, when Stimson was Secretary of State, "his hatred of Japan was such that he fairly heaped curses on Britain for evading him when he wanted to attack Japan."

The newspaper predicted that the "so-called Stimson policy would now be shifted to restrain Japan from taking any steps regarding Indo-China and East Indies issues."

Russians Report Maneuvers

New York, June 21 (AP).—The official Moscow radio in a shortwave broadcast heard here tonight by N. B. C. reported large Japanese troop concentration on the Island of Hainan and said this indicated an impending Japanese offensive against French Indo-China. The broadcast was in English.

Gunman Jokes as Girl Runs To Call Police—He Escapes

Intruder Makes His Way Out of Cordon Of Eight Officers at 4820 W Street; Earlier He Posed as Newspaper Routeman

A young gunman yesterday joked casually with a girl who surprised him in her home while she ran to call for help, then escaped through a cordon of eight policemen thrown into the woods near the 4800 block of W street northwest by Capt. Clarence Talley.

NORMA

Miss Norma Horydczak, 16, recent graduate of Western High School, and daughter of Theodore Horydczak, commercial photographer, told police she was upstairs in her home, 4820 W street, when the doorbell rang. She did not answer and soon heard someone in the house below stairs.

Going down, she found a young man, about 21, who brandished a pistol and told her "it's no use calling the cops." She rushed back upstairs and the would-be robber disappeared.

Shortly before, the youth appeared at the home next door of Harry H. Steck, manager of the American Radiator Co., where he posed as a newspaper routeman. When the colored maid, Lucille McLilly, told him the family did not wish to subscribe to a newspaper, he left.

Senate Overrides Presidential Veto

The Senate enacted into law yesterday, over President Roosevelt's veto, legislation requiring the Government to help pay the cost of alterations it orders in bridges found to be obstructing navigation. The vote was 65 to 17. Previously owners were required to bear the entire expense.

Under the new act, the Secretary of War would determine the portion of the cost to be paid by the Government.

Marshall Field Heirs Seek Army Training

New York, June 21 (AP).—Marshall Field 3d, of Huntington, N. Y., who some years ago inherited $180,000,000 from his grandfather, the Chicago department store magnate, applied yesterday for admittance to 1940 Plattsburg Camp for a month of military training.

A short time later his son, Marshall Field 4th also applied. Neither knew of the other's action until later.

Clague Sees No Skilled Labor Dearth

U. S. Employment Service Head Plans Defense Drive Aid

Defense operations of the United States Employment Service were under study yesterday by representatives of industry, labor and education, in a conference of the Federal Advisory Council for Employment Security.

Two committees of the council were assigned to report today their recommendations for what the Employment Service might do to aid the defense, through surveys of the labor market and helping train new defense workers.

The council, in the first sessions of its two-day conference, heard Ewan Clague, director of the service, declare that there is no general national labor shortage. Shortages of skilled workers, he indicated, are to be felt in local areas, and he explained that the Employment Service is planning improved ways to clear surplus workers from one area to spots where they are needed.

Clague told the group that his organization expects to complete a national survey of available skilled labor within a few weeks. The survey, finished now for 33 States, he said, showed that out of 3,323,000 job seekers, there were 23,000 technicians, 657,000 skilled workers and 856,000 semi-skilled workers with specialized experience in industry.

Among 76 occupations useful for national defense production, he said, the list included 5,300 tool and die makers, 2,300 men with engineering and designing experience, 17,000 machinists and mechanics, 2,100 skilled shipbuilding workers, 1,500 with aircraft manufacturing experience, and 2,300 machine shop men.

Clague said that the service is setting up new methods for detecting approaching labor shortages, and he added that the next major move will be efforts to improve organization of local labor markets to make sure that the right man gets the right job.

700 Troops Sail Today for Alaska Air Base Duty

Seattle, June 21 (AP).—An Alaska defense force of 700 men, largest number in one group ever assigned by the Army to Uncle Sam's attic, arrived today and began loading supplies and equipment aboard the transport St. Mihiel. They will sail tomorrow.

On surrounding wharves were 75 and 35 millimeter guns, cases of ammunition, stacked rifles, barracks bags and other Army equipment.

Not since World War days had there been such a veil of secrecy covering embarkation of troops here. Sergeants and lieutenants patrolled the piers, constantly warning the curious to stay away.

Lieut. Col. Earl Landreth, of the Fourth Infantry, said the entire force would be stationed at Anchorage and that other troops might be assigned later to other strategic Alaska points. Anchorage will be the scene of the Army's great new air base.

London Unit Approved Here By Red Cross

$1,000,000 Is Added For British Relief; D.C. $20,000 From Goal

Creation of an American Red Cross committee in London and authorization of a $1,000,000 appropriation for further relief in England was approved yesterday by the central committee of the American Red Cross, as the District Chapter announced it was within $20,000 of its $300,000 war relief fund goal.

Dan Grant, official of the English branch of the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York, has been named chairman of the newly formed British unit, and United States Ambassador Kennedy is honorary chairman, Chairman Norman H. Davis announced.

Relief available to the British Red Cross prior to yesterday's allotment totaled $370,286 in cash contributions and purchased supplies, chiefly medical instruments, field operating theaters, drugs, and 50 ambulances. The American organization also has shipped 354,000 surgical dressings to the British Red Cross, and 73,000 garments for women and children.

D. C. Total Is $280,111.90

Chairman Davis stated that the new committee in London will act as a liaison organization with the British Red Cross and the Order of St. John.

Hope of raising the balance of the District quota today has been abandoned, local chairman Bruce Baird said, urging workers to clean up the task as early as possible next week. The District total is now $280,111.90.

Today is moving day in the auditorium of the Chapter House at 1730 E street northwest. The surgical dressings unit, which has been meeting there, will not function today while tables and other accessories for the work are moved to the old Walsh home, 2020 Massachusetts avenue northwest.

Reports From Agencies

In the Government reports yesterday the United States Public Health Service was credited with $32.25; the District Assessor's Office, $78.35; District Department of Motor Vehicles and Traffic, $68, and the District Electric Inspection Office, $25.

The Roosevelt High School turned in a gift of $514.96 for the National Children's Fund, and a total of $436.21 was collected from the booths in various banks and stores.

Other gifts reported were Woodward & Lothrop, $250 (additional gift); Lansburgh & Bro., $100 (additional); S. Kanns' Sons, $246 (additional); Hotel Association employes, $759.37; C. & P. Telephone Co. employes, $221 (additional); C. & P. Telephone Co., $1,000 (additional); American Security & Trust Co., $1,000; Security Savings & Commerce Bank, $200; American Stores, $100; Sanitary Grocery, $193.95; Federal Home Loan Bank Board, $268.54; Federal Power Commission, $400.56; Public Welfare Department, $109.

Those trench shoes that used to bite your feet—100,000 pairs of them—are being made available to aid civilian refugees of the European war through the agency of the Red Cross, U. S. Army officials announced.

Shoes 25 Cents a Pair

Offered for sale to the Red Cross at 25 cents a pair, the shoes are one item in articles which are no longer standard Army equipment and which the service is willing to sell to the Red Cross at low prices. Fifty-eight rolling kitchens are being transferred; 43 with complete equipment at $20 each; 15 lacking cooking utensils at $10 each. A fleet of 109 animal-drawn ambulances is available at $10 each.

Army officials stated that "the prices charged the Red Cross are minor fractions of the original cost to the War Department, but since the Red Cross is not a Government agency, the transfer of the items without cost is not permissible."

Balkan Position 'Precarious,' Says Yugoslav Attache

The Balkan nations are pursuing a course of "prudence and moderation," Dr. Bozidar Sarich, attache of the Yugoslav Legation, told a Washington round-table luncheon yesterday at the National Press Club.

He declared the Balkan Peninsula is in a "precarious" position, because of the "interest" of the belligerents in their raw materials.

Economic ties demand cooperation between the Balkan countries and Germany and Italy, he said, "but this cooperation must not infringe on the independence or territorial iniegrity of our countries."

Welfare Board Must Approve WPA Applicant

New Procedure For Filling District Jobs Announced

A new procedure for selecting applicants for WPA employment in the District was announced yesterday by Welfare Director Robert Bondy.

Following a meeting of welfare and WPA heads, it was agreed that future applications for WPA work would be certified through the public assistance division of the Board of Public Welfare. An item of $49,960 in the 1941 District budget estimates provides for transfer of work.

To Decide Eligibility

In the past, applicants have applied directly to the WPA, but under Congressional authorization, the Welfare Board assumes duties as official "referral" agency.

The public assistance division henceforth will decide upon eligibility of the applicants and report to the WPA. The latter group will then determine "workability" of the applicant, with power to accept or reject his services.

Final decision for accepting or rejecting referrals will rest with the assistant director of the WPA employment division.

Details to Be Worked Out

Bondy said it would be several weeks before personnel and budget details could be worked out and the transfer could become effective.

Attending yesterday's meeting, in addition to Bondy, were Paul Edwards, local WPA director; Mrs. Marie Lane, regional director of employment, WPA; Miss Elizabeth McHugh, assistant director of employment; Otto Cass, director of the welfare board's public assistance division, and Mrs. Helen Martin, also of the division.

Jimmy Lake's Club Facing ABC Inquiry

Curran Drafting 'Ironclad' Law Against Pandering

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board will investigate reports of disorderly activities at the Ninth street night club of Jimmy Lake, Chairman Thomas E. Lodge stated last night.

Lodge said he had been in telephone communication with United States Attorney Edward M. Curran following a District court case in which a club waiter was accused of soliciting patrons in behalf of a prostitute.

Draft "Ironclad" Law

At the same time, Curran said, his aim was to draft an "ironclad" law to replace the present District statute which provides no punishment for procurers who obtain customers for prostitutes and then claim part of the women's earnings.

Curran immediately ordered a draft prepared and said yesterday that he hoped to present it in a few days to Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, chairman of the District Committee, who promised prompt consideration by his committee.

Complete reports on the case from the United States Attorney, police department and Department of Justice will be submitted to Lodge today, he said.

Under ABC regulations, an act of "bad faith" committed on the licensed premises with knowledge of the licensee is sufficient grounds for the suspension or revocation of a liquor permit.

Verdict Directed

Justice James M. Proctor, directing a verdict in favor of Abraham Blum, accused of soliciting prostitution for a 17-year-old girl, freed Blum because the law does not cover single acts of prostitution, but only instances where women live in establishments for vice.

55 Bombers Take Off for Halifax

New York, June 21 (AP).—Fifty-five attack bombing planes destined for British army use took off today from Mitchel Field for Halifax, Nova Scotia, where they will be loaded for shipment.

The planes are Northrup A-17-A's, part of a group of 93 released by the War Department on June 11 for resale to France and sent winging the same day from all parts of the country for their rendezvous here.

In the meantime, France asked Germany for an armistice and arrangements were completed whereby the British took the planes. Army flyers brought them in, but they were taken out by private pilots.

New York Police Guard 2 Bridges

New York, June 21 (AP).—Two hundred patrolmen and detectives were placed on guard over the Brooklyn and Manhattan bridges over the East River tonight as a result of two anonymous telephone warnings that the structures were to be bombed.

At the same time, following the twin bombings yesterday in buildings housing the German consulate and offices of Communist units, police doubled the guards at consulates, steamship piers and foreign language newspapers.

Uruguay Outlaws Foreign Propaganda Societies in Drive Against German Agents

Nazi Diplomats Accused of Plotting Political Conquest

By the Associated Press

Montevideo, June 21.—President Baldomire tonight promulgated for Uruguay a new law banning associations devoted to foreign propaganda or illegal ends and prohibiting from press and radio any references "injurious" to countries with whom Uruguay maintains friendly relations.

A drive was on foot in the lobbies of the Uruguayan Congress to name a new committee to draft special measures suggested by a parliamentary investigation of Nazi activities in this country.

Police continued to question nine Germans who have been detained in the investigation. They said five had made statements, and that a sixth was being questioned regarding plans said to have been found in his possession for a military occupation of Uruguay.

[The United Press reported from Montevideo that German Minister Otto Langmann and the entire personnel of the German Legation here may be declared persona non grata to the Uruguayan government as result of a congressional investigation into Nazi activities in this country, according to semiofficial reports.

[An official report by the secretary of the investigating committee charged that the minister was involved in Nazi activities which, an earlier report said, aimed at armed seizure and conversion of the nation "into a country of peasants."

Protected by Immunity

["Dr. Langmann directs an unconstitutional activity under the protection of his diplomatic immunities," the latest report said.

[The report covered the athletic and economic branches of the Nazi organization in South America.

["The national Hitlerite organization existing in Uruguay concerns the national security and sovereignty since it demonstrates we are in the first phase of actual political conquest," the report said.]

Congress to Pass Big Tax Bill Today

jected with the observation that "we are going to be here all summer, all fall and probably all winter."

The tax conferees yesterday struck out two major Senate amendments: The La Follette proposal for taxes on excess profits and the Connally wartime tax plan.

However, a resolution was adopted approving the principle of excess profits taxation and specifically requesting the Treasury to draft a bill for that purpose by October 1. The conferees agreed that the forthcoming excess profits tax should be retroactive in order to cover income for the current calendar year.

Failure of the conferees to include the La Follette excess-profits amendment in the final bill resulted in the refusal of Senator La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, to join the conference committee in signing the report.

As it passed the House the tax bill would have provided $1,004,000,000 in new revenue for each of the next five years, while Senate amendments raised the total to $1,007,000,000. No exact figures were available last night for the compromise agreed on in conference, but Chairman Cooper of the House subcommittee on taxation said the total was "roughly $1,000,000,000."

The conferees agreed on knocking out all the House proposals to increase tobacco taxes, except the levy on cigarettes, which was set at $3.25 per 1,000 instead of $3.50. Present tax is $3.

Spirits Levy Rejected

The proposals for theater admission taxes were revised to apply to all tickets above 20 cents. The Senate would have imposed a 1 cent admissions tax on 10 cent tickets.

A bitterly-fought attempt to increase the tax on rectified spirits from 30 cents to 40 cents finally went down to defeat.

The conferees reached a compromise on the Senate-approved proposal of Senator Danaher (Republican), of Connecticut, to exempt from both taxation and penalties the incomes of Federally-paid State employes for the years 1936, 1937 and 1938. It was agreed that the tax must be paid, but not the penalty.

The bill would retain an exemption of 100 gallons on whisky floor stocks and also keep a floor stock tax on beer with an exemption for retailers.

As it stands, the measure would provide for increasing the national debt limit from $45,000,000,000 to $49,000,000,000 by the issuance of securities to help meet the cost of this year's national defense projects. These obligations would be paid off in five years from the proceeds of the new taxes.

Tax Base Broadened

The bill would broaden the tax base by lowering exemptions to $2,000 for married persons and $800 for single individuals, and thereby would add 3,000,000 taxpayers to the rolls. Surtaxes would be increased between $6,000 and $100,000; and corporation levies would be raised by 1 per cent. Many excises would be boosted, including those on gasoline, cigarettes and liquor. In addition, a 10 per cent "defense tax" would be superimposed on the total.

The agriculture bill passed and sent to the White House yesterday includes $212,000,000 for parity payments; $440,000,000 for soil conservation payments, and, over and above the appropriations, provision for RFC loans of $100,000,000 for the rural electrification program and $50,000,000 for farm tenants.

The measure would grant $85,000,000 for surplus commodity disposal through food stamps, export subsidies, etc. This sum will be supplemented by $150,000,000 for the same purpose from other sources.

A 5-mile hike will be taken by members of the Capital Hiking Club tomorrow afternoon from Forestville to Watkins Island, in Maryland. The organization will go by bus to Forestville, leaving at 1 p. m. from 1416 F street northwest. Fishing and swimming will be included in the outing.

rived from America, "complete with plans for mounting."]

The two French dreadnaughts, both in final stages of construction, were left unharmed by the fleeing French. Construction will be completed by the Germans.

700 Tanks Captured

Capture of 700 new French tanks was reported in the official communique, which stated:

"Troop movements for occupation of Normandy, Brittany and the region between the mouth of the Loire and the Valley of the Rhone are proceeding according to plan.

"Motorized troops advancing through Burgundy took Lyon after a battle.

"Seven hundred new tanks were captured when Nevoy, near Glen, was taken.

"In Lorraine and Alsace the mopping-up task continues. The enemy, in some parts of the Maginot Line, still offers stubborn resistance."

French Fight in Alps

By the Associated Press

At the French-Swiss frontier, June 21—the French armies of the Alps and the Juras fought today through the hours of armistice talks to hold and even drive back the Germans who have backed them into their mountain defenses.

They fought side by side with units which managed to escape from the useless, surrounded, Maginot Line.

Reports reaching this frontier said German motorized units south and east of Lyon, driving toward the Italian border, were forced to stop and wait for reinforcements. At points northwest of Grenoble, advanced Nazi columns had to back up. Their losses were described as heavy.

Italians Inactive

On the Italian side of the border there was little sign of action, although the Italians had been expected to start an offensive to squeeze the French southeastern armies as soon as the Germans got to the Rhone Valley.

The Germans have captured Lyon, on the Rhone.

Resistance Continues

Both French and German high command communiques were couched in very general terms, although both said fighting was continuing on the east, with continuing French resistance, notably in the Vosges Mountains.

In central France, the French said, the Germans pushed south to Riom, near Clermont-Ferrand.

Nazis Seize 2 Battleships

By International News Service

At the Fuehrer's Headquarters, June 21.—Capture of two nearly completed 35,000-ton French battleships—the Clemenceau and the Richelieu—in the naval shipyards at Brest was announced by the German high command today.

[Simultaneously the Rome radio, quoting DNB, official Nazi news agency, reported that the Germans captured 400 planes and 2,000 airplane motors which had just arrived from America, "complete with plans for mounting."]

French Think Navy Will Fight On

Alexandria, June 21 (AP).—French official sources expressed belief tonight that the French Mediterranean battle fleet here and the middle-east armies in Syria would continue to fight beside the British regardless of France's acceptance or rejection of German peace terms.

These sources said it was "impossible to believe" France would surrender the fleet or its Syrian armies. French officers and crews, they said, were unanimously agreed that "We cannot quit now; the fight must go on."

Hitler Dictates Peace in Foch's Seat

long-enshrined railway car where Germany signed an armistice in sorrow in 1918 and offered one in victory today.

Along with the historic car, Hitler will take away the memorial tablet that marked the spot, and the monument the French set up with the graven legend:

"Here, on Nov. 11, 1918, was frustrated the criminal arrogance of the German Imperial Reich, defeated by the free peoples which it sought to enslave."

Slabs marking where the train stood were ordered destroyed.

Hitler personally decreed that the monument to Marshal Foch should be preserved undamaged, unmoved.

Guarantees for War

Broadly, Hitler demanded an end to all resistance; that the French give him "all guarantees necessary" to continue his war against their Ally, Britain, and the acceptance of "pre-conditions" for a new European order designed above all to make "reparation of the wrong done to the German Reich by force."

This was the heart of a long preamble given to the French delegates—that and a declaration that Germany had no intention of casting "aspersions against any enemy so brave."

His specific terms—not announced in detail pending their acceptance or rejection—were left with the French in a meeting that was heavy with a sense of history, history repeating itself in reverse.

Scene Same as in 1918

For he met the French in the railway car in the Forest of Compiegne where on the morning of November 11, 1918, the Germans—the vanquished then—signed the armistice that ended the World War.

The old car was pulled from the special building in which the French had kept it proudly all these years to the precise spot where it stood on that morning of German defeat a generation ago.

Inside it today Hitler occupied the chair in which Marshal Ferdinand Foch sat then, the high commander of a French force that had won.

It was a ceremony full of a stiff punctilio, and when it was over the French plenipotentiaries walked slowly outside to a tent to telephone their government.

The negotiations dragged into this evening. After a preliminary consultation over the wire with their government, the French returned from their tent to the railway car to talk again to Hitler's agents.

Hitler met the four French delegates at 3:32 p. m. (8:32 a. m., Eastern standard time).

He jerked his arm up in the Nazi salute, and his staff answered with arms extended. Then, at his signal, Col. Gen. Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the German high command, read the preamble—a general statement of the demands of Germany and Italy.

The French sat silently to hear the news—the gravest for their country in many a generation.

All Over in Ten Minutes

It was all over in ten minutes. Gen. Keitel completed his document and Hitler walked from the car while a band trumpeted "Deutschland Uber Alles" and the Horst Wessel song.

What Hitler's general had read to the French showed how sharp had been his memories of this forest and the railway car and what had come out of it half a lifetime ago.

Here is what the preamble said:

"By the order of the Fuehrer and supreme commander in chief I have the following communication to make:

"In reliance on assurances given to the German Reich by the American President Wilson and confirmed by the Allied powers, German armed forces laid down their arms in November, 1918.

"Therewith was ended a war which the German people and its government had not wanted and in which the enemy, despite tremendous superiority, did not successfully in any way conquer the German army, navy or German air force.

"However, at the moment of the arrival of the German armistice commission, violation of the ceremoniously-given promise began. On November 11, 1918, in this car then began the time of suffering of the German people.

"What dishonor and humiliation, what human and material suffering could be caused had its outlet here. Broken promises and perjury conspired against a people which after more than four years of heroic resistance had only one weakness—belief in the promises of democratic statesmen.

"On September 3, 1939—25 years after the outbreak of the World War—England and France again declared war on Germany without any basis.

"Now the decision by arms has been reached. France has been conquered. The French government has requested the Reich's government to make known to them the German conditions for an armistice.

"In the historic Compeigne Forest designated for the reception of these conditions, this is done in order once and for all to wipe out by this act of redeeming justice, the memory which for France was no glorious page in its history, but which the German nation has always felt was the deepest humiliation of all times.

"After heroic resistance, France has been defeated and broken down in a sequence of bloody battles.

"To Prevent Resumption"

"Germany therefore does not intend to give to the armistice conditions or armistice negotiations characteristics of aspersions against an enemy so brave.

"The purpose of the German demands are:

"1. To prevent a resumption of the fight.

"2. To offer to Germany all guarantees necessary for continuance of the war against Great Britain, which Britain forces upon Germany.

"3. To create preconditions for formation of a new peace whose essential contents will be reparation of the wrong done to the German Reich by force."

In this, the second talk in a railway car in this deep forest that may change the course of the European world, the men of history sat thus, to Hitler's right:

Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering of Germany, Grand Admiral Erich Raeder of Germany, Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop of Germany, Rear Admiral Maurice Athanase Le Luc of France, Gen. Charles Huntziger of France, Leon Noel of France, Gen. Jean Marie Joseph Bergeret of France, Rudolf Hess, Hitler's chief Nazi Party deputy; Gen. Keitel.

As Hitler looked out through the windows of the angular, old-fashioned sleeping car, he could see nearby a marble bust of the man who had been host in it nearly 22 years ago—Marshal Foch.

About the city, there were reminders of a war that now is all but over as far as France is concerned. The bodies of the fallen dead had long since been removed; but the abandoned weapons that they had used stood gathering the rust of disuse.

[French advices from Bordeaux said that all fighting appeared to have slowed down today.]

But when Hitler had departed the most important area in all the world became not the sleeping car of Marshal Foch but the plain tent in which four sad Frenchmen, headed by Gen. Huntziger, sat down to consider a great decision.

In that tent, furnished with a table, a water carafe, glasses and writing materials, the most important thing of all was a telephone whose wires led to Bordeaux. This was a line set up to carry the message of the French to the conditions that Hitler had laid before them.

The French delegation had spent the night in a Paris hotel under the protection of German soldiers and were brought here to Compiegne by a German officer.

As they arrived, a German company stood silently at attention, with rifles on the ground, and as the French officers passed the Nazi standards they gave the French salute.

At the entrance to the car itself, General Huntziger hesitated a moment before he entered.

When Hitler left the car, walking slowly and carefully and followed by members of his staff, he passed mounments erected to the previous peace.

Awaits French Reply

As Hitler proceeded slowly the commander of a German honor company cried out:

"Mein Fuehrer! The great German armed force greets its commander-in-chief."

Hitler thanked him, and a band thumped out the Horst Wessel song.

Revolutionists Seize Control Of Estonia

Hammer and Sickle Flies Over Capital In Pro-Moscow Coup

By the Associated Press

Tallinn, Estonia, June 21.—A new revolutionary government was established in Estonia tonight after armed Estonian workers seized the main government buildings and hoisted the Red hammer and sickle under the protection of Russian troops.

The armed workers seized Tallinn Castle, seat of the government, at 6:30 p. m. (12:30 p. m., E. S. T.), and hoisted the Red flag over its 700-year-old tower.

There were clashes during the day, but it was understood that none was injured.

The new revolutionary government announced tonight, following Russia's demand for a sympathetic government and the right to move troops not only through Estonia but Latvia and Lithuania, is headed by Dr. Johannis Vares as premier.

[The German wireless reported that Gen. Nicolai Reek was replaced as war minister by Maj. Gen. Rotberg, his former assistant, and that Maxim Unt became minister of the interior. Foreign Minister Andreesen was said to be an Estonian labor leader.

[A new Latvian government headed by Prof. August Kirchenstems as premier and foreign minister was set up in Riga Thursday night and today thousands of workers paraded through the streets of Riga cheering Russia.]

Estonian workers aided by Russian soldiers disarmed Estonian police in the streets and then, racing through the avenues in commandeered trucks, occupied all police stations.

The seizure of the government palace followed.

Under the Estonian constitution of 1937 no political parties have been permitted. Prof. Juri Uluets, ousted today, became premier last October 12 about the time that Estonia signed a mutual assistance pact with Russia whereby the Soviets were given the right to maintain military, naval and air bases in certain parts of the nation.

Several days ago, however, Russia demanded a change in the government and far broader military rights.

Rumania Becomes Nazi-Fascist State

a guarantee of aid against German invasion, arrived at their present precarious position.]

Observers described the King's move as a desperate effort to make friends with the Reich and thus prevent possible partition of his country.

They pointed out that Hungary and Bulgaria, also moving toward good terms with Germany, have voiced claims for boundary revision.

The King's decision followed several audiences in the last 24 hours with the German minister.

Some foreign observers said one result might be the seizing of British and French oil possessions in Rumania, but the oil holdings of the United States were expected to be let alone.

Anti-Semitism, an Iron Guard tenet, is expected to receive official sanction.

"Those officials responsible for killing Iron Guardists in recent years" will be punished, an announcement said.

The Iron Guardists had been killed en masse. After Premier Armand Calinescu was assassinated last fall, a total of 320 were put to death.

Now there will be monuments for their graves; until today, even markers were forbidden.

There also will be elaborate, belated funeral services for the executed men.

Now, it is reported reliably, all industries, trades and professions will be nationalized by decree.

French Peace Bid Awaited by Italy

claimed that the "British lost 10 vehicles and about 40 armored cars." Only one bomb was dropped on the whole of Italy yesterday, and that was near Imperia, on the Gulf of Genoa.

The great struggle will "naturally center on the British Isles," as Virginio Gayda, in the Giornale d'Italia, points out today, and it is thought here that the Germans can conquer them in a short while. If so, Italy might well be able to achieve all her aims by a series of harassing and holding operations, after which the colonies should fall of themselves.

The difference between Italy's previous state of nonbelligerency and her state of war is not very great, for the simple reason that it has not been necessary for Italy to do anything else. The French situation is already liquidated, and, if the British are deprived of the aid of the French fleet and air arm, as well as the bases of Tunis, Corsica and Syria, it is thought highly probably that they will withdraw from the Mediterranean.

These hopes depend largely upon what the French do with their fleet. That is considered here to be the key problem of the parleys now under way.

The Italians absolutely deny that the British made any advances from Egypt into Libya, that any Italians were taken prisoner, any outposts captured, any tanks lost.

Gayda returns again today to his warning that the Monroe Doctrine is a two-edged weapon, which holds that not only Europe should keep out of the Americas but that America should keep out of Europe.

"Now it is obvious," he continues, "that an intervention of the United States in this war, whose origins and character are solely European, would signify the self-destruction of this fundamental principle, and would constitute a precedent which could legitimately be turned on another occasion against America."

Gayda now claims that the United States has decided not to risk intervention, although last week, he wrote of the "Anglo-Saxon war" against the European continent.

Waves of Nazi Planes Bomb East England

said that as soon as the ominous drone of the Nazi craft became audible, the noise was drowned out by British fighters darting into the skies.

The shock of explosions was felt in some parts of a widespread area even before the first shriek of the air-raid sirens.

[Censorship did not permit disclosure of the specific area raided, except that it was eastern and southern England.]

Flares were dropped at intervals for more than an hour in one southeastern section as the invading planes groped toward their targets.

Germans Spread Out

In one area in the east of England where heavy detonations were heard residents who ventured out for the chance of a glimpse of an air battle reported that fighter planes of the R. A. F. were very active.

The German planes apparently fanned out before reaching the English coast and spread over an extensive area.

Farther to the north, more waves of German craft swept across the coast and ran into a thunderous fire of machine-gun bullets and antiaircraft shells.

At one point in an eastern county the Germans dumped heavy bombs. A fire broke out and blazed for some time.

Nazi Rail Station Bombed

Berlin, June 22 (Saturday) (AP).—Three incendiary bombs were dropped on the Babelsberg railroad station in an air raid early this morning. Authorities said that damage was immaterial.

Babelsberg is a western suburb of Berlin, which earlier in the night had its first air-raid alarm since the invasion of Poland last fall.

Brief but heavy antiaircraft fire was said to have forced the raiders to turn back quickly.

Asked whether the bombers were English or French planes, the spokesman said, "Who else could it have been but the English?"

The air-raid alarms, which began at 1:40 a. m. and continued for 30 minutes, were a grim initiation for the German capital, which thus far has been spared aerial bombardment.

Last night the people had been told by press and radio of extensive British air attacks on northern and western Germany where civilians were alleged to have been killed in bombing of nonmilitary objectives.

Italian General Captured in Raid, British Report

Copyright by New York Times

London, June 21.—The war office announced today that British mechanized units, attacking vigorously whenever possible, had captured Gen. Lastrucci, chief engineer of the Italian Tenth Army of Libya, and routed a powerful concentration of Italian troops near the Egyptian frontier.

It was emphasized that the losses of German tactics in the Low Countries and France have not been wasted.

"We have seen," a spokesman said, "that this offensive spirit has now been adopted by the British in the small actions reported from Libya. Reconnoitering detachments have penetrated inside the enemy frontier and anything they have come across has been dealt with in that offensive spirit, and very successfully."

Parliament Holds Secret Session On Swedish Policy

Copyright by New York Times

Stockholm, June 21.—In its third secret session since the outbreak of the Russo-Finnish war last fall, the Swedish Parliament, assembled by telegraphic summons, considered today a communication from King Gustav which is officially stated to have concerned Sweden's foreign policy.

This session, together with the disquieting rumors about new developments regarding Russia, Germany and Finland, produced certain nervousness in Swedish circles, but the foreign office spokesman declared today that no new situation had arisen and none was anticipated for the near future.

According to the spokesman, the royal communication was occasioned by the ending of hostilities in Norway.

Dramatize Democracy, Clubs Urged

Mrs. J. L. Whitehurst Advocates Program 'To Fight Propaganda With Propaganda'

By Jessie Ash Arndt.
The Post Club Editor.

Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, first vice president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, believes the clubwomen of America should assume leadership in a program to dramatize democracy.

Discussing the war emergency on a brief visit at General Federation headquarters, from her home in Baltimore, Mrs. Whitehurst expressed her conviction that it was time to "fight propaganda with propaganda."

"I do not like that word," she said, "but there seems no other that applies so well. Hitler has dramatized national socialism so as to 'sell' it to the youth of Germany. Even in this country we sit by, and see propaganda for foreign ideologies freely circulated. It is time we 'sold' democracy to our people."

Mrs. Whitehurst expressed the belief that propaganda, setting forth the advantages of our democratic government and institutions, would be more effective issued by a group of lay organizations than by a Government agency.

"We should develop a program that will teach our youth, from the primary grades up, the principles on which our Nation was founded, the sacrifices of our forefathers, and the advantages we enjoy under our democratic form of government, in contrast to the oppression of the dictatorships. We should dramatize democracy and its benefits so they will love it and have a growing sense of responsibility for safeguarding it.

"The women's clubs are ripe for a good, strong Americanism program. We have included it always, but in recent years it has been stressed too little. It now should be vigorous and well-directed."

Mrs. Whitehurst believes that the leading women's groups of the country should confer and work out a program of action.

Bundles for Britain Grows in Size

Bundles for Britain, organized "to provide comforts and necessities for Great Britain at war," this week sent off 20 large packing boxes filled with overcoats for men and women, children's and babies' clothes, women's dresses, sweaters, shoes, blankets and comforts.

Although formed orginally for knitting, the headquarters opened three weeks ago at 1331 Connecticut avenue, began at once to receive gifts of used clothing. These are welcomed and are greatly needed as the war continues. Clothing in good condition for men, women and children of all ages is being sent to England as fast as it is assembled.

In addition, the 775 knitters in the Capital have made 70 sweaters, 20 sea boots, 20 pairs of socks, as many mittens and 30 helmets and mufflers, which were sent over in one shipment.

City Club Gives Benefit Party Today

Miss Marjorie Webster, past president of the Women's City Club, is opening the buildings and grounds of the Marjorie Webster School on Kalmia road this afternoon and evening for a benefit party, proceeds of which will go to the club fund.

From 2:30 to 5:30 there will be swimming and games, and movies of Africa and Egypt, shown by the club president, Mrs. Gladys B. Middlemiss, who took them on her world tour a year ago. Mrs. Charles McMullan will tell fortunes.

Following supper, to be served at 6 o'clock, there will be a concert by Henry Bond, pianist, from 7 to 8.

Miss Lois Garlock is chairman of the fete, assisted by Mrs. Evelyn Daly, Miss Elsa Donaldson, Mrs. Margaret Bradbury, Mrs. B. F. Borland, Mrs. Eona Gatchell, Miss Gladys Gordon, Miss Mary Gott, Miss Elva McNamara, Miss Margaret Norton, Mrs. Pauline Sabin, Miss Irene Sheehan, Mrs. Laura Waters, Mrs. Myrtle Standiford, Miss Miss Hazel Swift, Miss Jessie Lane, Mrs. A. One British plane was hit and downed in the sea while the others returned safely.

More than 80 bombs—dropped within four minutes—also were dropped among aircraft on a runway of the Schiphol Airdrome, Amsterdam.

Other airdromes were reported attacked and at Munster, Germany, many fires started near 14 big sheds.

Methodists Send Leonard To D. C. Area

Pittsburgh Prelate Named to Succeed Bishop Hughes

Bishop Adna W. Leonard, prelate of the Pittsburgh, Pa., area of the Methodist Church, yesterday was elected resident prelate of the Washington area, succeeding Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes.

His selection was made at the Northeastern Jurisdictional Methodist Conference in Atlantic City, where Bishop Hughes, now in his seventies, was retired from active service.

Bishop James H. Straughn, of Baltimore, was delegated to succeed Bishop Leonard. He was formerly president of the Methodist Protestant Church which, in April, 1938, merged with the Methodist Episcopal and Southern Methodist branches to form the new Methodist Church.

All Others Reassigned

All other bishops in the Northeastern jurisdiction, which embraces West Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, the District of Columbia, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania and the New England States, were reassigned to their present areas.

Delegates to the conference last night rejected a resolution calling for American economic aid to the Allies, 24 hours after instructing a committee to bring in a report advocating that the Nation extend France and England all aid short of war. They voted, instead, to ask President Roosevelt to "proclaim a day of prayer for the blessings of Almighty God upon our country in these critical days."

Noted for his evangelistic ministry and church administrative ability, Bishop Leonard came to his Pittsburgh (then Methodist Episcopal) post eight years ago, after bishopric service in Buffalo, New York and San Francisco.

Served in Puerto Rico

Born in Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1874, the prelate's childhood and youth were spent in that State. He received his public school education in Brooklyn, N. Y., where his father, the Rev. Dr. A. B. Leonard, was serving as corresponding secretary of the board of foreign missions.

He was graduated from Pennington Seminary, New York University and Drew Theological Seminary, Madison, N. J., the last named with a bachelor of divinity degree. Ohio Northern University conferred upon him the doctor of divinity degree, and the College of Puget Sound, Tacoma, Wash., and the University of Southern California, degrees of LL. D.

Bishop Leonard was associated with Dr. George W. Dress in establishing the Methodist Church in Puerto Rico after the Spanish-American War. Later, he was named pastor of the American Church in Rome and was president of the Boys College of the Methodist Episcopal Church in that city.

Was Dies Witness Here

Returning from a survey of the European mission field in 1903, Bishop Leonard was appointed to Grace Church, Piqua, Ohio, serving two years, then to Central Church, Springfield, Ohio, his father's former pastorate. He subsequently became pastor of the Walnut Hills Church, Cincinnati, another of his father's former pulpits, and in whose parsonage he was born. The prelate served for six years as pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Seattle, Wash.

The new bishop is remembered as having come here on December 15, 1938, to testify before the Dies Committee. He denounced agitators, whom he accused of using labor organizations and youth movements to create strife, and advocated continuance of the committee's work as a means of combating subversive activities.

Junior Chamber Backs Traning Plan

tion by the resolutions committee and officers of the chamber, and after consultation with members of Congress and other "authorities."

Adequate defense elements called for were:

"A clear definition of the necessary geographical area of defense," to include, as a minimum, "the United States and its possessions in the Western Hemisphere."

"Immediate organization of all resources, including industry and manpower."

Resources Listed

In addition to compulsory military training, the resources listed were:

1. Individual training in skills necessary for "rapid and efficient" production of defense materials.

2. Administrative coordination of all agencies involved directly or indirectly in the defense program and appointment by the President of an executive responsible for defense coordination.

3. Elimination of excessive war profits to industry, agriculture and labor.

4. "Development of our own resources with a view to national self-sufficiency through an immediate program of extensive research as to latent resources, chemical substances, mechanical devices and synthetic products."

Increased Costs Envisaged

Another "defense element" was declared to be "recognition of and willingness to bear" increased costs of defense, with young men assuming "our share of this burden."

Loyalty to country was listed next. Among steps necessary "immediately" to eliminate disloyal acts, the resolution called for "strict enforcement of the immigration laws and mandatory registration of all aliens."

As a fourth element the resolution advocated elimination of the "use of the cloak of diplomatic privilege as a device to conceal unfriendly propaganda and subversive activity."

Information Obligatory

The measure insisted "that our governmental leaders are under an obligation to keep us promptly and fully informed on defense problems and on American relationship to foreign conflicts."

As a final defense element, the resolution declared sale of war supplies to nations important to American protection "may be justified," provided "that the requirements of our own defense shall in no event be prejudiced by such sale."

The chamber also declared itself against sending an armed force outside the Western Hemisphere or beyond the "geographical area" of American defense. It cited a belief in the preservation of democracy at the outset of the resolution adding:

"We believe that the latent dynamics of a democracy, once aroused, are more powerful than the driven dynamics of dictatorships. To attain that end, we realize that the young men of America have a special responsibility. Hence we pledge our efforts to allay hysteria, and not to forget the need for the solution of important domestic problems. . .

Amendment on Agriculture

Indicative of the convention's determination to keep its war stand moderate were its rejection of an amendment by Gifford Mahie, New York City, castigating the dictators, and its rough handling of David Colosimo, Gary, Ind., who urged that the United States should go to "any limit to prevent a Hitler victory."

A successful amendment inserted a reference to agriculture. It was offered by Irving W. Myers, Des Moines, Iowa, who said "God knows there have been no profits for agriculture under the New Deal."

Harvey Buette, Kalamazoo, Mich., offered an amendment to the effect the chamber "does not want war and will not fight." He was booed.

Back Hatch Bill

Other convention resolutions urged approval of Hatch no-politics bill, the Ramspeck bill to extend the civil service, and State legislation to ban sale of "dangerous" fireworks, and condemned extension of State trade barriers.

In morning and luncheon sessions the convention was addressed by Philip D. Reed, 40-year-old chairman of the board of the General Electric Co.; James W. Young, director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce; Carl F. Zeidler, young Mayor of Milwaukee, and Charles P. McCormick, president of McCormick & Co.

At the end of a 4½-hour session, the convention voted to meet in Minneapolis next year. Today it will close with election of officers and presentation of awards.

Pan American Union presents the United States Navy Band (Lieut. Charles Benter, leader) and Federico Jimeno, Colombian barytone, Friday night in the Aztec Garden. Program of "Music of the Americas" by composers of Argentina, Brazil, Colombia, Cuba, Ecuador, Mexico, Panama, Peru, El Salvador and Venezuela.

One of the largest audiences ever assembled on the esplanade and along the pathways of the Aztec Garden turned out last evening for the first summer concert of the Pan American Union. A temperature hovering between cool and warm conduced to enjoyment of music al fresco, while Spanish shawls and fur capes were as much in evidence as organdie gowns and Palm Beach suits. Lieut. Charles Benter led the United States Navy Band in a program exemplifying the Union's international purpose and Federico Jimeno, Colombian barytone, was heard in interludes of songs.

BROWN

The concert began with the "Martita" overture by Domingo Santos, of El Salvador. Venezuela was next honored by the choice of a march, "Union Panamericans," by Pedro Gutierrez, and Cuba was represented by Ernesto Lecuona's "Malaguena" and "Andalucia," both of which have become naturalized in this country. Interesting native themes and rhythms characterized two movements from the symphonic suite, "Athualpa," by the Ecuadorian composer, Luis Sulgado.

Narciso Serradell's popular Mexican song, "La Golondrina," was presented in an instrumental version, with harp arabesques by William Cameron. From Argentina came Miguel Calvello's sturdy and tuneful "Marcha Sinfonica," which was played for the first time here. Other band selections were Alberto Galimany's caprice, bearing the name of his country, Panama; Duncker Lavalle's waltz, "Queens," from Peru, and a Brazilian suite by Alberto Nepomuceno.

Federico Jinemo was accompanied at the piano by Rosario Shelton, in three groups of songs. His barytone voice was both plangent and suave, meeting very well the test of open-air singing with its resonance and clarity. His phrasing was plastic and his readings showed a cultivated artistry.

His songs included the Argentinian "Cancion del Carretero," by Lopez Buchardo; two Inca lyrics harmonized by A. M. de Muzgo, of Peru; Mario Tavera's "Arullo," from Mexico; "La Vida es una Cancion," by Terig Tucci, of Argentina; Escobar Casas' "Olvido," from Colombia, and "Gitanerias," by Mara Grever, who is at much at home in the United States as in her native Mexico.

Decline Of A Doctrine

Winston Churchill's belated offer to merge the British and French empires in a single political union proved abortive. That was scarcely surprising. Its immediate practical effect would have been the complete ravaging of France by the triumphant German armies. And the offer must have seemed less impressive to the French since practically all the British expeditionary force had been withdrawn to England before it was made.

Nevertheless, the proposal was not without historic significance. If demonstrated that under the stress of overpowering circumstance men are prepared to abandon that rigid concept of sovereignty which has proved so great an obstruction to the improvement of orderly international relations. The British have long held tenaciously to the doctrine of clear-cut national rights. So their willingness, in the hour of need, to merge their political identity with that of another and very different country is the more striking. It seems no less so when one recalls the centuries during which the British and French regarded each other almost as hereditary enemies.

This is not the only instance in which the weakening effect of the present war on the doctrine of sovereignty has been demonstrated. Under military pressure many of the little states of Europe have concluded that it was not worth a defense foredoomed to defeat.

Albania, Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia all abandoned independence of national action without resistance. Poland, Finland, Holland, Norway and Belgium fought with varying success to maintain sovereignty, but in each case with the outcome of having to accept terms imposed upon them. Other small European nations are now preserving a precarious sovereignty only by trimming their sails to steer a very careful course.

The result of the last war was a riot of nationalism. In defiance of the economic trends which demanded integration, a high degree of political separatism was encouraged by the Treaty of Versailles. "Balkanized Europe" was the apt phrase coined by a far-sighted English writer to describe the fruits of the last peace. And, confronted by the excesses of sovereignty, the League of Nations could do little to amalgamate the pieces.

Whatever the final outcome of the present war, it is clear that the doctrine of sovereignty will be weakened and that the cry of self-determination will be far less vociferous than in 1919. There will be fewer nations and not much future for those too puny to defend themselves. Whether the trend means that the states which remain will be able to cooperate constructively with each other is not yet demonstrated. But it is a subject deserving more attention than is as yet accorded.

Far From A Coalition

The Stimson and Knox nominations to the Cabinet are being interpreted in London newspapers as "creation of a coalition government."

It is not surprising that the English should be misled into believing that the surprising action of the President spells a truce to party struggles and a united national effort to give greater support to the British cause. There is no excuse, however, for American misunderstanding of the real situation. The whole truth is that two outstanding Republicans heartily in sympathy with the Administration's foreign policy have been invited into the Cabinet as individuals. This does not commit the Republican party to any sort of cooperation and seems to be having the reverse effect.

Coalition governments are not created by surprise moves which take party leaders unawares. They have to be based upon inter-party agreements to suspend partisan hostilities in the national interest and to work together for the attainment of a specified objective or objectives. The violent criticism of the appointments coming from isolationist elements of the Democratic Party, as well as the hostile Republican reaction to the news, shows the utter baselessness of the assumption that a coalition government has been set up.

It is more than likely that the President's unexpected move will sharpen political issues during the coming campaign, particularly in the field of foreign policy. The simple fact that the Republicans are proceeding with their plans for nominating candidates on a platform that will undoubtedly sharply attack the Administration should put an end to muddled talk about a coalition.

Coordinated Defense

Some weeks ago former President Hoover discussed the essentials of an effective defense program, emphasizing the need of a "hard-headed practical business organization in which for the security of the Nation there is no politics at all."

The importance of centralizing control over industrial mobilization was also stressed by Mr. Hoover. Every government fighting in the last war, he pointed out, finally created a munitions department headed by a single man, after wasting time, money and lives in fruitless efforts to function through many-headed boards and agencies.

In a radio address delivered Thursday night Senator Taft followed Mr. Hoover's lead by urging establishment of a single-headed war resources administration armed with complete authority to make plans for increasing industrial capacity and carrying on governmental activities in the field of industrial mobilization. So far there is, as Mr. Taft asserts, "no evidence that the Administration has thought through any complete plan of defense." The President has merely demanded an extra billion or so, first for one purpose and then for another, without ever presenting Congress with any program relating these outlays to one another.

The planlessness of the defense program is further emphasized by the division of responsibility among Government agencies. Instead of a single organization to centralize executive responsibility for the production of munitions, six departments are at present concerned with industrial production, Mr. Taft notes, and only the President has power to coordinate them. While Mr. Knudsen has power to plan for industrial mobilization, his authority is correctly stated to be "based on shifting sands."

Especially perturbing is the fact that Congress has recently passed legislation adding to the existing confusion of authority. This week, says Mr. Taft, "we authorized the Secretary of War to build factories for the manufacture of any kind of war equipment. Two days later we passed a bill authorizing Jesse Jones and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to go into the business of manufacturing arms, ammunition, implements of war, and machine tools without any reference to what the Secretary of War may do."

It is self-evident that the procurement of munitions is an industrial job which should not be entrusted to a multiplicity of Government agencies whose activities are carried on more or less independently. Defense expenditures will be largely wasted unless steps are taken to coordinate these unrelated efforts under the guidance of experts who know what should be done and are given the authority to do it.

The warnings from Mr. Taft and Mr. Hoover cannot be dismissed as partisan attacks upon the Administration. Their conclusions are firmly based upon the lessons learned at great cost in the last war.

Outrage In New York

The offices of a German commercial agency, one floor below those occupied by the German Consulate General in New York, were bombed on Thursday. Less than an hour later a bomb believed to be of identical construction exploded at the entrance of the national headquarters of the Communist Party, which also houses the Communist news organ, the Daily Worker. By a lucky chance—not because the bombs were ineffective—only one person was seriously injured, although several were cut by flying glass or suffered from shock.

If the bombings were the work of a mentally disordered individual, it seems more than likely that his antisocial impulses were stimulated by some of the recent bleating about so-called fifth columnists.

If the bombings were the work of an organized group pledged to terroristic tactics, the crime has even more sinister implications. The Daily Worker has been quick to seize upon this latter possibility and exploit it for Communist purposes. "The present act," it charges, "is beyond doubt related to the systematic campaign of hysteria for war. We might say this attempt was a job of the fifth column that draws its inspiration from the war parties high in Wall street."

Regardless of the exaggeration in this statement, there are many disturbing signs of a growth of lawless intolerance among certain sections of the American public. Swayed by demagogic appeals to rid the country of spies and saboteurs of democracy, some susceptible morons mistakenly assume that any means calculated to achieve that end are justified. The present jittery attitude of many who should know better offers considerable encouragement to the lunatic fringe that exists everywhere and needs but slight encouragement to do its worst.

The New York bomb explosions would be a challenge to the law-enforcement agencies at any time. Under present conditions the importance of apprehending and promptly punishing the perpetrator, or perpetrators, is emphatic.

It is essential to drive home the fact that in a democracy lawlessess is not an antidote for any problem, and that it will not be tolerated by the constituted authorities. The speed with which local, State and Federal law-enforcement agencies have launched investigations with a view to determining who is responsible for the New York outrages is, therefore, encouraging.

Inferiority In Victory

When a bomb was dropped on a German warship during the Spanish Civil War the Nazi government, in order to satisfy its "honor," gave orders that a Spanish city should be shelled as a reprisal. These orders, which presumably issued from the Fuehrer himself, were duly carried out at the expense of the seaport of Almeria. More wholly innocent Spanish civilians were killed by this bombardment than the number of German sailors who lost their lives in the attack on the Deutschland.

Somewhat the same attitude was shown by Hitler yesterday in presenting his armistice terms to the envoys of the crushed and defeated French republic. In choosing the very spot where the 1918 armistice was signed, and in taking the same seat in the same decrepit dining car that was then occupied by Marshal Foch as Allied generalissimo, the Fuehrer provided fascinating material for the psychologists.

The action was not precisely vindictive, as was the shelling of Almeria. If Hitler's desire had been to humiliate France he could have chosen places far more sacred to the French people than this clearing in the Forest of Compiegne. Nor were the references to the "heroic resistance" and "bravery" of the French troops in the recent fighting compatible with an intention to degrade the conquered.

It was, rather—as the preamble to the armistice terms stated—to "wipe out" a memory of "deepest humiliation" for Germany that this symbolic procedure was ordered. And at the same time occasion was chosen to reiterate the fiction that on November 11, 1918, Germany was not beaten in the field, but merely tricked into surrender by the Fourteen Points.

So even in the moment of their present triumph the abiding inferiority complex of the German people comes to the fore. It is this curious national characteristic which has made them so susceptible to the principle of dictatorship. It is this trait which makes them so feverishly anxious to appear as supermen.

And it is this failing which may make it as difficult for them to avoid intoxication by the heady wine of victory as it has always been for them to admit with decent honesty that only Allied and American generosity preserved the German armies from utter annihilation at the end of 1918.

Repairing The Law

Prompt action should follow the proof in court that the antiquated District code does not provide punishment for panderers. Justice Proctor was forced to order the release of a man who admitted he had conducted men to a girl and accepted part of her earnings.

The unfortunate legal situation is due to oversight alone. The old law had effect in the condition it was intended to alleviate, the business of disorderly houses. Changing conditions have not been met by a new law.

With the District attorney and corporation counsel investigating the matter, there should be no obstacle to repairing this section of the code. Senator King, as chairman of the Senate District Committee, has promised as much speed as possible once a measure has been offered to Congress.

If correctly prepared, it should be pushed through with the uncontested bills.

Answer To A Question

From the Dallas Morning News

We have often wondered what would happen if the expert pistol shot flicking the ash off the cigarette of a human target happened to have an unsteady hand. The knife thrower in vaudeville and circus has stirred a similar curiosity. The situation is a little different from that of the 200-mile-an-hour auto racer or the daredevil who loops the loop. They risk their own lives. But in these cases of expert marksmanship with knives, firearms and golf clubs, one man furnishes the skill, the other the courage. And for some unknown reason, it is the one with the skill that gets the applause and the headline.

The Houston sportsman who tried to shoot a paper cup off an employe's head the other day missed the cup and answered the question. Some slight error in calculation supplies a very definite undertaker's job. Now that the question is answered, is there any reason why fool humanity should continue to experiment? William Tell, whether real or imaginary, did his apple shooting under compulsion.

In Mourning

All thinking human beings must be in mourning today—in mourning for the dark eclipse which shrouds the beauty of France and the tragic sacrifice of her people and her army. Even the enemy must dimly sense the monstrous incongruity of their swastika flying in Paris—the Paris that symbolizes civilized freedom of thought and refinement of the senses—the swastika which is the emblem of physical force as an end and intellectual enslavement as a means.

The mothers and wives and daughters of France are mourning their men, their cities and their forests; they are mourning their freedom to create and to work and play as they have chosen; they are mourning for their symbol of France's art, of her tolerance, her gaiety of spirit and her unique inheritance of beauty—they are mourning for Paris.

But it is not France alone who mourns, it is civilization itself which is borne down by its own incommensurable failure. In this gigantic struggle France is paying one of the great bills of history to her own disregard of basic essentials. Men's bodies are ineffectual defense against the mechanized force and cunning of an enemy concentrated upon total destruction. France has alas, lost the right to say, as at Verdun in 1916: "They shall not pass."

But from under her shroud of terror and pain, her own unquenchable source of light shall nourish her. And at some future dawn the waiting world shall hear a reborn France shout forth: "They shall not stay." VIVE LA FRANCE.

False Security

The impressive list of millions of dollars that Congress has appropriated for our national defense, is having one effect that may ultimately render that appropriation useless. It seems to have lulled many of us into a false sense of security. With such an armament what nation would dare to molest us! It has been said that there is a special providence that watches over fools, but the nation that puts its sole trust in arms that will be ready two years hence, is indeed a nation of fools! What is going to protect us these next two years? So far it has been the British navy. If that fails, what then? It's time we thought about that!

There is one democracy left. If England falls, the end of our own existence as an indepenent nation will follow as surely as the night follows the day.

Russia's Best Bet

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Russia has nothing to gain from further cooperation with Germany other than eventual subservience to Hitler's system. As soon as Hitler finishes with Europe and Great Britain the vast granary of Russia will be his next goal. It seems to the writer that in 1939 Stalin may have miscalculated the strength and potential success of Hitler and now realizes his mistake. Hitler's success will destroy any semblance of a balance of power in Europe. It appears that the salvation of Russia, France, Great Britain and a future balance depends upon Russia declaring war upon Germany within the next few days.

This action would tend to free Japan from a supposed Russian threat and leave her free to do some high-powered grabbing, but it would at the same time preserve Allied naval power in the Atlantic and leave the main strength of the United States fleet to watch the situation in the Pacific.

Compulsory Training

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: After reading about the President's proposal to subject the youth of the United States to compulsory training, military or otherwise, I feel moved to voice my indignation to any such plan. This Government is supposedly based on liberty and freedom. Where anyone sees these principles in conscription or compulsory regimentation is beyond my comprehension.

The President said that it is important to have American youth under some form of discipline. It seems strange that the need for discipline crops up so suddenly. Why didn't we need it in peace time? It seems to me that the average American youth is able to conduct himself properly without having to take orders from some Army officer. We Americans have always prided ourselves on our resourcefulness. This is largely because we are left to figure things out for ourselves, not to take orders which govern each move we make. Every move in the direction of lessening of personal freedom is a step in the direction of a dictatorship, and every lover of the American way of life should vigorously oppose any step in this direction. Paying For Defense

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Every true American believes in and wants "an adequate national defense." By and with the huge New Deal appropriations made to the armed forces of this Nation we have paid for such a defense. If we are now "woefully unprepared," as stated by President Roosevelt and his advisers, then the Congress should thoroughly investigate every branch of the Army and Navy and court-martial those responsible for the wanton squandering of billions of dollars taken from the American people—dollars "earned by the sweat of every man's brow."

Is not this current "war hysteria" serving as a smoke screen for the super-patriots, the political opportunists and to cover up the grotesque blunders of the New Deal?

While human needs are being curtailed we are squandering money on armaments. Why were not these same armaments provided with the annual (huge) appropriations made for this very purpose? Is it not time that our military high command has become an "autocracy within our democracy"? The best preparedness the Nation may have is to expose and drive out those in high office who, by neglect or gross incompetence, have betrayed their high offices. We do a serious injury to our Nation when and if we defend them by remaining silent and permitting a patriotism and a flag-waving whitewashed job to cover up their foul machinations.

War Blame

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: What has become of America's traditional sense of fairness? Our papers are filled with editorials and letters from overwrought people, blaming Germany in violent language for trying to win a war declared upon her by England and France. Had the Allies been able to ready themselves and struck the first blow, invading and defeating Germany, would we have been as filled with pity for Germany and condemnation of England and France? Would the President then have said that no territory won by invasion would be recognized by this country? Had Germany been cut into small states, as Mr. Duff Cooper recommended, would we have refused to recognize them as legal?

England and France are supposed to be "fighting for their lives" but is not Germany fighting for her life also, and with just as much right to live as the Allies? How any American can fail to see that is more than I can understand and since England and France could have had peace with Germany long ago, I am unable to see why Germany should be blamed for this war.

A CCC Boy Replies

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your issue of June 17 there was an article called CCC enrollee's view. I would like to answer this article, in which he so strongly opposed military training in the CCC.

Why not pick on the CCC? In this organization the Government has a fine group of well-trained and physically fit boys, boys who can carry out fully whatever their commanding officer orders. This is another organization where cooperation is fully carried out and where every one tries his best to do his job well.

As for my opinion—and I hope there are a thousand more CCC boys behind me—I am sure they would rather see this Nation be prepared than have the misfortunes befall us which have recently caused France to lay down her arms because she, too, was unprepared. If we are not prepared, it would be wholesale murder for the Government to send us home and wait for a draft.

American Spirit In Puerto Rico

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The 10th of last December was the fortieth anniversary of the signing of the Treaty of Paris, which set for Puerto Rico a new rhythm of life in its relations with the world, and no one who worships the truth can deny that Puerto Rico has progressed more in these 40 years than in the last four centuries. What is more, Puerto Rico has progressed more in 40 years than any other country of the civilized world has progressed in a whole century.

Under the American flag, Puerto Rico has developed such a system of communications connecting the sea, the valley and the mountain as cannot be surpassed by any other country of similar resources. Against 275 kilometers of road that we had when we emerged from under the tutelage of the Spanish monarchy we have now more than 2,500 kilometers, not counting the projects that, under actual WPA plans, are now being constructed with the proceeds of an insular tax on gasoline and the aid of funds allocated by the Federal Government. And under that same flag 550 schoolrooms for the school population that we had at the time of the transfer of the sovereignty have increased to 5,000 and the $200,000 total appropriation for education at that time has been increased to close to $8,000,000 in our current budget.

Conscious of the lofty mission entrusted to our beloved small island, called to serve as a natural bridge for the amalgamation of the culture and civilizations of North and South America and to serve as a foundation for the secure establishment of an American confraternity which will in turn be a future guarantee of world peace, we have come to believe that the whole world needs, more now than at any previous time, of the wealth, the work, the efforts of everyone, and above all, of the American spirit.

The Post Impressionist

The Perfect Hound

I do not pretend to know what characteristics make up a perfect "hound dog" according to criteria of the kennel clubs, but my Uncle Ivory claims to have seen the superperfect hound, though not in person, as it were.

To go back a little, Uncle Ivory's wife served an ultimatum that he must get rid of his collection of old calendars and advertising posters, which he had tacked up all over the farmhouse. There were pictures of famous horses from Maude S. to Equipoise and vivid prints of dogs, especially of lachrymose hounds.

A monograph of very slight interest could be compiled on the folk-patterns of our community. Perhaps it is because our early culture was formed in a Puritan mold that we place an undue value upon a lugubrious expression. Whatever may be the cause, it is our peculiarity that we value hounds in proportion to their expressions of misery. We treat our animals kindly and I, for one, tend to the belief that the moody appearance of these dogs is merely a canine ability to conform to man's ideas and does not indicate acute suffering. According to our preference, the perfect hound has a simple, not to say stupid, expression, gazing at us with totally undeserved admiration. His ears flop sadly in the wind. His liver-colored spots have a slightly bilious tinge, and he cringes as if in mortal fear of impending doom.

Uncle Ivory reluctantly took his pictured animals out of the house for he could not bear to destroy them, and he carried them to the horse barn, here they formed a pleasing collection. Sunday afternoons, when the men gathered at the barn for a rest, conversation turned to the merits of horses and dogs and Uncle Ivory's pictures were much admired. But there is always a "fly in the ointment," as the saying goes.

Uncle Ivory's neighbor from down the road is Hosey Peters. Hosey got the idea that Uncle Ivory's pictures made him popular, and he began to hunt around for others to decorate his own barn. He asked the storekeeper at the Corners to save him advertising posters with pictures of prize animals, and Uncle Ivory noticed that he lost face as Hosey's collection grew.

Collecting knows no reasonable limits; no collector can see his rival adding to his collection without acquiring for himself more rare and desirable pieces. So Uncle Ivory on his trips around the community began to bribe a storekeeper here and there to save for him some fine picture of an animal, after it had outlived its sales appeal, so to speak.

So the rival collection grew and it was considered correct to visit the two barns on alternate Sundays and comment on the pictures. Uncle Ivory became, in fact, a kind of bucolic Soames Forsyte (if you know what I mean). The community was split into factions, one professing to believe that Uncle Ivory's collection was best and one that Hosey's, though smaller, was more choice.

The affair came to a crisis with the installation, on the State road, of a new billboard upon which there appeared the picture which Uncle Ivory calls "the perfect hound." I do not remember what product the hound advertised, but for qualities which appeal to our taste no animal has ever equaled this one. He sagged all over in approved fashion. His eyes were full of pathos. All the weariness of time was in his corrugated forehead.

From the first, this masterpiece brought out all the Old Adam in the rivals; volumes of sermons on original sin could be preached on the incident. Both collectors coveted the picture. If they had been more informed, the thought would have come to them that by writing to the advertiser they might secure copies of the picture, but to them it was this one on the billboard or none.

In the end, it was Hosey who went out one night with a lantern and a ladder, and he sawed the dog spang out of the middle of the sign!

The news spread fast and the scandalized community suspected the rivals. Hosey learned what he should have known all the time, that he could not get any pleasure from his illegal triumph. He could not, of course, exhibit his dog, and he was forced to conceal it behind a bin of oats and get what comfort he could by gazing into its sad eyes when he went out to grain his horses. It was the sad eyes which were his undoing. A neighbor, going into the grain room, saw an accusing eye looking at him from behind a bin. Somewhat startled, he investigated and hauled out the square of billboard with its decoration.

He was, in fact, at that time a deputy sheriff, and he gave Hosey one hour to repair the damage as best he could. It was a terrible comedown for Hosey. In his rage and frustration, he was not able to do a very good job of carpentering, though ably assisted by coaching from the sideline. To this day the melancholy hound is rather askew.

Because of this incident, Uncle Ivory snatched the first opportunity to visit Washington and its galleries. If the old masters knew what he thought about them, they might be surprised. While he nurses his feet, which are sore from walking, Uncle Ivory states the matter tersely:

"There are some might pretty pictures in Washington. I was hoping I could find a dog-picture that would compare to the one I am telling you about. But there ain't one can touch it. I tell you (and here words almost fail him) that dog had the woefulest eye I ever saw in man or beast!"

Platform Outlines

By Felix Morley
Editor of The Post.

G. O. P. Opportunity In Foreign Policy

BY A REMARKABLE coincidence the Republican National Convention will meet to adopt the party platform, and select its Presidential candidate, just as the probability of a German victory in the European war is changing towards virtual certainty.

Of the moral and philosophic implications of this outcome, clearly foreshadowed when France was forced to sue for a separate peace, much has been and will be written. But for the United States, at the moment, the effect on domestic politics is the outstanding issue. And it would not be surprising if the more erudite of the Republican leaders, now assembling in Philadelphia, were murmuring to themselves: "There is a tide in the affairs of men which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune."

The turn of events in Europe has, almost overnight, done much to clarify and define the task of writing the platform plank on foreign policy. Until a few days ago it seemed probable that this would be an undignified and unworthy straddle; that it would attempt to appeal to pro-Ally sentiment without indorsing the President's efforts to make this sentiment effective.

The chances, indeed, seemed to favor something akin to that highly equivocal sentence in the 1936 platform, which said: "We pledge ourselves to promote and maintain peace by all honorable means not leading to foreign alliances or political commitments."

A fatuous pronouncement on foreign policy, at a moment when this is a major issue in the minds of the electorate, would be a most inauspicious opening for the Republican campaign. With the outcome of the fight against German aggression uncertain a negative declaration on foreign policy would have been a millstone around the neck of any candidate. It would certainly have inclined many independent voters to support even a third-term candidacy on the part of a leader whose stand was positive and clear-cut.

BUT WITH THE COLLAPSE of France, and Winston Churchill's virtual admission that Great Britain must now fight on the defensive, the situation has altered completely. Evidence of this is seen in the way Republican leaders heretofore sympathetic to Mr. Roosevelt's conduct of foreign relations have lately turned against him. Alfred Landon and Wendell Willkie are only two cases in point.

The change, however, is not due solely to the rapid turn for the worse in the position of the Allies. In conjunction with this development is noted a recklessness in Mr. Roosevelt's attitude which would be causing anxiety to many even if the military picture in Europe were far less depressing.

That recklessness was illustrated when the President, in his recent address at Charlottesville, inserted a phrase of a highly inflammatory nature which was not in the text of the speech as released to the press shortly before its delivery. That phrase, referring to Italy and interpolated almost impromptu, was: "On this tenth day of June, 1940, the hand that held the dagger has struck it into the back of its neighbor."

Most of us would agree that this was a wholly accurate metaphor for Mussolini's contemptible action in declaring war on France at the moment chosen. But the justification for this gratuitous affront to the Italian government is not the issue. The issue is whether the President, acting on the spur of the moment and without consulting his Cabinet, was well advised to offer such provocation to a government with which, presumably, this Nation desires to remain at peace.

Mr. Willkie did not refer to the episode, nor to Mr. Roosevelt, when he said on Tuesday that: "No man has the right to use the great powers of the Presidency to lead the people, indirectly, into war." But the criticism was none the less apposite because unspecific.

ANOTHER VERY QUESTIONABLE instance of personal intervention was the message which the President cabled to Premier Reynaud last Saturday, in answer to the latter's pathetic appeals for American assistance. This message from Mr. Roosevelt was summarized by the French Cabinet, in an official communique issued at Bordeaux, in the following language:

> The Government of the United States declares itself resolved to pursue to the utmost the policy of direct assistance to the Allies, which it has recently adopted, and will even develop it to the full extent of its resources, to the exclusion, for the moment, of participation in the conflict, as it is for Congress to take such a decision under the terms of the American Constitution.

This statement makes it only too obvious that the French government profoundly misunderstood the American position. It assumed that a declaration by the President of itself determines our governmental policy, which is far from being the case. It wholly ignored, as the President had done, such factors of policy as the neutrality law, the Johnson Act and the war debt settlements. Ironically indicative of the actual situation was the fact that a formal dun for the semiannual debt payment due June 15 was transmitted to the harassed French government even as the President was assuring its premier of "redoubled efforts" to be helpful.

In spite of its evident belief that the United States might soon enter the war the French government decided to negotiate for peace with Germany. So the Administration has escaped the awful responsibility of having urged France to continue fighting against hopeless odds in the expectation of American assistance. But with regard to the British, it still remains true, as Mr. Landon says, that it is "cruel indeed to arouse false hopes."

WENDELL WILLKIE
"No Man Has the Right . . ."

Both the general picture and its political implications are strongly reminiscent of the situation which arose after President Wilson had signed the Treaty of Versailles and created in Europe the impression that the United States would be a leading member of the League of Nations. This was Administration policy which the peoples of France, Britain and other countries falsely believed to be our governmental policy. And when Congress refused to implement Mr. Wilson's actions, lasting bitterness toward this country was aroused in Europe.

IF THE WAR were still a 50-50 proposition, with the Allies needing only American munitions to defeat Germany, then Mr. Roosevelt's recent actions might have been good politics. But as the situation stands the President, to put it crudely, has stuck his neck out.

While we remain on very bad terms with Japan, the Administration has gratuitously insulted Italy and clearly defined itself as bitterly hostile to Germany. While resenting any action antagonistic to us in Latin America, we have gone out of our way to encourage reprisals there. And all this has been done without rendering any important assistance to the Allies, and in face of a national unpreparedness for war which makes our vitriolic gestures futile.

To an increasing number such an attitude seems as foolish as it is ineffective. It has not made friends and most decidedly it has not favorably influenced the totalitarian peoples. It is a policy which is reckless rather than statesmanlike. The Republican National Committee, meeting to draft a party platform just as this recklessness becomes fully apparent, may be expected to capitalize its opportunity to the full. Evidently it will not be deterred by Mr. Roosevelt's decision, on the eve of the convention, to accomplish a blood transfusion for the Cabinet.

Those who are now considering the party plank on foreign policy have no easy task. They must find a phraseology which will not merely fit the immediate situation but will also stand up in November and hold good in the greatly altered world which a victory of the Axis powers would imply. But the platform architects now have the advantage of being able, in outline at any rate, to see the shape of things to come.

It is a fair guess that the Republican plank on foreign policy will be neither virtually meaningless, as it was in 1936, nor forcible-feeble as has been our actual course in recent years. It is a fair guess that the plank will lay due emphasis on both aspects of Theodore Roosevelt's wise adage about speaking softly while carrying a big stick.

C. I. O. Split On 3d Term

By Associated Press

Oliver Resigns

John L. Lewis, who has declared opposition to a third term for President Roosevelt, was confronted yesterday with disaffection within Labor's Nonpartisan League, C. I. O. political wing, over his stand.

Eli L. Oliver resigned from the post of executive secretary of the league, which Lewis heads, and declared that the "overwhelming majority" of the members "prefer the renomination and reelection of President Roosevelt to the choice of any other person available in either major party."

In a letter of resignation, Oliver also asserted that the opposition to Mr. Roosevelt in the league came from an "infinitesimal minority" predominantly composed of persons associated with organizations controlled from outside the United States."

Coincidentally, there were two other happenings in the Capital that caught the attention of politicians.

Up on Capitol Hill, the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee reported it had "abundant evidence" that Missouri State employes had been "indirectly coerced" into contributing to Gov. Lloyd C. Stark's campaign for the Democratic Senatorial nomination.

Chairman Gillette (Democrat), Iowa, said the committee's agents would continue their investigations in Missouri until after the Senatorial primary in which Stark is campaigning against Senator Truman.

At Jefferson City, the Missouri capital, it was recalled that Stark had taken cognizance two months ago of such charges by asserting that "there is no lug being put on anyone by me or my campaign committee."

Yesterday he said "I personally prohibited anything of the sort," when told of the committee's charges.

Postmaster General Farley and Vice President Garner had a long conference and word circulated afterward they had discussed possibilities for the Democratic Vice Presidential nomination in the event President Roosevelt runs again.

Farley and Garner, both aspirants for the Presidential nomination, were said by friends to have "canvassed the whole field of politics," including President Roosevelt's selection of two Republicans, Henry L. Stimson and Frank Knox, to be Secretaries of War and Navy, respectively.

Both men disapproved the appointments, one report said.

Farley announced that Senator Wagner (Democrat), of New York, had been selected for chairman of the convention's platform committee. Wagner headed this committee of the 1936 convention.

Wagner told reporters he would begin holding conferences at once with delegates who will serve on the committee.

Regardless of who is nominated for the Presidency, Wagner said, the platform necessarily must give a straight-out indorsement of New Deal policies.

House colleagues applauded the selection of Speaker Bankhead (Democrat), of Alabama, as keynoter of the Democratic National Convention.

In a demonstration that lasted 45 minutes, members from both parties took the floor to praise the Democrats' choice.

They were led by Majority Leader Rayburn (Democrat), of Texas, who said the Democratic arrangements committee "did itself proud" in choosing Bankhead. Minority Leader Martin (Republican), of Massachusetts, put in, "If the wishes of this side of the House were consummated, he would receive an even higher honor from his party."

Fuel Engineers Hear Col. Johnson Discuss Defense

Within a few weeks, "the wheels of hundreds of manufacturing plants all over this country will be turning toward a stronger America," Col. Louis Johnson, Assistant Secretary of War, last night told 900 delegates to the twenty-sixth Fuel Engineering Conference at their dinner at the Shoreham Hotel. The conference is sponsored by Appalachian Coals, Inc., of Cincinnati.

"Thousands of other factories," said Col. Johnson, "have been surveyed by the War and Navy Departments. Their owners and their managers know what the Nation will expect of them in case the emergency becomes more acute."

ADOLF A. BERLE, JR.
The Assistant Secretary of State has set a standard for Americanism, says Mark Sullivan. See article below

Mr. Berle's Standard

By Mark Sullivan

Why He Quit The Lawyers' Guild

INTENTLY AMERICA watches the war in Europe, and its exciting echoes here. And for the coming week the country will give a secondary attention at least to the Republican National Convention, especially to what policy that convention lays down about America's relation to the war. Those two subjects will absorb all of the average man's capacity to follow the news.

There is a third subject, which does not court the news; the developments of which pass unnoticed—and prefer to be unnoticed. Yet this third subject is vitally important to America. To as great a degree as the war, this third subject is weaving the pattern of America's future. To explain what this third subject is, turn to a relatively slight incident in the recent news:

Mr. Adolf A. Berle, Jr., is Assistant Secretary of State. He came to Washington in the early days of the Roosevelt Administration, has been here off and on ever since. He was associated with the early "brain trust," and for that reason has been called radical. But he is not radical in the sense that he wishes or seeks to bring about any material change in our American form of society and government. Quite the contrary. His is, rather, an inquiring mind which enjoys, and is good at, analysis of public questions and world trends. He is content with analysis; he is by temperament the opposite of partisan. His belief is that ultimately America and the world will get back on the track. His political leaning and intellectual quality is suggested by the fact that he serves as assistant to the surefooted Mr. Cordell Hull.

SOME TWO WEEKS AGO, Mr. Berle wrote and made public a brief letter, little noticed by the press. It was a letter of resignation. It was addressed to an organization formed three or four years ago, when so-called "liberalism" was running high. Mr. Berle's letter read:

> "The National Lawyers' Guild was formed in the hope that expression might be given to the liberal sentiment in the American bar. It is now obvious that the present management of the guild is not prepared to take any stand which conflicts with the Communist Party line. Under these circumstances, and in company, I think, with most progressive American lawyers, I have no further interest in it."

Now the value of that letter, for the purpose of clarifying American thought, lies in 13 words: "not prepared to take any stand which conflicts with the Communist Party line." By these words Mr. Berle makes a carefully accurate definition. He lays down a test. He sets up a standard.

So far as the record shows, Mr. Berle did not take his step especially because he is a Government servant. No doubt he would have taken the same step were he in private life. The standard he sets up is a standard for Americanism, applicable to everybody, in public life or private; applicable at all times, but acutely applicable under present conditions.

PART OF THE SERVICE Mr. Berle does is to supply a definition and a standard. There are many persons who are communist-minded but whom it would be inaccurate to call "Communists," simply because they are not formally members of the Communist Party. It is part of the Communist technique that some persons should avoid actual membership in the party, precisely in order to be able to say "I am not a Communist." There are others whose attitude toward communism is merely one of sympathy, or tolerance. There are yet others who can be accurately called "collectivists." These innocently think, probably mistakenly, that it would be possible to have some vague, mild form of collectivism without going all the way to communism. There are yet others who can best be described in terms of their attitude toward the American system of private ownership of industry. Cynically they take the position that the American system is doomed and that therefore there is no harm to let it go to its doom, perhaps even give it a push. Or they think of themselves as experimenters, and would make the experiment of trying some form of collectivism or communism. Or they are merely indifferent to the American system, and will take no pains to make it work.

Of some or all these categories, there are many persons in the Government service. Of that there is evidence, some of it sworn testimony before public bodies, some of it the serious statements of careful observers.

SUCH PERSONS have been a danger for several years. Today they are an accurate menace. For the legitimate purpose of organization for war, we are making innovations which are identical with collectivism. It is proposed to have universal, compulsory Government service. It is proposed to cartelize all industry. If such innovations are administered by persons sympathetic to collectivism, such persons would be likely to so manage as to fasten the innovations on us permanently. It will be little use if, in organizing to save ourselves from nazism, we go into communism.

Mr. Roosevelt, properly, wishes to achieve national unity. He attempts it by additions to his Administration, prominent Republicans and industrialists. But national unity, and also national safety, will be best achieved, not exclusively by Mr. Roosevelt's additions, but also by a survey of the Government service to find some eliminations.

Further, it is imperative that Congress remain in session. Congress, which is watchful, can so write the statutes setting up innovations as to end them when the emergency ends.

A Frivolous Folk

GLANCING ABOUT for the causes of our confusion and lack of confidence at the moment, I wonder if there is any meaning in the fact that amusement is one of the greatest interests of Americans and the provision of amusement a major industry. I am tempted to say that we pay more attention to amusement than to work, but that is a tricky proposition, and I will just hedge. However, it is easy to say that we take more interest in entertainment than in religion or civic duties and make the point. We spend vastly more man-hours in the movies and at ball games than in church or in pious works, and millions know the pedigrees and divorce records of moving picture actors who don't know the names of their Congressmen.

We make celebrities of actors and radio personalities, and for years we have been giving an enormous spread of space in print to sports and other kind of entertainment, including the night club shows. A separate and disreputable style or school of journalism has come into being to deal with the small talk, including smelly witticisms and the romantic or sexual problems of a class of people who appear to exist entirely in drinking resorts, many of which are outposts, indeed citadels, of the criminal underworld.

MUSIC, TOO, or those ghastly sounds which we accept as music, is an important interest of ours, so big, measured by its revenues, that we have created a great musical trust. If it were good music, well played or sung, that interest would be a benefit, but it is mostly horrible and made worse by strident and cynical instrumental work and by singers who can't sing but moo and yowl.

Since the first World War the amusement trade as a whole has become a giant in size and influence, as though frivolity and drinking were sturdy essentials of American existence. Even in rural districts the juke, or dump, has become a numerous institution, the country equivalent of the night club, and the annual two weeks away from it all—a custom unknown except to the executives of business and the rich 30 years ago—has become an exhausting spell of helling around by night in noisy joints which mar the sight and sound of the country. The artificial ugliness which defiles the natural beauty of Saratoga and the surrounding country and of the Catskills has been duplicated in the lake and mountain areas almost everywhere—all in the name of amusement.

SOME OF OUR colleges actually conduct courses, usually for more or less professional numskull athletes of the varsity, by which meaty giants are prepared for no other task than to teach other people to play, as though play were a trade or occupation of itself requiring tutored skill. We have gone mad about individual athletes and sport events in which from eight to a dozen men performed and from 50,000 to 100,000 other Americans sat by as mere spectators. That has become our concept of sport.

To return for a moment to the subject of our music. It has been with very few exceptions an atrocious stew of nerve-racking noise all pretty much alike—which is to say harsh, loud and without grace at best—which is deliberately exaggerated jerky shrieks and wails on the representation that this sort of disturbance is distinctly American. But more people than the broadcasters imagine leap to the dials to silence the box when these dreadful discords begin, and, although America has produced this affliction, I doubt that it expresses the American taste.

BUT THERE can be no doubt about the quantity of it or our preoccupation with amusement of many kinds. The movies represent an investment and turnover which are, in the cinema's own word, colossal, and we are so infatuated by the personalities of actresses, joke tellers and crooners that the mere trade of gossiping about them has raised several individuals in journalism and radio to lofty brackets in the income tax. Celebrity has been given to people merely for discussing celebrities.

Americans always have been hard drinkers and we now outdrink all other peoples by a still greater margin in quantity and alcoholic power, and hangover remedies are in such demand that some brands can afford to advertise widely in print and by air.

And no people on earth ever possessed as many dress suits and dinner jackets per capita as the American of our time.

Maybe we ain't been living right.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Sleep-Walkers

OBVIOUSLY, it would have been better if the Cabinet had been reorganized six weeks ago, better still if it had been reorganized at the outbreak of the war, and the historians will long be busy explaining why such an obvious and necessary measure was so long delayed. Obviously also, this is only a partial reorganization: it will have to be followed by several other changes, notably in the establishment of a true administrative agency through which Messrs. Knudsen, Stettinius, and Budd can operate, and in the appointment of a new Secretary of Labor.

But sober reflection, and above all the experience which impending events are going to provide, will demonstrate, I think, that Colonel Stimson and Colonel Knox have done a great service to their country, and, however disconcerting it may seem now to some of the political managers at Philadelphia, a great service to the Republican Party.

FOR EIGHTEEN MONTHS the Republican Party has been walking in its sleep. At no one of the critical junctures of this period has the party understood the situation or proposed measures to deal with it or offered the country positive leadership. There have been many individual Republicans, of course, who were aware of what was going on. But they have been in a helpless minority and, as an organized party, the Republicans have had no policy at all. A year and a half ago when they were told that war was coming, the politicians said that this warning was "ballyhoo" and "warmongering." Last winter they voted to support the Administration's wholly inadequate program of national defense but they are not on record, I think, as having made any kind of effort to make the program more adequate. They refused to support measures to avert the European war, saying as late as last July that they knew there was not going to be a war. One can, I think, search the speeches of Mr. Taft and Mr. Dewey, and search them in vain, for any evidence of foresight as to what has happened, for a single proposal which has sought, in advance of the Administration, to strengthen the national defense. The speeches of Messrs Taft and Dewey during these critical months make Mr. Neville Chamberlain seem like a far-sighted and strong statesman.

The alarming inadequacy of this whole performance has caused profound misgiving within the ranks of the Republicans of this country. That is why Mr. Wendell Willkie has risen so spectacularly. That is why Mr. Hoover has once again a popular following. And that is also why Mr. Roosevelt has become so much stronger than he was a year ago. A very large mass of the people in both parties have watched the conduct of the regular Republican politicians, and have concluded that unless the Republican Party can turn to someone like Willkie or Hoover, it will be led by men who are walking in their sleep, by men whose minds have not grasped the situation in which this country finds itself.

BUT LONG BEFORE the elections in November it may become clear to everyone that the United States is isolated in a highly armed, hungry and jealous world. Even if that does not happen because the British are able to sustain the resistance, it will, nevertheless, be a fact—and this is one of the most momentous facts of modern history—that the capitalist system of private property and free enterprise and free labor has come to an end in every industrial nation on the face of the globe, excepting only in the United States.

The two American parties are nominating candidates whom they hope to make President during the next four years. Has it dawned upon the platform makers and party managers at Philadelphia that the next President of the United States is going to administer our affairs in a world where the whole commercial system we have known has broken down, in a world in which private property and private enterprise have been replaced by a regime of military socialism?

DO THEY REALIZE what this is going to mean? That when an American businessman wants to sell or buy in Europe and Asia, he will not be trading with other businessmen but with monopolies administered by dictatorial governments? That when he competes in the few free markets which may be left, say in South America, he will be competing not with foreign businessmen but with a European government monopoly?

Do they realize that the American farmer and the American producer of raw materials will be able to sell to this monopoly only if this country will take in payment the manufactured goods of Europe? Have they grasped the fact that these goods are going to be produced by highly skilled labor which is paid the wages of sweated labor and, so far as the conquered people are concerned, the wages of slave labor? Have our labor leaders grasped the fact that the trade union movement in all other industrial nations is dead, and that they will be competing in the American market and in all other markets with workers who have no rights and have a standard of life lower than any white men have known for much more than a hundred years? Have our manufacturers and bankers and shareholders and bondholders grasped the fact that this European government monopoly of industry will not only rest upon sweated labor and slave labor but that it will have no financial overhead to burden the costs of production? For the capitalists of Europe will have been expropriated, the Germans in fact though not perhaps in appearance, the conquered capitalists completely?

Has it occurred to the Republican leaders in Philadelphia what it will mean to compete with such an industrial machine as that? Do they realize that no existing tariff, no subsidy, no system of labor laws, no system of trade union agreements can protect American agriculture and industry against the inroads of such a system? For if they let in the imports from such an industrial machine, how can American producers survive in competition? And if they shut out the imports, how can American surpluses be disposed of?

THESE ARE A FEW of the facts which the American people are going to have to live with and deal with in the next years. No one in his senses can think he has a ready-made plan for dealing with them. But if they can be dealt with, the party in power must be led by men who are awake to what is happening. The sleepwalkers in Philadelphia do not seem to have even a dim appreciation of what is happening, and that is why the salvation of the party depends upon men like Hoover and Willkie, Stimson and Knox who do know what is happening.

Men like these, whether they serve the government in office or in the opposition, alone can save the Republican Party from a disaster like that which has overtaken Neville Chamberlain and his following. These men, whom the little politicians dislike, are identifying the Republican Party with the energetic defense of American vital interests and establishing it as a party suited to the times we live in. If they succeed, the Republican Party will be fit to be trusted by the country. If they fail, if the sleepwalkers are in command at Philadelphia and later of the government itself, the American people will pass through the most dangerous period of their history, led by men who do not know what they are doing.

Meeting to Press Camp Fund Drive

Far short of its goal of $7,500 to send needy children to summer camps, the Washington Council of Church Women will meet Tuesday in the office of Judge Fay Bentley to consider means of continuing the campaign to success. At its scheduled close last night, only $2,700 had been contributed.

Officials of the "Needy Children's Camps" fund, sponsored by the council, said parts of the proceeds of several coming events had been promised the fund. Unless the goal is attained, in competition with many forms of war relief, they said, hundreds of needy Washington children must be denied the benefits of a few weeks at camp. The cost for one week at Camp Goodwill or Camp Pleasant, they added, is $8.50; for three weeks, $25.

A VACATION AT HOME IS THE BECKER TWINS' AIM

Young Washington's Answer To an Important Question

"Where are you going on your vacation?"

These Washington youngsters and many more like them will answer: "Why go anywhere? We've got all we want right here."

With summer only two days old and their school work finished for three months, the boys and girls who are "staying home" already have begun to take advantage of our town's play centers.

Typical of boys his age is 12-year-old Bob Avery, of 2035 Rosemont avenue northwest, son of the president of the Appalachian Trail Club, and student of the Bancroft School. Bob will be riding, fishing and hiking. And where? In Rock Creek Park!

A little wind—or even rain—in their hair is not upsetting to outdoor girls like the brunette Becker twins—Dorothy and Margaret, 17. These Western High School students will get their "tan" in Palisade Park, in Potomac Heights, not far from their home, 5126 Conduit road northwest.

McKendree Methodists to Open $125,000 Edifice Next Month

Bishop Hughes, Other Ecclesiastics Expected to Attend

The McKendree Methodist congregation, which 95 years ago first worshipped in a downtown Washington carpenter shop, soon will open its majestic $125,000 edifice in Woodridge.

Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes, who just retired as resident prelate of the Washington area, Methodist church, and other ecclesiastical dignitaries including his successor are expected to attend the exercises, tentatively set for the latter part of July.

Resting at the triangle of South Dakota avenue, Twenty-fourth street and Rhode Island avenue northeast, the stone Gothic styled building will contain modern and adequate facilities to accommodate the growing congregation, of which the Rev. Samuel E. Rose is pastor.

Seating Capacity 700

The main floor provides a nave, choir stalls and a chapel, the latter-named to be used for some Sunday school class meetings, youth and missionary society gatherings, midweek services and overflow worship rites. A roofed veranda connects the right church vestibule and the parsonage.

In the church chancel is a communion chest supported by a gothic panel railing which inclosed the choir stalls and organ console.

The second floor includes a balcony, space for a church school intermediate department, and a home-like parlor with fireplace and kitchenette. The parlor may be utilized for luncheons and teas, and by the use of curtains or partitions, two classes can meet there. The seating capacity of the nave, chapel, balcony and stalls is about 700.

On the ground floor mezzanine, five feet above the floor level of the fellowship hall, are a nursery, beginners' and primary departments. The junior department occupies the rear of the fellowship hall.

Merged with Langdon

The hall has facilities for dramatic performances, entertainments, church suppers and socials, light athletic games, a Sunday school department and assembly. A modern kitchen opens off the rear.

The building committee for the new enterprise includes Charles A. Sutton, Roy I. Green, G. F. Johnson, Stanley Bell, H. S. Miller, Wiley Copeland, the Rev. Mr. Rose, George A. Simonds, S.H. Casey, Henry W. Evans, Mrs. John E. Thompson, E. J. Robb, Philip Ayers, Mrs. George A. Simonds and George B. Sammons.

Representing the merger in 1938 of the McKendree Methodist Episcopal Church, formerly located in the 900 block of Massachusetts avenue northwest, and the Langdon Methodist Episcopal Church, 2228 Evarts street northeast, the united congregation laid the cornerstone for the new project last October 1.

One of the papers placed in the cornerstone box at that time was from the collection of John Quincy Adams, in which the former president wrote in part:

"Today, April 30, 1845, I attended the dedication of the McKendree Methodist Church, and was given an armchair seat in front. Several of my cabinet had seats on the front row."

Since holding last services at the old site on April 3, 1938, and uniting with Langdon, the new McKendree group has been worshipping in the Masonic Hall at Rhode Island and Mills avenue northeast. The Rev. H. M. owland was pastor of the old Langdon church.

Little Stories of GREAT HYMNS

It is said that Columbus sang this hymn, and caused it to be sung every evening during his perilous voyage to the new world. "Maris Stella," or "Star of the Sea," was a marian epithet applied to the Mother of Jesus by the Roman Catholics in the Middle Ages.

Cedar Hill's Cloister Mausoleum

HERE is an architectural masterpiece, built like the Pyramids to survive the passing of Time.

It affords single crypts, lounge crypts, family sections, a non-sectarian chapel, modern Crematorium and Columbarium.

Cedar Hill is truly Washington's most beautiful cemetery where permanence and perpetual care are for more than a promise.

Adm. Stark, Wife Entertain At Farewell Party for the Edisons

Retiring Navy Secretary and Wife Also Being Feted at Many Small Dinners; He Will Leave for New Jersey Next Week

The retiring Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Charles Edison, who gave a big farewell dinner last week, were in their turn entertained at a large good-by party yesterday by the Chief of Naval Operations and Mrs. Harold Stark.

Mr. Edison, who is running for Governor of New Jersey, will leave the Capital next week for their home in Llewellyn Park. He and his wife are now attending a series of small dinners given in their honor by their many friends.

Edward Stettinius, of the National Advisory Defense Commission, took time off from his busy office to attend the party, and virtually every high naval officer in town was also there. The general sentiment felt was regret that the Edisons are leaving.

Mrs. Edison looked pretty as usual in a flowered chiffon print topped by a corsage of gardenias and a dusty pink sailor hat trimmed with a tiny bow. The hostess had chosen a brown and white chiffon model and a corsage of roses. Mr. Edison and Admiral Stark received with them.

Edisons Send Flowers to Hosts

The quarters of the Chief of Naval Operations on Observatory Hill are large enough to accommodate several hundred. Most of them gathered in the high-ceilinged dining room, while a few spilled out into the garden.

In the drawing room was a large bouquet of peonies, delphiniums and Shasta daisies which the Edisons had sent their hosts. The tea table was centered with a large bowl holding small lilies, snapdragons and purple larkspur. This and the surrounding candles were placed on mirrors of a sea blue shade. Of particular interest to lovers of unusual flower arrangements was a crystal bowl in the hall, supported by silver prongs, which held a single handsome red rose.

Gen. Louis McC. Little and Mrs. Little drove up from Quantico for the party. The Marine Corps commandant, Gen. Thomas Holcomb, was also present, though Mrs. Holcomb, who is recovering from an illness, did not accompany him.

Mrs. Alfred Johnson, who was among those pouring tea, wore a stunning diamond print with a big straw hat. Mrs. Edgar Woods, wife of the commandant of the Naval Hospital, had also chosen a print, blue and white, topped by a big blue cartwheel. Mrs. George T. Pettingill's gray frock had a design of red, white and black.

Admirals Among Those Present

Pouring tea were Mrs. Walter Woodson, Mrs. S. M. Robinson, Mrs. C. S. Freeman, Mrs. Edgar Woods, Mrs. J. H. Towers, Mrs. M. L. Deyo, Mrs. R. S. Riggs, Mrs. J. T. Juhan, Mrs. Charles Welburn and Mrs. William R. Smedberg 3d.

Seen here and there: Mrs. Charles Riggs, whose white frock had a skirt striped in wide bands of red and blue; the commandant of the Coast Guard and Mrs. Russell Waesche, the latter in black with a large hat to match; Gen. and Mrs. A. A. Vandegrift, she in black with lingerie touches; Gen. and Mrs. Russell B. Putnam, and Gen. and Mrs. Seth Williams.

Also Capt. Woods, Admiral Walter Anderson, Capt. Daniel Callaghan, the President's naval aide; Admiral and Mrs. Harold Bowen, the latter wearing a white sports frock, and many more.

Vernon Brooks Is Married To Paul Gunther

Brookland Methodist Church Is a Setting Of Flowers and Palms

The wedding of Miss Vernon Louise Brooks, daughter of Mrs. Troy A. Nubson, of Washington, and the late Floyd V. Brooks, jr., to Paul E. Gunther, of Washington, son of Mrs. Frank A. Gunther and the late Dr. Gunther, took place at 8 o'clock last evening at Brookland Methodist Church. The Rev. J. M. Gillum officiated, in a setting of palms, ferns and white flowers. The couple used the wedding ring given by the late Dr. Brooks to his wife 25 years ago.

The bride was given in marriage by her stepfather, Mr. Nubson. She wore a gown of ivory satin made with a gathered bodice, small lace collar, tiny satin buttons, a draped hipline falling to soft bows in back and a large circular train. Her veil of ivory tulle was held in place with a cap of orange blossoms and she carried bride roses, lilies of the valley and a white orchid.

Bride's Sister-in-Law Is Matron of Honor

Mrs. Frank A. Gunther, jr., was matron of honor, wearing turquoise marquisette and a small hat to match, tied with velvet ribbon. She carried lavender gladioli and larkspur, and yellow roses and daisies. Miss Christine Mullenberg, the maid of honor, was similarly dressed.

The bridesmaids were Miss Ada C. Works and Miss Helen E. Black, who wore yellow, and Mrs. Charles R. Morgan and Miss Nancy Opperman, who chose lilac. Their old-fashioned bouquets were of lavender gladioli, larkspur and yellow daisies.

Frank A. Gunther, jr., was best man for his brother, and the ushers were Lawrence W. Gunther, Hubert Bohnke, George Bongers and Alfred Birmingham.

Reception Held At Bride's Home

A reception for families and close friends followed at the bride's home, which was decorated with mixed flowers. The bride's mother wore ashes of roses chiffon lace and carried a small bouquet of pink sweetheart roses and babies' breath. Mrs. Gunther had chosen blue chiffon and lace with a corsage of roses. The bride's great aunts, Mrs. Wesley T. Gary and Mrs. George L. Starkey, were among those assisting.

The bride is a graduate of Wilson Teachers' College and has done graduate work at the University of Maryland. She is a member of Tau Phi National Sorority and the Twenty Club.

Mr. Gunther attended the University of Maryland and Benjamin Franklin University. He and Mrs. Gunther will make their home at 4301 Thirteenth street.

Exodus Goes On for Summer

The summer exodus of residential society continues, although officialdom is more or less chained to desks here throughout the warm months.

Mrs. Truxtun Beale will leave about July 1 to spend the summer in her home State, California, as she did last last year.

Countess Laszlo Szechenyi and her daughter, Miss Sylvia Szechenyi, have already arrived in Newport for the season. The Countess will not open her home, The Breakers, but is staying at the residence of her sister, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney.

Bermuda, favorite haunt of honeymooners, was chosen by Mr. and Mrs. Aldrich Dudley, snapped recently at picturesque Newstead. The bride is the former Miss Lucy Bayne Proctor, daughter of Mrs. William H. Goodacre, of Oxon Hill, Md. The couple has just returned and are living in Middleburg. Their marriage took place June 1

The Procopés In New York

The Finnish Minister and Mme. Procope are in New York, where they will be present at ceremonies tomorrow celebrating Finland Day at th World's Fair.

Mme. Procope will return in time for a ceremony Monday morning marking Mrs. Edward Beale McLean's turning over of the Walsh mansion on Massachusetts avenue to the Red Cross and Finnish relief workers. Young John R. McLean will present the keys to the house jointly to Mme. Procope and a Red Cross official, and work will be started at once in the big house, which used to be the scene of the most lavish parties in Washington.

Early last fall Mrs. McLean offered the mansion to the Red Cross, which at that time didn't need it. So she told Minister Procope he could have it, but at that point the Finnish-Russian war ended, so he postponed his decision. Later both he and the Red Cross felt it would be useful, so Mrs. McLean has turned it over to them jointly.

The Jack Hunters Return From Fair For Stay Here

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hunter, jr., of St. Petersburg, Fla., who visited here briefly before going to New York to see the World's Fair, have returned for a stay with Mr. Hunter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Hunter, of Northampton street, Chevy Chase.

Capt. and Mrs. William Hamilton Hunter, of Fort Riley, Kans., also have arrived here for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. John A. Hunter. They will be guests of Capt. Hunter's parents for a few days before going to their new post at West Point.

Visschers Return Today

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Visscher, of Evanston, Ill., will return today after visiting Mr. and Mrs. Eugene W. Bond. Mrs. Visscher, formerly Miss Jean Campbell, is a niece of Mrs. Bond. Miss Marion Bond was bridesmaid at her wedding last fall in Evanston.

Miss Stirling To Be Honored

As her graduation present after 13 years at Holton Arms School, Mr. and Mrs. Thatcher Winslow will entertain this afternoon for Miss Mickey Stirling, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. Calhoun Stirling, and Mrs. Winslow's cousin.

The guests, all of whom are debs, sub-debs and their escorts, may play tennis on the Winslows' court and then walk down the wooded road a way for a swim in the tree-saded, spring-fed pool. There a bar for beer and soft drinks will be set up, with Mr. Winslow as bartender.

Among the young ladies invited to meet Miss Stirling are the Misses Zeva Fish, Bella Hagner, Mary Lord Andrews, Marilynn Himes, Joan Dodd, June Noble, Barbara Baker, Peggy Tuckerman, Molly Warner, Kitty Hill, Peggy Lansdowne, Suzanne Slingluff, Delphine Colquitt, Junia Cuniberti, Marcy Morgan, Katherine Clement, Giovanna Stuart, Mary Lee and Phoebe Lewis.

The invitations read "If it rains Saturday come Sunday." Miss Stirling will enter Sarah Lawrence College in the fall

Robert Henry Marquis Weds Miss Ruth Longstreet Belden

Ceremony Performed at Community Church In Mountain Lakes, N. J.; Reception Follows

The wedding of Miss Ruth Longstreet Belden and Robert Henry Marquis, of Knoxville, Tenn., took place last night at 8 o'clock at the Mountain Lakes (N. J.) Community Church. The Rev. G. Ellis Williams performed the ceremony, which was followed by a reception at 178 Boulevard.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Belden, of Mountain Lakes, was given in marriage by her father. Her ivory satin gown was made on directoire lines with a full train, and her full-length tulle veil fell from a coronet of lace. She carried white roses and lilies of the valley.

Her sister, Miss Eleanor Anderson Belden, was maid of honor. She was wearing a blue lace and tulle princess gown with a shoulder-length tulle veil attached to a headpiece of flowers. The bridesmaids were Miss Elizabeth Towne, of Washington; Mrs. Thomas W. Martin, jr., of Martinsburg, W. Va., and Miss Edith Campbell and Mrs. David Weinstock, of New York. Mrs. Martin and Miss Campbell wore pink lace and tulle with matching headpieces, and Mrs. Weinstock and Miss Towne wore yellow gowns and headpieces. They all carried pink and yellow gladioli and blue delphiniums.

Miss Hona Bradley and David Bradley, of Union, N. J., twin cousins of the bride, were flower girl and ringbearer. W. Earl Masincup, of Washington, was best man, and the ushers were Donald Sherbondy, Chester Bowers, Max Schaul and Raphael Sherfy, jr., all of Washington, and George E. Fichtner, of Boonton, N. J., and Richard T. Mosher, of Syracuse, N. Y.

Both bride and bridegroom are graduates of American University. Mr. Marquis received a law degree from George Washington and an L. L. M. degree from Georgetown University. He is a member of Phi Sigma Kappa, Order of the Coif, Phi Alpha Delta and Delta Sigma Rho.

Formerly with the legal department of the Department of Justice, he is now with the Tennessee Valley Authority in Knoxville, where the couple will reside.

U. S. Navy Band Plays Music Of Americas

Concert Given In Pan American Union Garden

In the romantic Aztec garden of the Pan American Union, guests gathered last evening to hear a concert of Latin-American music by the United States Navy Band. Federico Jimeno, Colombian baritone, was the assisting artist.

Now that summer's officially here, the outdoor concerts of the Pan American Union will be among the most popular events. They are held from time to time throughout the year and attract diplomats, officials and residents.

Dr. L. S. Rowe Welcomes Guests

Dr. L. S. Rowe, director general of the union, welcomed his guests last night. They included the Ambassador of Chile and Senora de Cabero, the Ecuadorean Ambassador and Senora de Alfaro, the Ambassador of Mexico and Senora de Castillo Najera and the Colombian Ambassador, Dr. Gabriel Turbay.

Other Latin American diplomats invited were the Minister of El Salvador and Senora de Castro, the Dominican Envoy and Senora de Pastoriza, the Minister of Honduras and Senora de Caceres, the Minister of Nicaragua and Senora de De Bayle and the Minister of Paraguay and Senora de Fernandez.

Congress and Military Forces Represented

Also there were Senator Tom Connally, Senator Theodore F. Greene, Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, Representative Daniel O'Day, Gen. and Mrs. Amos Fries, Gen. and Mrs. Frank T. Hines, Gen. Allen W. Gullion, Admiral and Mrs. H. A. Stuart, Admiral and Mrs. Harold Stark, the First Secretary of the Chilean Embassy and Senora de Rodriguez and the Financial Counselor of the Chilean Embassy and Senora de Pou Munt.

Miss Dahn Will Be Wed

In the presence of members of the two families, Miss Nona Eloise Dahn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Dahn, of Cnevy Chase, Md., and William Eugene Hauver, jr., son of William Eugene Hauver and the late Mrs. Hauver, of Myersville, Md., will be married at 10 o'clock this morning.

The wedding will take place at the Dahn home, which will be decorated with palms and garden flowers. The Rev. Walter Michael, of Edbrooke Methodist Church, will officiate.

The bride, who will be given in marriage by her father, will have Mrs. Bernard Riley Linkins as her matron of honor, and Mr. Linkins will be best man. A breakfast at the Congressional Country Club will follow.

After a wedding trip to the West Coast, the couple will live in Chevy Chase, Md. The bride will wear a bolero dress of white faille made on princess lines and will carry white roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Linkins will wear shell pink lace and will carry yellow roses and blue delphinium.

The bride attended Pennsylvania State College and was graduated from the University of Maryland, where she was a member of Alpha Omicron Pi. She is on the faculty of Oxon Hill (Md.) High School. Mr. Hauver is an alumnus of the University of Maryland, where he was a member of Sigma Nu.

Warrenton Pony Show's Proceeds To Go to Red Cross; Plan Benefit Dance

ALL NET PROCEEDS of the Warrenton Pony Show, to be held today beginning at 9 a. m., will go to the Red Cross. The young committee—they are all under 21—have been working hard to make it a better show than ever before.

One of the features will be a cafeteria luncheon, sponsored by the mothers of the board of directors of the show. Luncheon will be served on the grounds. Miss Sally Spilman is president of the show and Miss Elizabeth Wilbur vice president.

Tonight the board of directors will hold a subscription dance at the North Wales Club, proceeds to go also to the Red Cross. Dancing will be from 10 to 2.

ANOTHER IMPORTANT sporting event today is the Edge Hill Horse Show at Aylette, Va., beginning at 11 o'clock. There will be 21 classes and luncheon will be served on the grounds at 1:30 for the benefit of St. David's Church.

One of the most interesting and best filled classes of the show is the Sir Archy Memorial Cup, to be called this afternoon. This is for the best horse bred in Tidewater, Va., under 3 years of age, any type. The committee includes C. S. Cofer, Mrs. Latane Fauntleroy and Miss Jeanne Gwathmey.

Mr. and Mrs. George R. Leslie will entertain a number of people at tea after the show and tonight there'll be a dance at the King William High School.

OF GREAT INTEREST in Virginia, Maryland and Washington is the announcement by Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Peters, of Milton, Mass., of the engagement of their daughter, Olivia, to Henry Lawrence Pool, son of Henry W. Pool, of Warrenton and the late Mrs. Isabel Pool, who came to Virginia to live many years ago from New Orleans.

Miss Peters was graduated from Milton Academy and made her debut in Boston in 1935-36. She is a member of the Boston Junior League. Last summer she visited Mr. Pool's family in Warrenton and made many friends in Virginia.

"Larry" Pool, who is one of the most popular members of the younger set, was graduated from Harvard in February, 1939, and is at present working for his Master's Degree in Mechanical Engineering at Harvard. His fiance will come to Warrenton during the summer to visit his parents.

No date has been set for the wedding.

MRS. RIXEY SMITH entertained eight friends at a delightful luncheon on Wednesday at her home, Gracelands, in Virginia, and plans were made for a gala flower show and supper next Saturday to benefit the Red Cross. The event will be held at Gracelands. Sponsors will be the Garden Club of Fairfax, of which Mrs. Edward F. Howrey is president, and the Difficult Run Garden Club, which Mrs. David L. Wing heads.

Among the guests at the luncheon were Mrs. Wing, Mrs. Howrey, Mrs. Frederick Richardson, Mrs. Robert Graham, Mrs. Charles Poser, Mrs. Lee Boatwright and Mrs. Edmund Parry. All has been donated for both shows and supper and the price will be only 50 cents for each.

Peggy Tuckerman To Attend Dance In Bayville, L. I.

Miss Peggy Tuckerman, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, will go to Bayville, Long Island, today and will attend the dance being given tonight by Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Clarkson for their debutante niece, Miss Elaine Darlington, of Washington.

Miss Tuckerman will return in time to give a supper tomorrow evening in honor of Miss Catherine Clement and her house guest, Miss Molly Thompson. Mrs. Tuckerman will go to Philadelphia tomorrow to attend a luncheon which will be given by Mrs. Charles M. Lea.

Mrs. Mackintosh Gives Dinner For Barneses

Mr. and Mrs. Earl M. Mackintosh entertained at dinner last night at the Hotel 2400 in honor of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Julian F. Barnes, who are soon leaving for their new station at Fort Benning, Ga.

Their guests were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Bones, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Bowie, Miss Mary Ellen Corby, Charles Channing, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dodge, Mr. and Mrs. John Thilman Hendrick, Mr. and Mrs. Hilleary G. Hoskinson and Martin R. West. Cocktails were served in the Lounge Riviera and dinner in the red room.

Acting Is Not Nearly as Easy As It Seems

But Here Are Some Pointers for Those Who Seek Poise

By Ida Jean Kain

THERE is so much of the actress in every woman that most of us look upon the incidental fact that our parents were not Barrymores as the main reason we did not achieve brilliant careers in the theater.

But if the average woman were to be suddenly thrust back of the footlights she would quickly realize that it takes more than a pair of parents or a memory to make an actress, that every step, every move, as well as every word, must convey the impression of grace, and that she didn't know the first thing about sitting, standing and walking beautifully.

Thinking that you might pay more attention to the rules if they came from a dramatic coach, I paid my $5 and took a lesson in the finer points of poise as practiced by actresses. Now, I can tell you how to enter a room as "a colorful person!"

Never Look Down

First, pause at the door and pull yourself together. Then keep in mind that all poise comes from the "stretch" in the section between ribs and hips. By stretching up with that portion of the body, you tend to correct the alignment of your figure. The ribs should be extended, shoulders down; the chest and head lifted. You should never look down—unless you are searching for a pin!

Your step should be "firm, glide: firm, glide." The foot should cling to the floor for an instant, giving a feeling of security, then the next step should be taken. To keep from swaying and to make for grace, the upper legs are always together. The knees are loose and the step should be taken in a straight line with toes pointing straight ahead.

Our instructor says that the most awkward way to enter a room is to "come in like a hurricane had blown you in" and to go over to a chair, turn around, look at it, and then sit down. There is a better technique: You walk up to the chair—gracefully, of course—keeping the eyes level. As you reach the chair you turn around and before sitting down, feel the chair with the back of your leg.

Sit Far Back

When you sit, sit well back with the weight either on one foot or the other, and not equally distributed. Then when you get up, the weight is on the forward foot, releasing the back foot for the step, and there is no awkwardness. If you cross the knees, cross the knees—don't cross the legs higher up. And have the toes pointing in the same direction.

When you begin to look for grace, you soon appreciate the necessity for making all movements easily so that you appear supple and relaxed. For most women, that means strengthening the muscles first with specific exercise. The following curtsy exercise is a wonderful means of developing poise.

Stand in the middle of the room, facing one wall. Arch the left arm overhead as if balancing a basket on the head. Have the right arm straight out from the side, shoulder level. Point the right foot out to the side and have the weight on the left foot. Now, transfer the weight to the right foot, cross the left foot over in front of the right, and curtsy. Slide the weight, and keep going. Perform the movements without turning the face—keep facing the wall. Have the buttocks tucked in, not out. After you have curtsied the length of the room, face the opposite wall and repeat.

Change of Scene, Hard Work and Unremitting Mental Discipline Cure Heartbreak, 'Connie' Is Told

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I wonder if I can help "Connie" (your correspondent of June 18) to forget the man she cannot have. I doubt that there is much I can say to add to the essence of what you have already told her, but perhaps if I tell her that I have accomplished the feat of "forgetting (or, as you say, "outgrowing"), she will find courage to follow in my footsteps.

I went to another city, and even at that distance, the agony of longing tore at me day and night until it was almost more than human strength could bear. But I won out eventually by inflexible thought-control. In addition to investing all my energies in work, I never permitted one slightest thought of the man to cross the threshold of my conscious mind. Never for the fraction of a second did I dwell on any word, look or deed reminiscent of the unhappy past.

It took six months to knife the fester out of my heart, and it was accomplished by almost imperceptible degrees. The secret of success lies in absolute mental discipline, plus constant application to work and to new surroundings. It is fatal to play around the fringes of familiar, sick territory—as "Connie" has been doing.

I have observed that the best of men inflict more heartache upon women than they have any right to, and "Connie" should at least aim her devotion at a more deserving specimen of manhood, of whom there are plenty. Having done so, she should even then be prepared in advance to survive the emotional havoc that may eventuate.

WELL WISHER.

Aftermath of Melancholia Worse Than Lovesickness

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I was much interested in the letter from "Connie," both because I went through such an emotional experience once before and because I am now trying to cure myself of a second seizure.

"Connie's" trouble, as I see it, goes deeper than unrequited love. She is succumbing to melancholia, which is to say, a disturbed mental condition characterized by extreme depression of spirit and brooding. Because the man's callous behavior first cast her spirit down, she now thinks that if he could be persuaded to marry her she would be automatically cured.

The person in such a mental condition is inclined to grasp at straws in the way of salvation and to cling to false concepts concerning the cause and cure of what ails him. The true remedy for worry and melancholy will be found in wholesome living plus intelligent medical treatment—which latter may need to include psychiatric treatment, if more superficial health-building measures fail to bring the desired results.

For myself, I am, at the moment, taking treatments from a nerve specialist (after having been unsuccessfully treated by my family physician). And if, after reasonable trial, this doesn't restore me to normal vim and vigor, I am going to unburden myself to a psychiatrist and let him see if he can find the monkeywrench in the works. Yet I am frank to admit that I am determined to get well without the help of psychoanalysis.

I am going to dance and swim as often as possible during my leisure hours, and I am going to go places, see people and do things, instead of "resting"—since resting is a stale form of idleness that invites a locust swarm of worries.

Unless one has experienced "Connie's" type of suffering, one can't possibly understand its peculiar nature. At the lowest ebb of my own depression I sometimes had the notion that death alone would provide escape from melancholy. I would sit amongst a crowd of care-free people, acting (so far as they could see) in a normal, light-hearted way, yet inwardly my mind would be wrestling with the monster of despair. But I was the victor in one such tussle and I will be again—and so can "Connie," if she keeps her chin up and takes your advice. But why human beings should be called upon to endure such anguish, even briefly, is more than I can understand. Sincerely yours,

UNDAUNTED.

Man Says He's a Fool And Solicits Advice

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Most of your correspondence seems to come from young people, but maybe you will give some advice to a middle-aged man. A marriage of approximately 10 years seems to be going on the rocks, and the fault seems to be mostly mine.

I am 41 and my wife is 30. The trouble is this: I am restless, active and a fool, and don't seem to have any control over myself. Any advice you can give me will be appreciated. Yours truly,

MAN READER.

It's Uphill Road To Self-Control

DEAR M. R.: Don't you think you do me too much honor, in assuming that I can make marriage-saving recommendations on the scant basis of less than 80 words of disorganized information about your situation and your irresponsible self?

However, here's a try: If you have no control over yourself, you should acquire some. Knowledge, we are told, is power. So, take an exact inventory of your personality (or character) assets and liabilities in order to learn what material you have to work with in making an acceptable husband of yourself.

This inventory should be taken under the direction of a psychologist or psychiatrist, whose special knowledge of the mainsprings of human behavior can be brought to bear in helping you reassemble that material into better functional form.

With the material (i. e., self-knowledge) in hand, and with your confidential counselor's suggestions to guide you (much as an architect's blueprint guides the builder), whip that material into shape that will yield maximum social efficiency. It may take years and it will not be easy.

In truth, it will be uphill going—but uphill going in more than one sense of the term. And it appears, from what you say, that you must choose, here and now, between lazily slipping farther and farther down hill to complete failure, and setting your feet heroically on the path that leads upward to enlightened self-management and its by-products of happiness and success.

M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Object Lesson for Elders

For success in wardrobe budgeting, we give you keen-looking Marjorie Jansson (above). Aged 11, she has a reputation for smart dressing at Alice Deal Junior High School, and she does all her own shopping on a shoestring school girl allowance. She made what she's got on

D. C. Girl, 11, Buys Clothing On Own Budget

Marjorie Jansson Finds Thrift No Bar to Neatness

The Post Fashion Editor

BUSINESS WOMEN might take lessons in common sense budgeting from an 11-year-old who has just come to our attention. Her name is Marjorie Jansson, an Alice Deal Junior High School student, who, for almost a year has been pursuing a self-imposed budget on clothes, treats and incidental school needs. So successful has she been in her penny-stretching that she has gained a reputation among her fellow seventh-graders for her neat, careful dressing as well as the admiration of many a grown-up who probably can't do as much with a dollar as pig-tailed Marjorie can with a dime.

Marshall Adams

What started this youngster on this economy wave and how did she manage to balance her accounts on an allowance of $3.50 a week?

The answer is that Marjorie contracted a grown-up love of pretty clothes last year and since her parents are clever disciplinarians, they decided to encourage her decided preferences for "classic clothes." After a couple of months' trial she learned to plan, assemble and buy everything from socks to hairbows.

Marjorie's mother was wise enough to realize that this liberty would develop a three-fold consciousness: (1) reliance in her own judgment; (2) a fashion awareness of what's going on around her, and (3) a sound sense of money and its value.

She Receives $14 A Month Now

Marjorie started her clothes budget last September on $8 monthly, but now gets $14 a month owing to a spotless record. Out of this she buys all clothes, bus tickets at 3 cents apiece, lunches and an occasional movie or soda treat for her mother or favorite classmate. Sounds like a close budget, doesn't it? Marjorie's ingenuity, however, found a way out in every case. Mrs. Jansson gives her the privilege of preparing her own lunch box, provided she plans and does it herself (good future food training, and, of course, it means more money for clothes or fun.

Since last fall, Marjorie's carefully kept fashion report sheets show the following purchases, each item with the clipping from newspaper ad or magazine pasted beside the entry: one blue tweed coat at $5.50; one blue felt at $3.95, bought in a fit of extravagance; one hooded gabardine raincoat at $3.70 sent down from New York by mail order; one $1.17 Camp Fire Girl skirt and blouse which Marjorie embroidered with insignia; shorts and slacks at 77 cents apiece; one striped pinafore play dress at $1.08; one sheer printed dress-up frock for 63 cents, and a cunning yellow organdy for parties, priced at $3.

In addition, she has a pair of dormitory pajamas at 89 cents, a cotton housecoat at $1.95, and a rayon lastex swim suit for 99 cents, which does as nice things for the coltish Jansson figure as a more expensive suit.

Added Incentive Is Thrift Chart

An added incentive in keeping these records is the monthly thrift chart of the Camp Fire Girls, of which both Marjorie and Mrs. Jansson are enthusiasts. There is space on this chart for "accounts on hand" at the first of each month, which Marjorie religiously watches so that she will be ahead of the game with her fall planning.

She had a yen for what she calls a "nudity midriff" beach dress for her approaching vacation in Connecticut next month, but she just steeled herself to forfeit it in favor of a new fall school suit in August.

Shoes, she wails, are her greatest cross. Her experience teaches her that dirt cheap shoes don't last very long, so she pays around $3 for everyday oxfords, and about $2 for moccasins and sandals. Her reward for thrift is a trip to New York to attend the Campfire Girls Day at the World's Fair this week-end, paid for entirely by her own savings.

A Woman's New York

New Yorkers Face the Great Decision: Where Do We Go From Here for Vacation?

New York, June 21.

THIS IS THE week of the great decision for those New Yorkers free to make it. Where do we go from here, and how soon? Any localite with cash in her kick packs some trunks and blows—anywhere. Europe is out unless you adore raids more than contract, so cool Canadian corners will get a big play, as will those in our own Nation. The main thing is to git up and git.

ALICE HUGHES

Of course, this doesn't affect us. Hall and I are tied to town with daily writing jobs, with deadlines, and if we can snatch two weeks at Coney Island this summer we shall have to work so far ahead that will be no belt in this long jaunt into the wilds—and they are wilds, no kidding. People like us depend on the continued good will of the friends who have country places—rich ruralists like Lilly Dache, the hatmaker, and Marion Stephenson, the photographer, and Tobe Davis, the fashion astrologist. From such blessed folk we panhandle and extort week-end invitations, and thus get to see trees and skies and chickens, after all.

The real swells of the town have fancy places of their own to which they skitter when the horrid heat falls, like a soggy blanket on our canyons. The wisenheimers say that poor old Newport and its moth-eaten castles, long on the downgrade as a haunt of the gentry, is now actually falling apart from neglect. Neither Annie nor the rest live there any more. It was the snob haunt of the rich eighties and nineties, but now the mice have moved in.

Those haunted marble houses are just part of the dizzy American picture painted in days when thousand dollar bills grew on gooseberry bushes. Those times are gone, never to return, and good riddance. They were morally and spiritually unhealthy, and whatever sort of world emerges from the present mess, it won't be that grandiose, pretentious and vulgar sort. I hope—but who knows?

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Is this Russia? A couple of attractive girls here of the names of Cecelia Roman and Mary Grenwetz, broiling in their West Side apartment, decided to take steps. So they put on bathing suits and went over to get some shade in Central Park. Passing youths took interest in the fetching sight, and pretty soon the law came along and Cop Woods summonsed the kids for improper dressing in public. A dollar or a day in the pokey, said the judge, and the girls decided to sit it out in the cooler. But a newspaper man shelled out the $2—you know how gallant reporters are—and the free-spirited girls were loosed. A pretty thing! A girl can't wear a swim suit on a park lawn! Is this Germany?

Newlyweds Face Basic Problems In Building Home

By Elizabeth McRae Boykin

A young couple in love can step off and get married without a cent with which to bless themselves. And they'll probably make the grade as well as those who march down the aisle complete with veil and attendants, not to mention a noble haul of presents. But it won't be such an easy road, if more adventurous.

Either way, there are basic things to consider in getting settled in a new home. If there is a nest egg to buy furniture with, so much the better. If there isn't, it will have to be accumulated later. But both situations want a lot of pondering. Here are questions to chew a pencil over:

Do you have expectations, or must you look forward to a modest pattern of life? The answer will make a big difference in the way you spend your home furnishing money. If you expect to expand, then put your all, or most of it, on one or two or three really fine pieces, makeshifting along for the balance till you can add, one by one, the sort of things that really fit your ideas of life. That way you need never blush over your sentimental attachments for your first furnishings.

If, on the other hand, you belong in a field of work where remuneration is more of the spirit than the flesh, then it's better to make less ambitious and more practical investments with those first precious pennies.

In short, it's the difference as to whether to buy a modest suite of maple bedroom furniture that will provide all the essential pieces, or whether to splurge on a mahogany poster bed, relying on a windfall to buy highboy and bureau to equal it later.

Overweight Causes Same In Young, Old

Children's Advoirdupois May Be Caused By Tiny Glands

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

The case of the overweight child is essentially the same as that of the overweight adult. We said that in at least 90 per cent of cases the individual over 40 who is overweight is that way because he eats too much and exercises too little (mostly because he eats too much). The overweight child is overweight because he eats too much also but there is another factor at work in 95 per cent of these cases, which is some disturbance of the activity of the ductless glands.

We all know these fatties. They are jolly, amusing little fellows. They are not only fat, but they are rather physically disproportionate. The boys incline to be feminine and the girls are superfeminine. These added characteristics indicate that the overweight is due to a disturbance of the ductless glands. Usually several are involved.

Guilty Glands

The pituitary gland, that wonderful little piece of flesh no bigger than the end of your little finger, which lies in the skull and regulates so many of our personality's temperamental and physical traits, is one of them. The thyroid gland is usually also involved; at least these cases respond by reducing weight if thyroid extract is given. These two glands influence many other functions, through their action or "trophic" influence on other glands in the body. This is what produces the feminine characteristics in these children.

They do eat a lot. They seem to have a craving and a need for candy and sweets, and it is very hard to keep these away from them, and they have an enormous capacity for storing sugar and starch, and they store it in the form of fat.

In treatment it is very hard to do much with them in the way of diet. They break over restraint. Their physical desires are greater than their will power (in which they are not so very much different from their older colleagues in obesity) and endocrine treatment often works wonders with them.

Fine Recovery

Thus in a boy 9 years of age who weighed 156 pounds treatment with pituitary extract and thyroid for four months resulted in a loss of 20 pounds, but this figure does not represent the real gain because he had gained in height 3½ inches.

Along with the decrease in weight and increase in height, many other physical characteristics improve under this treatment. It is well, if possible, to combine the treatment with dietary restrictions. This, as I said above, is difficult, but these children are sentitive to their overweight and if once they can be convinced that improvement is possible, they are willing to undergo considerable restriction in the matter of candy, sweets, ice cream, desserts and other concentrated fattening foods.

Tuna Fish Specialties Bring Refreshing Menu Change

ALONG THE WEST COAST, tuna goes by the name of "chicken of the sea." Tuna comes in several grades, the best being whitest, and the poorest, the darkest meat. It is an excellent food for salads, quick suppers or made into a more elaborate dish such as Sea Chicken Pie, which is almost a one-dish meal. Following are recipes for this "pie," served in tiny pastry shells.

SEA CHICKEN PIE

Flake 1 large can tuna and add to it 1 can peas, or the equivalent of cooked fresh peas, and 1 cup diced cooked carrots. Mix with 2 cups thin white sauce and place all in buttered casserole. Top with a layer of uncooked baking powder biscuits, or cover with biscuit dough, and bake from 15 to 20 minutes in a hot oven, 425 degrees.

TUNA A LA NEWBURG

Mix ¼ cup butter with ¼ cup flour, stir until well blended, then add 2½ cups rich milk. Cook until thick and smooth then add ½ pound can of tuna fish broken into flakes and ¼ pound mushrooms sliced and sauted. Season to taste with salt, white pepper, paprika and a faint touch of mace. Cook 5 minutes. Remove from fire and add 2 egg yolks that have been beaten with ½ cup milk. Simmer over hot water 2 to 3 minutes and add ¼ cup sherry. Do not cook longer or the sauce may curdle, but the Newburg may be placed over hot water to keep warm. Just before serving fold in 1 cup ripe olives sliced thin and place in tiny pastry shells.

Beauty Secrets

By CAROLYN ABBOTT

For Summer Beauty

SUN DRESSES and bathing suits focus attention on your back, shoulders and arms. Every defect shows up plainly. So, if you would expose these parts beautifully and serenely, start now to condition them at home.

Many blemishes can be eliminated by daily scrubbing with soap and water and a good bath brush, followed by brisk drying with a rough towel.

After drying, apply cleansing cream to shoulders and arms, working it in with a deep rotary movement. Remove the cream and pat on witch hazel, rubbing alcohol or some other stimulating lotion.

For very rough skin, skin food or almond oil should be rubbed in after the cream treatment and left on as long as possible. If the shoulders and back have pimples and black heads or other disfiguring eruptions, try a little pore cream or a pore mask, to remove them. Elbows can be smoothed with pumice stone dipped into olive oil.

A few simple exercises will stimulate the skin and correct such defects as sloping shoulders and hollows at the throat.

Rockville Police Hold Nine in Riot

Arrests Made As U. S. Weighs Probe of Attack On Religious Sect

Rockville (Md.) police last night arrested nine persons in connection with the attack upon Jehovah's Witnesses by a mob Wednesday and charged them with disorderly conduct.

All were released promptly under $500 bonds.

Meanwhile, Federal, State and county investigations of the raid appears certain in developments announced last night.

A deputation of the members of the sect, headed by Dr. A. R. Olson, Silver Spring chiropractor, who is company servant for Montgomery County, yesterday was closeted at the Department of Justice while they made complaint that their rights had been infringed. The Department of Justice, meanwhile, announced that "several angles" of the case would have to be investigated before the department would take action.

These, it was said, include the question of whether a "conspiracy" in the meaning of the Federal civil liberties statute was involved and whether the local police deliberately failed to act.

Commissioners to Meet

Meanwhile, Dr. Olson said that his group had been requested to send full information regarding the incident to Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor and to Attorney General William Walsh of Maryland. Full details of the complaint will be laid before both State officials today, Dr. Olson said.

Thomas Earle Hampton, president of the Montgomery County Board of Commissioners, announced last night he had called a special meeting of the county commissioners for 9 a. m. today.

"I have called this special meeting to investigate the incident which occurred in Rockville Wednesday night," Hampton said. "On Thursday morning I directed the chief of police (Charles M. Orme) to immediately prepare a detailed report on the matter. Such a report has not been made at 9 p. m. Friday night. There is every indication that something must be done in this situation. I feel that the county commissioners should take action.

"The commissioners cannot countenance what appears to be a resort to action which is contrary to State and county law and as president of the board I shall recommend that a separate investigation of the whole affair be conducted under the direction of this board to determine where the responsibility lies for permitting such an occasion to develop."

Dr. Olson Gives Account

Dr. Olson, a veteran of the A. E. F., declared that two policemen came to the meeting place of the Jehovah's Witnesses in Rockville and notified those attending services that "there is a mob downstairs demanding that you salute the flag. Are you willing to come downstairs and do so?"

"We told them of our religious belief that it is not proper to bow down to any man-made image and that we respect the flag and the Nation, but that we would not worship any man-made thing." He charged that the policemen failed to assist in any manner in the protection of the property.

Olson declared that members of the sect "love the principles of the American Constitution; I don't believe there is a more patriotic group in the country than the witnesses." He pointed out that similar attacks upon religious groups while police watched were forerunners of the establishments of dictatorships in Europe.

Orme yesterday said he was not prepared to make a statement, but that he would at the proper time.

Friends of Masonry—25,000 Strong—Turn Out for 'Night of Thrills'

Nowak, 2 feet tall, led the troupe of clowns and cavorted through the stands to the delight of Diane Ingram, 5, and Milton Taylor, 3

Friends of Washington Masonry—25,000 strong—turned out last night for the spectacle of a score of fraternal units on parade and an open-air circus at the annual "Night of Thrills" at Griffith Stadium for the benefit of the Masonic and Eastern Star Home.

Touching off the program was the crowning of 24-year-old Miss Orvella Huggins, of Hillside, Md., by Rear Admiral Harry G. Hamlet, U. S. C. G., retired. With a court of six princesses she reigned over the proceedings from a throne on the infield.

Simultaneously, the stadium gates opened for three platoons of National Guardsmen, led by Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, and the vanguard of colorfully uniformed marchers of the Masonic units and drill teams.

After the parade had encircled the field the following drill groups wheeled through their formations to the plaudits of their families and fellow members in the crowded stands: Washington Commandery, No. 1, Knights Templar; Rangers drill team, Tall Cedars of Lebanon; Arab Patrol, Almas Temple; Grotto drill team, Kalilipolis Grotto; De Molay Patrol, Order of De Molay, and Bethel No. 5 drill team, Job's Daughters.

The entire uniformed membership assembled in the center of the field for massing of colors. Then the evening was given over to the clowning and acrobatics of a circus troupe. Performing simultaneously in four rings were trapeze bar acrobats, jugglers, performing dogs and bicycle and roller skating experts as a 2-foot midget clown cavorted in front of the stands. Earlier the Quantico Marines bested Bolling Field Air Corps, 7 to 0, in a baseball game.

The program was brought to a patriotic finale as Rear Admiral Hamlet recited "The American Creed" and the crowd sang the National Anthem as guardsmen lowered the flag.

Deadlocked Murder Jury Goes to Bed

Verdict Reached On Only One Count In Herman Sirkis Robbery Killing

After deliberating 10 hours over the guilt of Lathan Daniel, 23, and John Butler, 27, both colored, who are charged with a holdup murder here last February 26, a jury of 12 men last night went to bed.

Members of the jury retired after reporting to Justice F. Dickinson Letts in District Court at 11 p. m. that they had reached a verdict on one count of the indictment against the men, but had not been able to agree on the second.

The conclusion reached by the jury on the first count was not revealed. Deliberations will be resumed at 10 a. m. today.

The jurors received the case from Justice Letts at 1:08 p. m. and remained closeted through the afternoon. At 7 p. m. they were taken out to dinner, and on their return deliberated until an hour before midnight.

Slain was Herman Sirkis, 42, by one of two men who raided his liquor store at 4824 Deane avenue northeast on the night of February 26. Daniel confessed firing the shot after Butler had gone back to the bandit car with about $35 he took from Sirkis' cash drawer while Daniel waved a pistol.

Daniel claimed he did not intend to kill the man, but only to scare him, and said the fatal shot was fired over his shoulder when Sirkis began shooting at him as he fled out the door to join Butler.

Assistant District Attorney John Jackson and John W. Fihelly, chief of the civil division, scoffed at Daniel's claim that he did not intend to kill and asked the death penalty for both men, on the ground that both were engaged in the felony of armed robbery.

The prosecutors were not allowed by the law of evidence to prove to the jury that Daniel and Butler were not caught until nearly two months after the Sirkis killing, in which more than a score of persons were victims of robberies. These victims identified Daniel and Butler and a third man who worked with them. Several victims said the robbers warned them not to resist unless they wanted "what the man in Deanewood got."

Daniel and Butler confessed several of these later robberies.

Attorneys Charles E. Ford and Lawrence Koenigsberger, who were assigned by the court to defend Daniel, asked that the man be found guilty of second degree murder and given a life sentence, contending that he did not premeditate the murder.

Attorney Josiah Lyman was assigned to defend Butler. He urged that the man be acquitted of the killing.

D.C. Pedestrian Traffic Deaths Drop 25 Pc.

Pedestrian traffic fatalities in Washington were nearly 25 per cent less in the first 12 months the pedestrian regulation was in force than during the preceding similar period, it was revealed last night at a meeting of the District Traffic Advisory Council.

Prepared by the Department of Vehicles and Traffic, the report was presented to the meeting by a committee of the council. It pointed out that 43 pedestrians were killed on District streets between May, 1939, and April, 1940, while 56 were killed between May, 1938, and April, 1939.

Crossing between intersections, an act that proved fatal to 36 persons in the year before adoption of the regulation, caused 22 deaths in the year following the regulation. One person was killed crossing outside a crosswalk last year, while three were killed this year.

$7,500 Budget Adopted

Six persons died as the result of crossing on a red signal in 1938-39; four persons were killed as a result of the same violation in 1939-40. The figures of the report did not include fatalities from such acts as coasting in the street and hitching rides.

The group of nearly 40 members of the council adopted unanimously a $7,500 budget for a traffic safety educational fund in 1941. A WPA contribution of $4,500 for such work as publication of a periodical, preparation of posters and other forms of public education, swells the total to be expended for educational purposes to $12,000.

Included in the council's budget is $1,000 for printing on sidewalks, $1,000 for publicity releases in preparation of radio scripts and $500 for motion picture trailers.

Better Lights Needed

Better street lighting at night and off-street parking in the daytime were recommended by Washington I. Cleveland, department manager of the American Automobile Association as the best means of effectively curbing pedestrian deaths in the city.

"Death after dark is the all-important item that is seldom mentioned," he told the meeting. "Thirty per cent of the traffic is at night, and 60 per cent of the traffic deaths occur between sunset and sunrise. We need better street lighting in Washington if we're going to cut down on fatalities."

Uniformity of signs on loading platforms pointing either to the left or the right, or in both directions, was suggested. Inspector Arthur E. Miller, attending a council meeting officially for the first time, said that police themselves are often confused by the purposes of the signs.

Parking Changes Proposed

It was recommended that special details of police be sent to outlying areas of the city to direct pedestrians at traffic lights on certain days of the month, or that patrolmen pause frequently on their beats at intersections where police are not usually posted to "keep pedestrians on step with the pedestrian regulations."

Minor parking regulation changes were proposed in 14 streets of the Northwest section, two streets in the Northeast section, and two streets in the Southeast. Reasons for changes in most cases were offered as a means of avoiding traffic congestion. Four changes in one-way streets were proposed.

The House yesterday voted to insist for the second time on a proviso in the labor-security supply bill which would bar further noncivil service appointments in the two Federal agencies from States which have exceeded their proportional quota on a population basis.

Representative Tarver (Democrat), of Georgia, in asking the House to further insist on its stand, stated that the majority of the Senate conferees agreed with the House, but that they would not recede because of deference "to a certain distinguished Senator," who is not a conferee.

The States of Virginia and Maryland and New York would feel the principal effects of the House proviso if it becomes a part of the Appropriation Act.

Representative Martin J. Kennedy (Democrat), of New York, suggested that this is not the time to press the issue as a condition might arise in which the Federal Government could not obtain sufficient personnel.

Tarver replied that the State of New York had a "disproportionate share"

The House language states that "none of the funds appropriated may be used to pay the salary of any person appointed to a noncivil service position if the effect of such an appointment is to increase the number of noncivil service employes from the state of residence of any such noncivil service appointee beyond the number of noncivil service employes to which the State is entitled on a population basis."

Senate Delays Action on Judge Bentley

Senate action on the renomination of Judge Fay Bentley will be delayed at least until after the Congressional recess, it appeared yesterday as the Judiciary subcommittee hearing finished the third day, with more witnesses to be heard today. The hearings will resume at 10 a. m.

Senator McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, yesterday disclosed that some persons had expressed fear of "reprisals" if they testified against Judge Bentley and had sought to tell him their complaints in private. The Senator told them, he said, that such testimony would be valueless.

"The Senate is not hamstrung in taking care of reprisals," he said. He explained that he advised the complainants to testify if they had grievances, and suggested that their fears were imaginative.

Keane Reproved

Several women whose sons were involved in Juvenile Court cases and a few lawyers testified against Miss Bentley at yesterday's hearings.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Michael Keane was reproved indirectly by Senator McCarran when he took responsibility for changing a charge against a youth from failing to give the right of way to speeding. Mrs. Anna R. Chambers, of the 6400 block of Western avenue, Chevy Chase, Md., had made the complaint.

Keane insisted that the practice was not uncommon "since police officers sometimes do not know so well as lawyers what the charge should be."

"If you charged a man with robbery," interjected McCarran, "you would not try on a murder charge, would you?"

According to Law

Miss Blanche C. Howlett, of 2801 Adams Mill road, complained with some emotion that the court would not reveal the names of young vandals who had damaged her property. Keane explained that the law forbids the court to make public the information.

Richard H. Atkinson, colored lawyer, asserted that Judge Bentley appeared often to object to jury trials, but Keane came to her defense, insisting that she welcomed jury trials.

Chevy Chase Girl New 'Sweetheart' Of Sigma Chi

A pretty 20-year-old brunette, Helen Eugenie Toomey, George Washington University sophomore, was named sweetheart of Sigma Chi at the seventy-second dance of the university chapter at Kenwood Golf and Country Club last night.

Miss Toomey was presented a gold cup by last year's sweetheart, Mary Lou Nash. The names of all the sweethearts of the chapter are engraved on the cup, and a smaller loving cup is presented to each year's selection.

Miss Toomey prepared for George Washington University at Georgetown Convent. Her home is at 3823 Morrison street, Chevy Chase, Md.

Bryan and Martin Named Seal Aides

Irving Bryan and William C. Martin, jr., were named by the Commissioners yesterday as assistant corporation counsels beginning July 1. Both were recommended by Corporation Counsel Seal.

Bryan, secretary to Engineer Commissioner David McCoach, will be assigned to Police Court, it was announced. Martin is assistant clerk in the House Appropriations Committee and has recently been assigned to the District subcommittee. He will work at the District Building.

JAYCEE GAS BAG SCARES WASHINGTONIANS—The Amarillo, Tex., delegation to the Junior Chamber of Commerce covention gave Washington a bad scare yesterday by playing with a balloon. Members were filling it with gas atop the Mayflower Hotel when persons in the neighborhood spotted it, thought it was the Goodyear blimp Enterprise, and called police, the hotel management and newspapers—by the hundreds. The delegates explained they were only trying to advertise one of Amarillo's leading products—helium

Dr. Ball Named Dean

Dr. Daniel S. Robinson, president of Butler University, announced today appointment of Dr. Philip M. Ball, president of Chevy Chase Junior College, as dean of the Butler College of Education. It was reported by the Associated Press in Indianapolis.

BALL

Dr. Ball formerly was principal of the University of Iowa Experimental High School and also taught in the university. He became president of the Chevy Chase school in 1938.

It is expected that Dr. Ball will take up his new duties next fall. He is absent from his home, 114 West Thernapple street, Chevy Chase, Md., for the summer.

Appeal for Guardsmen

The Last Man Club of Washington yesterday forwarded an appeal to District employers, including the United States Government, to grant members of the National Guard leaves of absence enabling them "to fulfill their patriotic duties."

The appeal asked further that Guardsmen be given assurance that the exercise of their patriotic duties "shall not debar them from returning to the positions they occupied in civilian life upon completion of such service."

Bede Johnson Elected

Miss Bede Johnson, of the Chastleton Hotel, was elected president of the District of Columbia Public School Association at an annual meeting last night in the District Building. Miss Johnson is former secretary of the organization.

Other new officers are John T. Thomas, first vice president; George Hodgkins, second vice president; William J. Tucker, third vice president; Mrs. J. Caney, fourth vice president, and Charles M. Pidgeon, treasurer.

Church Youth Denounces Training Plan

President Roosevelt's plan of youth conscription was characterized as "rather totalitarianistic" yesterday by delegates to the tenth annual District Intermediate Christian Endeavor Convention at Potomac Heights Community Church.

The participants in the war-peace seminar expressed disapproval of compulsory military training, agreed America is in a "frenzy" over inadequate defense, declared nonresistance to be the best defense, and insisted CCC boys should not be forced to enlist.

Demonstrating their opposition to war, all of the delegates met at the dinner table last night to rock the parish hall with this ditty:

"I don't want to march with the infantry, ride with the cavalry, shoot with the artillery. I don't want to fly over the enemy, I want to be friendly." Before the words died away, the diners were exchanging warm handclasps.

Miss Vinchenza Spano, intermediate president, conducting last night's closing worship service in the church auditorium, presented Bible quiz and "sharpshooter's" awards to Donald Hawthorne, of Wallace Memorial United Presbyterian Church, and Beth Bon Durant, of Mount Rainier Christian Church, respectively. Awards for attendance at monthly union meetings went to Keller Memorial Lutheran Church, banner; Mount Rainier Christian Church, neon Endeavor sign, and Wallace Church, Endeavor shield.

Orrin Tucker and His Orchestra, Bonnie Baker Steal Capitol Show

Overflow Audience Gives Stage Bill A Genuine Ovation; Also Applauds Film

"FLORIAN." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of the novel by Felix Salten, adapted to the screen by Noel Langley, Gene Hercses and James Kevin McGuinness, featuring Robert Young and Helen Gilbert, with Charles Coburn, Lee Bowman, Reginald Owen, Lucile Watson, Irina Baronova, William R. Davidson, George Lloyd, George Irving, Charles Judels, Dick Elliott, Adrian Morris and Florian, the horse, in the title role. Directed by Edwin L. Marin. Reviewed Friday morning. At Loew's Capitol Theater.

A sympathetic overflow audience greeted the happy ending of "Florian" with an unusually enthusiastic round of applause at yesterday's first performance at Loew's Capitol Theater. The hurricane of hand-clapping with which it later greeted Orrin Tucker and His Orchestra and "Wee" Bonnie Baker, the ingenuous, baby-voiced songstress, however, left the stage portion of the entertainment in overwhelming domination of the bill.

BELL

Mr. Tucker has a way with him, and so has his orchestra, and so has Bonnie Baker. Exuberant and smiling, the maestro sings and saxophones a bit, in addition to putting his boys and girls through their paces. There are times when one wishes the band were not quite so stridently brassy, but there are numerous other times when he is glad it is instrumented exactly as it is. Their trickiest number is the electric light conceit, in which illuminated notes dance about the darkened stage to demonstrate just what it is that makes an orchestra click. The choruses and glees span a wide range, too, and altogether the talented group is a smash hit.

The inimitable Miss Baker is, of course, unique among contemporary canaries. Her methods are strictly her own, unembellished by ought save a smile, twinkling eyes and dimples. With the voice of a 6-year-old and the artistic discretion of a seasoned diva, "Wee" Bonnie is as sure-fire as a match in a powder keg. Yesterday's 3,500 customers at the initial performance did everything but tear down the house about her and it was by no means a certainty that even that wouldn't happen.

Over and above Miss Baker and the specialists among his instrumentalists, Mr. Tucker interlards his spirited offering with the nimble tap-dancing of Wally and Verdyn Stapleton, as clever a team of youthful skill as ever rattled the boards of a stage, and those incomparable athletes, Les Ghezzis, master gymnasts and hand-balancers. The feats of muscularity they perform are practically impossible.

Florian, the superb white Lippizan stallion, is the real star of the picture that bears his name. It would be an even more engrossing film than it is were he not so often absent from the developments that begin in Austria before the First World War, carrying on across the battlefields, through the fall of the Hapsburgs, the Revolution and culminating finally in America. The early romantic rivalry, involving Archduke Oliver, Trina, the ballet dancer; the Princess Diana and Anton, the horse trainer, is soon lost and the war doesn't integrate too well with the rest of it, but Florian—that is something else again.

Descended from a long line of equine aristocrats, this noble steed demonstrates with dignity and obvious pride the heights to which equine intelligence can be developed. His "personal narrative" would be the story of Black Beauty, were he not snow white. A human cast that includes Robert Young, Helen Gilbert, Charles Coburn, Lee Bowman, Reginald Owen, Lucile Watson, Irina Boronova and the others listed in the small-type paragraph at the top of this column struggles valiantly to be as impressive as their quadruped star.

The animal motif is carried out by inclusion of "Just a Little Bull," a Terrytoon comedy in color, among the supplementaries, and Lew Lehr's tomfoolery with a huge simian in the Movietone News. An almost complete absence of allusion to the war in the newsreel helps to preserve the unity of a bill that bids fair to set a summertime attendance record.

A Princess and a Horse Trainer

as the romantic leads in "Florian," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production currently on view at Loew's Capitol Theater, of which the equine actor that plays the title role is the real star. Charles Coburn, Lee Bowman, Lucile Watson, Reginald Owen and Irina Boronova are among the distinguished human players who additionally support the Lippizan stallion

Everything Goes Hilarious At the Earle This 'New Year's'

By Richard L. Coe

"THE GHOST BREAKERS." Paramount picturization of the play by Paul Dickey and Charles W. Goddard, adapted to the screen by Walter De Leon, co-starring Bob Hope and Paulette Goddard, with Richard Carlson, Paul Lukas, Willie Best, Pedro de Cordoba, Virginia Brissac, Noble Johnson, Anthony Quinn, Tom Dugan, Paul Fix and Lloyd Corrigan. Directed by George Marshall. Reviewed Friday afternoon. At the Earle Theater.

Should you be seeking surcease from this weary world—as who isn't?—you'll find it in Bob Hope's latest comedy, "The Ghost Breakers," a happy riot on the Earle screen. To make one's visit even pleasanter, the Earle has had the welcome dementia to stage a New Years' party, complete with balloons, ice cream for a lucky dozen and, most important, much droll buffoonry.

With which splash we may as well admit that for some time now the never-abashed Bob Hope has been our favorite funny fellow. His humor is calm, easy and unexpected: "The girls used to call me Pilgrim," says Bob to heroine Paulette Goddard, "because I always make a little progress." Said in pedestrian fashion that's a trifle forced, but in Hope style its giddily funny and a single one of a flimful of them.

If you recall The Cat and the Canary" as happily as these eyes, you may have an idea of what this follow-up for Hope and Miss Goddard is like. She inherits a gloomy castle in Cuba which a weird group of folk are trying to keep her away from. Bob is a gossip chatterer of the airlanes who not unnaturally gets the idea he has murdered a man. He hides in Miss Goddard's Havana-bound trunk and where there were two mysteries, now there is one, but a juicy one it is.

Chilly Sessions Abound

Ghosts, voodoos, zombies and lesser creatures, such as bats and bugs, dwell on Miss Goddard's darksome isle and it's up to our side to clear the mystery. There's a rather rational solution, but one would have been quite convinced that ghosts and dead bodies really go peckin' 'round during the night, so chilly is the atmosphere created.

Hope's valueless assistant through all this is one Alex, a goggle-eyed colored boy, adept at emulating terror. Bob is admittedly frightened himself but keeps a brave front to reassure the lovely Miss Goddard and leaves the teeth-chattering to this valet, whole-heartedly mimed by Willie Best.

It wouldn't be fair to tell you some of the few gags we do remember in this one. Their spontaneity is what counts, for while not particularly the newest thing this side of the Civil War, they are cleverly introduced. The company plays with high humor for their task and altogether if you don't have a happy, unsophisticated time at "The Ghost Breakers," you might as well hunt up some worms.

A Novel Revue

After pretty Eileen Ritter has led some Gay Nineties songs in her "Sing a Song With Mike" feature, the curtain goes up on New Year's Eve, 1896. From then until next winter's New Year party, the acts are familiar and funny. There's Jack Lavier, the mustachioed gent who's a bit afraid of his flying trapeze; Rita and Ed Oehman, singing and dancing with the pep a breakfast food is supposed to bestow, and Pansy, that marvelously human horse after whose act two grooms join the beautiful blonde trainer in taking bows for their charge. Sue Ryan, that tireless bundle of energy, takes some emphatic pokes at singers in general to the evident relish of the house.

Ultimate shout in these uninhibited proceedings is Eileen Ritter's appearance as the girl in the star, swaying over the heads of the audience, bestowing ice cream on bewildered customers. As we said back there somewhere, if you can find a seat, you'll have some diverting relaxation at the Earle this week.

"U. S. Navy, 1940" Augments "My Favorite Wife," at Keith's

You'll laugh yourself into convulsions most of the time at Keith's this week, then, all-of-a-sudden, turn deadly serious. That's what comes of combining the second week of "My Favorite Wife" with the March of Time's current dissection of the American Navy in this graceless year of 1940. A misplaced wife may lead to a lot of fun, but misplaced battleships are something else again.

If Oscars were awarded for making audiences happy, "My Favorite Wife" would annex the whole collection of this year's awards. Its dialogue must have been written by someone with a head full of feathers and the direction and acting are in strictly matching style. Impossible as it seems, Irene Dunn and Cary Grant are even a shade funnier than in "The Awful Truth." The courtroom scenes should discourage movie-makers from trying future courtroom scenes. There's never been anything to compare to them, between the ungodly complications that arise and the stupendous playing of Granville Bates, as the harassed judge.

"My Favorite Wife" is naughty, too—very naughty sometimes, but mostly by way of implications done very skimmingly, untouchable by the Hays office. It's the ideal summertime comedy. If you want to be mean to yourself, don't go to see it.

Grimness, as well as its usual factuality and tersness, distinguish the current March of Time, dealing with the "U. S. Navy, 1940." There is small attempt to gloss over the fact that our Navy is not sufficiently large or well equipped to protect this country at present, let alone to go rampaging around in foreign parts. It is also stated frankly that many months and years will be needed to translate appropriations into ships and personnel.

Pictures All Branches

All branches of the Navy are pictured, including the aviation section, the Coast Guard and the Marines, who look especially fit and tough enough to cope with any blitzkrieg boys. The shots of battleships and combat planes are impressive and meancing. The pity is that there aren't more of them.

Though the Panama Canal is the joint responsibility of the Army and Navy, it also is brought in as the key to both Pacific and Atlantic defense and stress is laid on its vulnerability and that it will take until 1946 to install the new locks tardily ordered by Congress.

While "U. S. Navy, 1940" is sane and nonalarmist, its very cold logic will arouse a feeling of apprehension. All the facts it recites have been detailed in the daily press, but their correlation and summary pile up into a massive warning that time's been a wastin' too long.

Master Donald Duck's adventures in love and jitterbugging have been held over. The boat races were the only part of the news reel we liked. The warlike balance of it was thrilling—too thrilling.

The New Yorker

New York, June 21.

SUCCESS: The newspapers this week announced that Fred A. Willis, who had been assistant to Bill Paley, president of C. B. S., had received a new post with the Thompson Automatic Arms Corporation. Willis' work with the Thompson Co, began last fall. When he thought the time was ready, he brought the Allied purchasing commissioners to the factory, to make their own tests . . . To prove that the Thompson machine gun is a good precision instrument, Willis had the various parts placed in separate barrels, and the commissioners, selecting one part at random from each barrel, were able to assemble a gun which fired 600 shots a minute. After 10,000 shots were fired, the gun's wooden handle broke, off, because its barrel was red hot—but it continued to fire. The gun then was placed into a refrigerator, at 30 below. The ice then was removed, and again it fired 10,000 shots . . . Finally the gun was dismantled, and each part buried in sand. The parts then were unearthed, re-assembled and the gun again was operative. . . . By August 1, Willis will be able to produce 5,000 of these Tommy guns each week.

SONG: The Republican National Committee has announced that the national convention in Philadelphia will be opened with a chorus singing "Ballad for Americans," the song Paul Robeson made famous on the "Pursuit of Happiness" program . . . The Republicans who are making this song their rallying cry must have forgotten that it was written for "Sing for Your Supper," a production of the WPA Federal Theater—a Government project which the G. O. P. helped kill.

NAME: Elia Kazan, who appeared in "Liliom," arrived in Hollywood recently to portray his first movie role. Kazan had been in Hollywood once before, under contract to Walter Wanger, but had no work assigned to him . . . The producer first insisted that Kazan change his name, because too many people might mispronounce it. After hunting through the phone book, the producer selected the name "Cezanne" . . . "But that's the name of a famous artist," Kazan protested. "Really?" he was assured. "Well don't worry about it. After you make one or two pictures, they'll never know he existed."

LAMENT: Eugenie Leontovich, wife of Gregory Ratoff, again has achieved prominence, by her current performance in "Four Sons." Ratoff and Leontovich had their first quarrel when Eugenie won her first acclaim here, in "Grand Hotel." Her husband went to Chicago, to see her while the show was touring. "The railroad wheels seem to be saying 'I'm going to see my Mamusha,'" Ratoff reported later, "but when she saw me, she said: 'Get out of my sight, quick.'" "That must have sounded terrible," a friend consoled. "Nothing could have sounded worse than that" . . . "Oh, it sounded worse than that," Ratoff expanded, "because she said it in Russian."

CHANCE: A newspaperman approached Nick the Greek, and pleaded: "Where can I get some big dough in a hurry?" . . . "Can you raise $250?" asked Nick, and the reporter admitted that he could . . . "Then go out and bet it on Gedoy, against Louis, but get 7 to 1 odds" . . . "7 to 1?" the reporter frowned. "But who'd ever give me such odds?" . . . Nick whispered: "I'll give it to you."

FACT: Frank Craven, now starring in the movie version of "Our Town," was accorded the best reviews he's ever received in his long career. This ends a story which began in France, a few years ago, when Jed Harris took the first draft, written in longhand, of Thornton Wilder's play, brought it back to New York, and immediately wired Craven, who was reluctant to interrupt his film career. "This play will win the Pulitzer Prize," Harris assured him, "but I'll insert this clause in your contract; That, at any time before the opening, you can quit the show, if you don't agree that this is the finest role you've ever played" . . . Craven signed the contract.

ENTERPRISE: Spivy, who entertained for many years at Tony's is building her own night club in a penthouse on Fifty-seventh street. Spivy is calling the new club Vache-sur-le-toit—"Bull-on-the-roof' . . . Five years ago the owners of the Paris Club brough suit in New York to restrain the owner of another Fifty-seventh street cafe from calling it "Boeuf-sure-le-toit." After a lengthy trial, the New Yorker won. Two days later the club closed for lack of business.

CHALLENGE: Jimmy Kelly, the Greenwich Village night club proprietor, supped with Jimmy Durante in Sardi's. Jimmy ordered an orangeade. "I'll top you," Kelly announced. "We'll have champagne, instead." The champagne was served . . . Durante then ordered a cheese sandwich. "I'll top you," Kelly continued. "We're going to have roast chicken." The chicken was served . . . When the bill was presented, Durante drew a $100 bill. "This bill's all I have. Sardi can't change it," Durante laughed. "so you pay" . . . "I'll top you," Kelly countered, and exhibited his own wallet—which contained only a single $500 bill.

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

(While Louella O. Parsons is on her Honolulu vacation, this column is being written by her daughter, Harriett Parsons, producer of "Screen Snapshots.")

Hollywood, June 21 (INS). Associated British Films, one of the major English motion picture outfits, is planning to pack bag and baggage and move to Canada. John Maxwell and Walter Mycroft, who head the company, have instructed Hollywood Agent Fred Brisson to start lining up talent for them immediately. They'll build a whole new organization with actors, directors and technical experts culled from Hollywood. Probable location of their new quarters will be Vancouver, which is only eight hours by air from our film capital and will make it easy for them to draw talent from here. Furthermore, they would not have to build sound stages in Vancouver since movies have been made there before and there are stages already constructed.

LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Maxwell and Mycroft will bring with them only one star, Carl Brisson, and three story properties, "Cavalier of the Night," "Door With Seven Locks" and "The Manxman." Carl, who starred in "The Manxman" as a silent, will also do the remake. Hope he pays Hollywood a visit since he and his good wife (and superb cook) Cleo made many friends when Carl was here appearing in American films.

Mary Beth Hughes, who in the face of some pretty expert competition, managed to register a sharply etched portrayal as the pretty wife of the fanatically Nazi-minded son, Alan Curtis, in "Four Sons," is being rewarded with a nice build-up at Twentieth Century-Fox. She's currently playing the lead opposite Jawn, the Barrymore, in "The Great Profile," and now her studio announces plans to star her in an original story, "Cristobal." She'll play a sexy entertainer in a Canal Zone cafe. Lamar Trotti is writing the screen play and Harry Joe Brown will be associate producer.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Even the celebs at Mrs. Eddie Robinson's charity garden party gasped when Marlene Dietrich, raffling off a kiss, got a bid of $1,000 and when rich, retired Easterner, William Gardner, topped it with $1,025, chins hit the Robinson greensward. Paulette Goddard went over big with a hot rumba, and all in all, a tidy sum must have been raised. Half goes to the Red Cross, half to Ann Lehr's Hollywood Guild; Bob Stack's energetic mama, Betsi, is putting on a revival of "Journey's End" at the Stack Manse for the Red Cross and Robert will do one of the top roles.

Edmund O'Brien, back from his tour with the Leigh-Olivier press-lambasted "Romeo and Juliet," resuming romantic matters with his former heart, Nancy Kelly. They broke up when she turned to Irving Cummings, jr.; Bob Riskin must really care for Frances Robinson. He offered to give her his horse, Alex the Great, when the colt was leading the field during a race at Hollywood Park. But after Alex faded and finished dead last Frances said "No thanks;" Hobard Bosworth, Hollywood's grand old man, celebrates his fiftieth anniversary as an actor this Sunday.

Marian Elizabeth Codd, daughter of TCF Official Jack Codd, said "I do" to Architect Walter M. Simonds at a church ceremony Wednesday night; Mary Martin dashed into town yesterday, posed for some Para publicity stills, and dashed back to Bridegroom Dick Halliday at Del Monte; the Fred MacMurrays celebrated their fourth anniversary last night with a small shindig at home; after rehearsing rhumba routines all day at TCF, Betty Grable rhumbaed over to Ciro's with Desi Arnaz and continued to rhumba till 1 a. m. Betty's rumored heart, wealthy New Yorker Alexis Thompson, planes out here Sunday to spend a day with her.

That's all today. No cracks.

In Hollywood

—With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, June 21.

"All This, and Heaven Too" is right in there, running neck-and-neck with "Gone With the Wind" and "Rebecca." It's that kind of a picture. Bette Davis and Charles Boyer, both tops in their class, have never teamed before, but I'll bet they will again, by public demand. It has the romantic, nostalgic quality of "Mayerling," and even in its sadness, you were sorry you hadn't lived in that age. I really think it's Bette's finest performance. She's restrained, and at times reminiscent of Helen Hayes.

Boyer—well, you girls will go crazy about him—everybody does. And why not? He's got what it takes. Barbara O'Neill could have hammed up the duchesse, but she played it to the hilt beautifully.

And the little 4-year-old Richard Nichols, without any screen training, stops the show.

There wasn't a performance in it that wasn't star calibre. I guarantee that even your husband will be afraid to speak to you on his way out of the theater until he blows his nose. Yes, the combination of Bette and Boyer in this beautiful picture is "All This, and Heaven Too."

In "The Great Profile" Mary Beth Hughes has to give Jack Barrymore a resounding slap on the face. He returns the compliment by putting her over his knee, and just as he was about to bear down heavily, he stopped and said: "I just can't do it—you're too cute." Yet only the day before, Elaine asked Jack how he liked Mary Beth Hughes. Jack said, "Who's she?" "Your leading lady," snapped Elaine. "Oh! Is that her name?"

A funny yarn behind Vicki ("Grand Hotel") Baum's newest screenplay, "Grand Central Market." She collaborated with Louis Groveman, one of the Metro waiters, who sold Vicki the idea where he was serving two sunny-side-ups. Now that Mervyn LeRoy wants to produce it, Louis threatens to quit his waitering, but Vicki swears she won't write another line with him if he does. "One story," says Vicki, "doesn't make an author. But one regular job can keep a man going till he becomes one."

*X WASHINGTON: SATURDAY, JUNE 22, 1940 15

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

St. Louis, Mo., June 21.—Inevitably some guy would come up with the bright idea that what is wrong with the Washington ball team is Bucky Harris. "A new manager is what the Nats need," writes Mr. A. S. W., who times his diatribe against Harris with the Nats' worst Western trip in years.

POVICH

Harris has been butching the job of managing the Nats all right. A batting average of exactly .000 in 59 games this season. He hasn't driven a run across the plate, and he hasn't pitched the Nats to a single victory. He's at the age where he can't go to his left any more and he was never any great shucks at going to his right. Of course, there are a few other Washington athletes who aren't doing so very well either.

There is at least one fellow in the league who could do a better job of getting the Nats up there than Harris. The first name that suggests itself is Jimmy Foxx. What a whale of a manager he'd be. He'd get the Nats some runs with the kind of swat he has, and he'd plug up that horrible vacancy at first base. And Clark Griffith could surround Foxx with some potent assistant managers—playing assistant managers, of course.

It would be nice to have Assistant Manager Charley Ruffing out there pitching, and Assistant Manager Charley Gehringer playing second base, and Assistant Managers Joe Di Maggio, Charley Keller and Ted Williams in the outfield. That's the trouble with Harris. He doesn't have enough good assistant managers—guys who can carry out the deep-laid plans that get runs for the club or execute such strategical niceties as holding the opposition runless.

Harris certainly has been derelict in his duties as manager of the Nats. What has he been doing about it when the opposition has been murdering his pitchers? Why doesn't he grab a bat and slug across some runs on his own account? His club has speed, why doesn't he give 'em the sign to steal first base? He's not capitalizing on that speed, it's plain enough to see.

In six of their first seven games in the West, the Nats scored only one run. What kind of management is that? Doesn't Harris know that he does not have the kind of a pitching staff that can win games with one run? Why doesn't he impress upon his boys the fact that they must score more than one run—that one run won't do? Why doesn't he bolster his offense, and his defense while he is about it?

Of course, there are times when Harris is pretty helpless to do anything about winning a ball game. Especially when Dutch Leonard isn't pitching. When Leonard is pitching, one run might do, but when any of his other seven pitchers are on the mound, Harris ought to see to it that he gets a nice bundle of runs. Look at all the runs Del Baker gets for the Tigers, and Baker, like Harris, is a bench manager.

Why does Harris tolerate Zeke Bonura at first base? The big fellow lets in more runs than he drives in. Of course, the fact that Bonura is the only first baseman on the ball club may have something to do with it. At second base, Harris has Jimmy Pofahl who is doing a tolerable enough job, except that he isn't a second baseman. Somebody ought to tell Harris as much. Maybe he doesn't know it. Then, again, maybe Pofahl is the best second baseman he has.

Harris has Cecil Travis, a third baseman, playing shortstop. What's ailing him anyway—Harris, not Travis. Doesn't he know third from short? That's what is the trouble with the Nats—Guys playing out of position—especially after the ball is hit. Harris has only one very flimsy excuse for butchering his infield the way he is doing and it follows: He has no first baseman, no second baseman, and no third baseman. The only big league infielder on the team is Travis.

Another trouble with Harris' management is that he didn't put the brakes on the boys down in Florida. That's when he let them unload all of their nice long hits—when it didn't count. Anybody could have told Harris that the time to hit the ball was after the season started, but Harris let 'em go ahead and get all of their important hits out of their systems in February and March. He's just a wastrel.

Harris apparently was the last guy to find out that George Case was no centerfielder. He told Case to get under way with the crack of the bat—but he forgot to tell him to get under way in the proper direction, which was gross negligence. As a result Case has been missing balls he should catch. In Cleveland the other day when he was playing centerfield he might just as well have run away and hid at the crack of the bat, he misjudged a ball that much. The least Harris could do is rig a saddle on Case's ear, and guide him.

Yep that's what the Nats need, a new manager—but he must be a playing manager—a heavy slugger who can go to bat three times in one inning, play either the outfield or infield by himself and pitch four times a week if necessary. That kind of a manager would show up Harris.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, June 21.—Home-cooking now must take second place as the most over-estimated thing on our semicivilized sphere. Baseball "riots" are the new undisputed champions. To continue to dignify those fish-wife spats with the word "riot" is to misuse criminally a fine breath-taking English word. There never has been or never will be a baseball "riot" which wouldn't be booed out of a fourth-rate prize-ring.

CONSIDINE

The recent disturbance between the Brooklyns and the Cards is a case in point. The only guy hurt to date is Medwick, who got a bump on the head before the allegedly horrific clash of raging behometh began. Nobody yet can tell how much pneumonia has swept through Flatbush as a result of the fist-shaking, missed punches, and "Yeah, you're another" activities.

As far as can be learned the only casualties directly traceable to the so-called gory confusion of knuckles and anger are:

1—Enos Slaughter, suffering from a slight scratch where Van Mungo landed a sneak punch.

2—Mungo, suffering from a severe case of surprise.

3—The baseball cap of Bob Bowman, which was knocked into the dirt by a round-house punch from behind by Larry MacPhail.

4—MacPhail, suffering from a painful tennis elbow, from gesticulating.

5—There must be a 5, but we can't think of one just now.

6—Mickey Owen, suffering from bursitis—from missing Durocher.

MacPhail reached the supreme heights of his often hysterical baseball career, issued challenges until his throat croaked, took the case to Ford Frick, then to the District Attorney's office and openly accused Bowman (who hit Medwick) of a premeditated act.

We are just beginning now to separate the chaff of MacPhail's yells of rage from the ballyhoo.

Before Wednesday night's game, MacPhail burst into the Cardinal dressing room. Reporters followed him, to be in on the story of the murderous one-man assault, and stood behind him without his knowledge. Imagine their surprise when Larry launched into a fatherly little talk about how he had known most of these clean-limbed, clear-minded sportsmen at Columbus, etc. The speech finished in a patter of polite hand-clapping, the kind that might have greeted a Helen Hoskinson dowager who has just finished an address on the care and breeding of the domestic titmouse.

Nobody doubts their courage, but no sensible person can believe other than that big league ball players would much prefer to run instead of fight. They simply have no stomach for it, and the reasons for that are that they don't get paid for it and and they're afraid they might hurt their arms. The "riots" that break out from time to time, therefore, consist mainly of "sassing," a dirty word or two, magnificent glaring, and occasionally a little pushing of the kind that wouldn't cause a lady subway jockey to miss a single stroke in her gum chewing. Ball players take ten times as much punishment sliding inconspicuously into a heavily protected base (or being slid into) than they take in these overly ballyhooed meetings of brute force and the tiger instinct.

We bore witness to the great "riot" between the Yankees and the Senators, down in Washington in 1933—a fearsome tumult which resulted in a midweek crowd of 45,000 the next time they met. It all started when Ben Chapman slid into Buddy Myer. Buddy jumped up and down, but Ben was squirming on the ground like a fat boa and thus escaped being ventilated by Myer's spikes. Then he got up, clutched Myer with a good deal less fervor than Veloz grapples

G. U.'s Blozis Breaks American Shot Mark

Registers 56 Feet in Trial Throw

Effort Shatters N. C. A. A. Record; Hoya Qualifies For Discus Finals

By the Associated Press

Minneapolis, June 21.—Collegiate track and field's top "muscle man"—big Al Blozis of Georgetown—strong-armed his way to No. 1 honors in the nineteenth national collegiate track and field championship at Minnesota's Memorial Stadium today.

The sophomore giant tossed the shotput 56 feet ½ inch for a new American and N. C. A. A. record, a performance which overshadowed the great qualifying place battle staged by the defending team champion, Southern California, and its long-time West Coast rival, Stanford University.

Stanford indicated it would make a great bid to crack U. S. C.'s string of five straight team victories by gaining eight qualifying places in tomorrow's finals, to seven for the Trojans.

Mark Made Indoors

Considerable confusion surrounded Blozis' great shotput performance because it was made indoors, rain having forced the shot and discus trial into the Gopher field house. The question of whether the toss would be recognized as an American mark was considered lengthily by the N. C. A. A. committee, with the meet referee, Maj. John L. Griffith, announcing it would stand as an American standard.

Blozis, sensation of the indoor season, made his record heave on his third try of the qualifying program. The previous N. C. A. A. and American record was 55 feet, 10⅜ inches, made last year by Elmer Hackney, of Kansas State. Hackney today was able to do no better than 49 feet, 10¼ inches. Blozis holds the indoor record of 55 feet, 1 inch.

The rain which sent Blozis in-

Armstrong Kayos Junior In 3d Round

Portland, Me., June 21 (AP).—Henry Armstrong, of Los Angeles, Calif., successfully defended his world's welterweight boxing crown tonight by scoring a third-round technical knockout over Paul Junior, veteran Lewiston challenger. Armstrong weighed 144 and Junior 142½.

A flurry of Armstrong rights felled Junior four times in the third round, three of them for nine counts. On Junior's fourth trip to the canvas, Referee Johnny Martin stepped in and halted the massacre.

The fight, the second between the boxers in two months, was witnessed by 5,367 fans who paid $6,876. It was the second largest crowd to watch a fight in Maine and the first world's boxing championship within the State's borders.

Armstrong's share of the gate was $4,000 and Junior's $1,225.

It was hardly a good workout for the sleek Negro, who meets Lightweight King Lew Jenkins in New York next month.

The first two rounds of the scheduled 12-rounder were cautiously fought and little damage occurred. But from the moment the third got under way there was no question about the outcome.

Harvard Boats Sweep Events On the Thames

Varsity, Juniors and Freshmen Crews Beat Yale in Annual Races

By the Associated Press

New London, Conn., June 21.—A Harvard varsity crew that was immensely confident of its own low-stroking power defeated Yale tonight by 31 seconds—a matter of about eight lengths—to give the Cambridge cohorts ample justification for painting the town, the Thames River and all adjoining precincts a vivid and indisputable crimson.

This triumph, to boil it down quickly to its most essential points, achieved for Harvard oarsmen the following:

1. Their fifth straight varsity triumph.

2. Their greatest winning margin since the 1920 boatload whipped the Elis by 35 seconds.

3. Their thirteenth consecutive conquest of a Yale crew, counting the annual combination or substitute races.

4. Their third straight four-race sweep of the river, something that never had been done in the 88 years of this classic regatta.

5. A tie with Yale in the varsity series at 39 victories each, the first time they have been on even terms since Yale pulled ahead in 1923, first year Coach Ed Leader came to New Haven.

Harvard's time was 21 minutes 38 seconds to Yale's 22:09.

This regatta, witnessed by the smallest spectator fleet and one of the smaller observation train crowds of recent years, was strictly no contest from the time the substitute Harvard boat beat the Yales by some seven lengths in yesterday evening's dusk.

This morning the Crimson freshmen picked up the winning cadence, whipping the Eli yearlings by 11 lengths over 2 miles. The junior varsity, aided by a Yale coxswain who got off his course, turned in a two-length decision over the same distance. Then, as the finale to a day on which Harvard also won the deciding game of the baseball series, the varsity drove home the fateful and all-important blow.

Bogart, With 70, Wins Maryland State Medal

District Champion Is Two Under Par to Take Qualifying Round; Defending Champion Eager Eliminated; Martino Has Round of 73

Ralph Bogart, the 20-year-old District titlist who failed to qualify for the Middle Atlantic championship last week in Baltimore, turned around and won the medal in the Maryland State Amateur yesterday at Congressional with a sub par 70.

Bogart's effort included three birdies, all on par five holes, 14 pars and a single bogey on the third hole over the 6,700 yard par 72 layout and he was three shots better than the 73 of P. V. Martino, of Capital, a newcomer to the low-scoring circles in local tournament play.

Scores of 78 and better made the championship flight without a playoff but the prominent amateurs over the 78 mark and out of title contention included no less than the defending champion, Bill Eager, of Baltimore C. C., who was two shots too high with an 80. He had company however, including southpaw Earl McAleer, Congressional, and Louis Fuchs, of Manor, with 85 each; Manor Club's champion, Dick Meyer, 82; Eddie Bean, no card, and two would-be-qualifiers.

Bobby Riggs Enters Clay Courts Finals

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 21.—Bobby Riggs, playing a forcing game all the way, qualified for the men's singles final today in the national clay courts tennis tournament by defeating young Welby Van Horn, Los Angeles, 6—2, 6—4, 6—4.

The outcome of the semifinal test was almost identical to Riggs' victory over Van Horn in the title round of the national singles at Forest Hills last summer.

Riggs' opponent in the finals will be either Frank Parker, of Pasadena, or Don McNeill, of Oklahoma City, who meet tomorrow.

Gracyn Wheeler, Santa Monica, scored a mild upset in the women's singles when she eliminated second-seeded Helen Bernhard, New York, in the semifinals, 6—4, 7—5. Miss Wheeler, seeded fourth, thus earned the right to meet Alice Marble for the women's championship Sunday.

Miss Wheeler and Miss Bernhard then paired to enter the women's doubles final with a 5—7, 6—0, 12—10 victory over England's Mary Hardwick and Nina Brown. The English team had previously eliminated Helen Shockley, Evanston, Ill., and Catherine Wolf, Elkhart, Ind., 6—2, 2—6, 6—3. Miss Marble and Mary Arnold, of Los Angeles, also advanced to the final round with a 6—1, 6—0 decision over Virginia Wolfenden, Berkeley, Calif. and Patricia Canning, Alameda, Calif.

Lou Fette Bought By Brooklyn Club

New York, June 21 (U.P.).—The Brooklyn Dodgers tonight announced the purchase of Lou Fette, veteran right-handed pitcher, from the Boston Bees in a straight cash deal. No price was announced. Fette won 10 and lost 10 last season.

Margo Lee Net Victor Over Mrs. Herbert

Top-Seeded Star Bows, 6-0, 2-6, 6-2, in City Of Washington Tourney

By Jack Munhall

Modest Margo Lee, Vassar College graduate and a resident here since 1937, scored her first singles victory in major local tournaments yesterday when she toppled top-seeded Willie O'Steen Herbert in the finals of City of Washington women's play at Army Navy Country Club.

Following her smashing 6—0, 2—6, 6—2 conquest of Mrs. Herbert, who holds the District and Middle Atlantic titles, youthful Miss Lee paired with her singles victim to capture the doubles final from the dark horse team of Jane Wilmerding and Frances Carter, 6—2, 6—1.

Miss Lee, daughter of a retired engineer who moved here from Wilmington, Del., three summers ago, and champion of the Chevy Chase Country Club, capped a brilliant tournament snowing with her one-sided triumph over Mrs. Her-

Lone Hit in Ninth Ruins His Perfection

SIDNEY HUDSON

Mates of Sid Hudson Lavish Compliments After 1-Hitter

St. Louis, June 21.—Sidney Hudson was the blushing subject of affection, unblushingly lavished on him by his grateful Washington teammates in the dressing room of Sportsmans Park tonight after his one-hit performance against the Browns.

Big Zeke Bonura gave the rookie pitcher a bear-like hug and planted a smacking kiss on his forehead. Manager Bucky Harris pumped the hand of the boy who had put an end to the Nats' seven-game losing streak and Catcher Jake Early playfully climbed on Hudson's back. The back-slapping party endured for several minutes.

"Honest, I didn't have any ideas about pitching a no-hitter," said Hudson. "When Freddy Hoffman, the Browns' third base coach, shouted that Radcliff's hit was the first one off me, I was surprised. I thought there was one infield hit somewhere earlier in the game."

Catcher Jake Early explained that he rarely called for Hudson's curve ball after the first inning. "When he walked three batters at the start I knew his curve wasn't working and made him give me his fast ball."

Hudson's performance against the Browns tonight was the first shutout victory achieved by a Washington pitcher this season.

On the Nats' bench during the game, the Nats made no mention of a possible no-hitter by Hudson. "We were all thinking about it," said Harris, "but we were scared to make any mention of it. We didn't want to jinx him."

Rookie Gives Up Lone Blow In 9th Frame

Radcliffe's Double, Fair by Few Inches, Spoils No-Hitter; Kennedy Is Loser

By Shirley Povich.
Post Staff Writer

St. Louis, June 21.—A 23-year-old kid pitcher of the Nats who was playing in a class D league outfield two years ago, tonight was rapped for a ninth inning double by Rip Radcliff and thus it was that Sidney Hudson lost a sensational bid for no-hit fame in the big leagues.

He was jolted out of his no-hit dreams because he couldn't get the league's leading hitter out in the ninth, but he put a dramatic stop to the Nats' seven-game losing streak by outpitching Vernon Kennedy in a 1-0 duel under the lights.

Young Hudson was magnificent in holding the Browns to Radcliff's lone hit. He missed his quest for pitching immortality by a matter of inches when Radcliff's blow at the start of the ninth fell barely in fair territory in rightfield.

Bears Down

When he saw his no-hit game vanish in that ninth, the rookie right-hander returned to his pitching job and bore down masterfully to protect his one-run lead and deliver the victory to the Nats.

Tonight he was tackling the hottest club in the league—the Browns had won six straight against the Yankees and the Red Sox. And in that ninth they had the tying run on third base with none out when Hudson turned them back.

Radcliff moved to third base when Catcher Jake Early let a pitch get away for a passed ball, and the 12,804 St. Louis fans were hot on the scent of the tying run. Then it was that Hudson met the crisis with a skill belying his two years as a pitcher.

Meeting up with the heavy end of the St. Louis batting order, he whipped a third strike past George McQuinn. He disposed of Harlond Clift on a foul pop to Cecil Travis. He caused Walter Judnich to raise a short fly to Gerald Walker for the game-ending up.

Paradoxically, Hudson appeared ready for an early shower in the first inning. He walked the first man to face him, and with two out he filled the bases with two more passes. But Charley Gelbert delivered him from damage with a catch of Berardino's line drive, and the rookie was never in trouble again until the ninth. He walked only one batter after that first inning—Swift, in the second. Until Radcliff's blow in the ninth, only two other Browns reached first—Clift on Travis' fumble in the fourth, and Kennedy on Gelbert's muff in the eighth. Both were clear-cut errors.

Fans Applaud

As Hudson neared what appeared to be the completion of a no-hit job, even the hostile St. Louis fans cheered his trips to the mound in the late innings. He reached atop his 6-foot-4-inch frame and tipped his hat shyly in acknowledgment.

He was mixing a blazing fast ball with his curve to baffle the Browns. His first-inning trouble resulted from his failure to control his curve at the outset, and thereafter he relied chiefly on a fast ball.

Zeke Bonura threw himself across the path of an apparent base hit in the eighth inning with a spectacular play that saved Hudson's no-hitter at that point, big Zeke dove far to his right for a hard ground smash by Swift, knocked the ball down, and threw the batter out at first with Hudson covering the bag. The only other time Hudson's no-hit bid appeared to be in danger in the first eight innings was in the seventh when George Case backed up against the centerfield wall to haul in Judnich's towering drive.

Nats Get Ten Hits

In contrast to the lone hit of the Browns, the Nats collected ten hits off Kennedy, who had beaten them three times previously this season. But they were shut out after the first inning.

The one run that Hudson made stand up so cleverly was scored by the Nats by the first two Washington batters who went to the plate against Kennedy. George Case opened the game with a single to centerfield, stole second on the next pitch, and scored when Buddy Lewis bounced a single over Kennedy's head into centerfield.

Bucky Harris, desperate in his attempt to check the Nats' losing streak, sent a revised lineup into the game tonight. He moved Lewis from third base back to rightfield, shifted Cecil Travis from shortstop to third, inserted Charley Gelbert at shortstop, and placed Buddy Myer at second base.

That infield committed two errors, but Gilbert made a profound bid for a regular job with three consecutive hits, one of them a double.

Stretch Drive Wins for Sandy Belle at Charles Town Track

Tony Vesseli Gives Mare Good Ride

Victor Wins Nose Decision Over Walter Light; Giggle Lee Third

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., June 21.—Sandy Belle, a 9-year-old mare, showed her youthful opposition some running tricks this afternoon. Rallying to a stretch drive engineered by Jockey Tony Vesseli, the daughter of Sandy Beal and Belle of Plymouth bounded up in the final stride to hang a nose defeat on Walter Light, a sprightly youngster of 3 years. Two lengths farther back and weakening at the time, came Giggle Lee, another upstart of 3 years.

Sandy Belle performed in the colors of Mrs. Victor P. Noyes, wife of the former football star, and brought a return of $5 to a legion of backers. Her time of 1:49 for the mile and a sixteenth was nothing to rave about, but the way she ran brought thunderous applause when Vesseli returned her to the winner's circle.

Sandy Belle Walks Out

In the opening jumps of the long test, the Monogalia Purse, Sandy Belle did not appear to fancy the track. She almost walked out of the starting gate and was last as the field turned into the stretch the first time around. Frank H. and Navigation were staging a battle for pace-setting honors at this stage. Walter Light was close up.

As if running sluggishly was not bad enough, Vesseli was forced to take the ancient mare wide at the clubhouse turn. On the backstretch Walter Light went to the front. Vesseli then guided Sandy Bell in on the rail and her brilliant move began. She moved up gradually, but she had company in Giggle Lee.

Vesseli then made a heady move, sending Sandy Belle through a narrow opening between the leaders. In the straightaway, Sandy Belle took all the whipping the boy could give her. Walter Light showed signs of hanging on but Sandy Belle had speed in reserve. Nearing the wire, she lunged forward. Then came the photo finish and her victory.

He Rolls Victor in First

He Rolls, owned by William Amos, won the first race in a duel with Capt. Ewart Johnston's Delhi Dan. Both horses were heavily played. It was Vesseli against Palumbo, who had returned to the saddle after two days absence due to illness. Mr. Jim was third to the $5.60 shot.

Wam, owned by J. H. Logan, won the second race at a $5.20 mutuel and set the stage for a $24.40 mutuel in the daily double. Palumbo had the mount on Wam and the favorite won with speed in reserve. Frederick, an 11-year-old campaigner put the finishing touches on the twin wager and paid $11.60. Golden Key set virtually all the pace and was barely beaten. Remolee was third in this test.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HE ROLLS, $5.60, $2.60, $2.40; DELHI DAN, $2.60, $2.20; MR. JIM, $2.80.

HE ROLLS, off alertly and steadied in early running, came through on inside of MR. JIM to take command and drew out in closing test. DELHI DAN was forced to race wide while close up and could not stay with winner while placed to punishment. MR. JIM set early pace and tired steadily when displaced. SINGING CONNIE, off slowly, closed full of run. WASHSTAIN was through early. DON BARR finished early foot.

SECOND RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 3:05½. Off 3:06. Winner, J. H. Logan's blk. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WAM, $5.20, $3.20, $2.40; LADY SOLACE, $4.40, $3.60; CREAM CHEESE, $3.00.

WAM came through between horses at first turn to be close to XMAS CAROL'S pace, went to front at far turns and drew out to win with speed in reserve. LADY SOLACE was in close quarters going to first turn, improved position on inside, but was held safe. CREAM CHEESE closed gamely from slow beginning. VERITAS was well placed to stretch and faded. XMAS CAROL stopped when displaced after setting good early pace. HILDUR QUEEN had early speed. HURDY GURDY had early foot and faltered. FLIGHT BRIGADE lacked speed throughout.

THIRD RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:30½. Off 3:31. Winner, P. G. Sims' blk. s. FREDERICK, closest to GOLDEN KEY'S pace, made repeated challenges and withstood long drive to be up in final jumps. GOLDEN KEY saved ground throughout while setting pace accompanied by FREDERICK and held on willingly. REMOLEE saved ground and had no excuse. WAUGH SCOUT closed full of run from sluggish beginning. CHIEF CHEROKEE ran out at first turn, carrying AMERLEE with him, moved up on backstretch and then weakened. The others were outrun.

Daily Double, WAM and FREDERICK, Paid $24.40

FOURTH RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:58½. Off 3:58½. Winner, Blue Grass Farm's blk. g. (4), by Flag Pole—Snowling. Trained by W. L. Brock. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:36⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—NOB, $20.20, $7.60, $4.40; CRUSAND, $4.20, $3.00; ROMNEY ROYAL, $5.00.

NOB, steadied along in thick of early contention, came with good energy when placed to drive, moved between horses approaching wire and won going away. CRUSAND was on outside in first flight from start, rallied in early stretch and hung thereafter. DRODO saved ground, showed flash of speed at far turn and weakened. NATIONAL was in close quarters directly after break and closed some ground. DIN moved up on backstretch and tired. CHARMING BOY flashed early speed and quit.

FIFTH RACE—About 4½ furlongs. Purse, $500. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:24. Off 4:25½. Winner, J. T. Harris' ch. f. (4), by Time Maker—Dunworkin. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:51.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TIME HER, $17.60, $7.40, $4.40; PROSIT, $3.80, $3.00; BEAMING LADY, $3.60.

TIME HER, sent to front at once, withstood bids of PROSIT and held on willingly while under punishment. PROSIT was rushed to contention at once, was hard handled, but was held safe in closing sixteenth. BEAMING LADY was sent up along rail entering stretch and into close quarters. SATIN ROYCE was not a serious factor. RADIO WAVE closed gamely. STUBBS had early speed and bore out at turns. RAVENHURST could not keep up. ROVING MISS flashed speed and stopped badly.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $600. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:46½. Off 4:50½. Winner, Mrs. V. P. Noyes' ch. m. (9), by Sandy Beal—Belle of Plymouth. Trained by V. P. Noyes. Value to winner, $450; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:48.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SANDY BELLE, $5.00, $3.20, $2.40; WALTER LIGHT, $4.20, $2.80; GIGGLE LEE, $2.60.

SANDY BELLE, slow to begin and allowed to settle into best stride, swung wide at first turn, saved ground leaving backstretch and responded to strong handling to displace WALTER LIGHT in closing strides. GIGGLE LEE, slow to get under way, moved up full of run approaching stretch and tired in closing test. FRANK H. set early pace and weakened. CARTOUR was not a factor. NAVIGATION was used up running forwardly in early stages.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:16. Off 5:17. Winner, Bill Bennings' b. m. (6), by Abbott's Nymph—Miss Bristol. Trained by E. W. Cook. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:49.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CLYMENE, $4.20, $2.80, $2.40; WORTHOWNING, $3.00, $2.80; SUGABOOT, $3.20.

CLYMENE, confidently handled, went to KENNER when asked, drew out and held WORTHOWNING safe while kept to drive to end. WORTHOWNING, well placed in early stages, came around horses to improve position and hung in final drive. SUGABOOT closed ground well in final furlongs under strong handling. KENNER was used up setting pace and weakened. ROUGE CATALAN went evenly and was held safe. KISSIN KID had early speed and faltered. HI-ADA was outrun. REGAL FROLIC was outclassed.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 5:44. Off 5:46. Winner, D. Galotta's br. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHALOTAUR, $5.00, $3.60, $3.40; PENCADER, $10.40, $7.40; STUCK UP, $17.40.

CHALOTAUR, steadied along while within striking distance, responded willingly when placed to drive and won easily. PENCADER, rated closest to pace of LUCKY ROLL, was sent to front after a half and continued gamely, but was no match for winner. STUCK UP was forced to factor throughout and showed good effort. TRIXIE LASS could not reach serious contention. COUNTER PASS rallied mildly in early stretch and weakened. BRIGHT LIGHT dwelt at start and had no chance. LAKE SHORE was outrun. LUCKY ROLL set good early pace and stopped.

At The Post

Selections at Charles Town.

Dear Al:

Jockey F. A. Martinez, the Cuban rider, is not so good with his English but he has earned many followers with his riding. Speaking of foreign jockeys, there was one who seldom said anything but "No Savvy," slang for "I don't understand." Each time something happened in a race, the chief steward would ask, "What was the trouble." All he could get out of this boy was the time-worn, "No savvy." One day this foreign rider did something that warranted a 10-day suspension. The steward called him into the office and told the boy he had been set down. In pretty fair English, the jockey said, "But Mr. Steward, I did not mean to do it." Whereupon, the steward answered, "No savvy." Trainer Chuck Frost, who saddled Dabs, a recent winner, has taken over Mariyah, a filly shipped from Delaware Park. There will be a mile and a quarter handicap here on Monday. Among those named are Jinneal, Duchess Del, Sylacuga, Darby Du, Five-O-Four, Hi Ada, Spotless, Allen Caid and Blind Brook. Sammy Palumbo returned to action yesterday. Joseph A. Farrell, general manager of the Bowie plant was a visitor with a party of friends. Speaking of other tracks, Harold, Bester, in charge of the Hagerstown track, has arranged for special train service from Washington for his meeting opening July 9. That building on the backstretch, when completed, will be the barn for resident Al J. Boyle's brood mares. There will be living quarters upstairs for Henry Erickson, the track superintendent. I would, like to own a hotel with a swimming pool over on that hill to the left of the track. This is an ideal vacation spot up here. My selections certainly have gone sour. See you on the rail. BILL.

First race—Hiblase appears to be the right one in the day's opener. Has ability to carry weight and likes the short route. Regal Sun has shown in-and-out form and is dangerous. Squawker, on the reserve, list, will be right there if sent postward.

Second race—Machilla gets the No. 1 post position and on general form appears to be headed for a set of brackets in this company. Fenway ran one good race here and, if able to repeat that effort, this one will be close. Stingaree is dropping down.

Third race—Counora was a victime of poor racing luck last out. If this one can lead her field to the first turn, I expect her to stay in front to the wire. Small Change, in present good form, is dangerous. Balkanese, despite 116 pounds, is a threat.

Fourth race—Osofree gets my call in this rather open affair. Needs only the right ride. Seplin is a fair sort and will be in the thick of contention. Congo Prince is first on the reserve list and will be prominent if sent postward.

Fifth race—Dulie could be the right one at these weights. That last was a good one and I'm going to string along. The Waugh entry of Caidon and Giggie Lee is formidable and will be right there. Quick Vine, at the light assignment, is going to do a lot of running.

Sixth race—Strumming has shown enough to be natural choice in company of this caliber. Gets in with steadying weight and I see no reason for mistakes. Miss Maker's last was encouraging. Wayriel lacked racing luck in that previous outing.

Seventh race—Channing lacked some early speed last out, but previous to that turned in a sparkling effort. Looks like the spot. The fast track should help Yankee Lad. Blue Cyclone is in light and deserves attention.

Eighth race—Never Idol is a doubtful starter, but the prospect of a fast track forces me to respect this one. The veteran dislikes mud. Dian galloped home last out and is in rare form. Millie O., with an assignment of 103 pounds and that good recent effort, should be a factor.

Substitute races—If No. 1 is used, I'll take Margie Wrack, Happy Hostess and Runout. If No. 2 is used, I'll take Red Wings, Lady Luck and Circus Lights.

Best bet—Strumming.

Mrs. Leo Walper Upset in District Women's Golf Final

Champ Loses, 4-2, to Miss Houghton

5-Hole Hot Streak Of Outsider Ruins Ex-Titlist's 3 Days Of Sensational Play

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

A five-hole winning streak starting at the twelfth hole and extending through the sixteenth earned the District Women's Championship for Elizabeth Houghton yesterday in upset fashion over Defending Champion Mrs. Leo Walper. The Chevy Chase representative's margin was 4 and 2.

After her sensational play of the past three days when Mrs. Walper brushed aside Mrs. Myron Davy, Mrs. Walter Stokes and Mrs. Betty Meckley in successive rounds, she was a decided favorite to add a second consecutive title.

After trailing by one hole at the ninth she quickly squared the match on the tenth and won the eleventh to take a lead she was expected to increase. But here Miss Houghton took command and by playing the next five holes in 1 under men's par she won them all and the match on the sixteenth green.

Needed Par for 79

The winner had par for a 79 when the match ended, after playing the front nine in 41. She had par for a 38 after seven holes of the back nine. Mrs. Walper needed two pars for an 83, or nine shots over her remarkable round of Thursday against Mrs. Meckley.

The title was Miss Houghton's first major championship. She was a final round victim of Winnie Faunce in this tournament in 1936 and the next year she lost in the Maryland State finals to Helen Dettweiler. She had won the Chevy Chase Club crown and The Washington Post match play tournament in former years.

Miss Walper's record is now somewhat similar. She was finalist in the Maryland State last year and now her District record is like Miss Houghton's, one victory and one defeat, in the finals.

Mrs. Bishop Hill, also of Chevy Chase, won the championship flight consolation, while the second flight went to Mrs. C. P. Medley, of Indian Spring.

FINAL ROUNDS

Championship flight—Elizabeth Houghton (Chevy Chase) defeated Mrs. Leo Walper (Capital), 4 and 2.

Second flight—Mrs. C. P. Medley (Indian Spring) defeated Mrs. H. J. Cooper (Kenwood), 4 and 3.

Fourth flight—Barbara Simons (Manor) defeated Mrs. L. H. Hedrick (Army and Navy), 4 and 3.

Fifth flight—Mrs. M. A. Miller (Kenwood) defeated Mrs. H. N. Hughes (Kenwood), 1 up.

Sixth flight—Mrs. R. Thornberg (Kenwood) defeated Mrs. Frank R. Keefer (Chevy Chase), 2 and 1.

Seventh flight—Mrs. G. M. Jani (Congressional) defeated Mrs. A. S. Gardiner (Columbia), 5 and 4.

Eight flight—Mrs. John Jousett (Columbia) defeated Mrs. H. R. Harrigan (Congressional), 1 up in 19 holes.

CONSOLATIONS

Second flight—Mrs. A. A. McEntee (Kenwood) defeated Mrs. W. E. Hall (Columbia), 3 and 2.

Third flight—Mrs. F. G. Awalt (Congressional) defeated Mrs. J. R. Daily (Manor), 8 and 6.

Sixth flight—Mrs. E. R. Ferguson (Capital) defeated Mrs. F. J. Winkler (Congressional), 6 and 4.

Seventh flight—Mrs. R. S. Butler (Kenwood) defeated Mrs. Gorham Freer (Washington), 3 and 1.

Eighth flight—Mrs. Starr (Washington) defeated Mrs. W. B. Barkdull (Columbia), 3 and 1.

Bengoechea Signs Contract With Detroit

Maryland Infielder Receives Bonus; to Report to Tigers' Farm

Adam Bengoechea, diminutive University of Maryland baseball star who has never played shortstop, is today in receipt of a "handsome and highly satisfactory" bonus for signing as a shortstop with the Detroit Tigers through General Manager Jack Zeller.

Sent to the Tigers upon recommendation of Zinn Beck, Detroit scout for this area, Bengoechea impressed officials of the club with his hitting and fielding. They decided he was a natural shortstop, though at Maryland he divided his time between second and third.

Bengoechea reported yesterday to Detroit's farm team, Muskegon, of the Michigan State League, a Class C circuit. In sending him there, Detroit officials told Bengoechea they deemed him ready for Class B ball but that they had no affiliation with a team of that class. Next year Bengoechea is to report to Beaumont of the Texas League for spring training.

Harvard Nine Trims Yale, 4-3

New London, Conn., June 21.—Harvard defeated Yale, 4-3, in their annual boat race day baseball game this afternoon, and by so doing took the three-game series the two teams have played this week, two games to one.

Harvard got off in the lead with two runs in the first inning, made a third in the fourth, and ran their score up to 4-0 in the seventh when Lester Pitchford smacked one over the centerfield fence and trotted around for a home run. Yale scored for the first time in the seventh inning, and once again in each of the two remaining innings, in the last one, the Elis seemed to be on their way to at least tieing the score until Tom Healy, Crimson captain who went in at the end as relief pitcher for Burgess Ayres, struck out Besse, with Yale runners on second and third, to end the game.

Brooklyn Beats Bucs, 10 to 8, Regain Lead

Dodgers Collect 15 Hits in Slugging Game; Durocher's Boys Score Early; Vince DiMaggio, Fletcher Hit Homers

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, June 21.—The rough-and-ready Brooklyn Dodgers plastered a 10-to-8 defeat on the Pittsburgh Pirates in a "batting-practice" game today and tightened their grip on the National League lead.

The Dodgers amassed 15 hits to Pittsburgh's 11 and used three pitchers to the Pirates' four in the loose affair.

Brooklyn got going before the Pirates, scoring all 10 runs on 12 hits in the second to fifth innings, inclusive. Pete Coscarart tripled with two on in the second, Babe Phelps homered with one on in the third and the Dodgers reeled off five runs in the fourth on five hits, three wild pitches and two walks. Peewee Reese, playing for the first time in three weeks, tripled a run across in the fifth.

Pittsburgh scored three in the fourth on home runs by Elbie Fletcher and Vince DiMaggio and added five more in the last three innings. The Pirates loaded the bases on three walks in the ninth, but could only get one run home.

It was the sixth victory against one defeat for Fred Fitzsimmons, although he failed to finish.

Macks Swamp Chisox, 12-1; Ross Winner

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 21.—The Chicago White Sox, fresh from three straight victories over the New York Yankees, were easy victims of the Philadelphia Athletics today, bowing by a 12-to-1 score before Lee Ross' four-hit pitching.

Ross, hurling his fourth straight victory, allowed no runner to reach first until the fifth when Luke Appling singled. The Sox connected for their only run in the seventh on Taft Wright's single, a passed ball and Appling's second hit.

The A's pounded out 11 hits off starter Jack Knott and two other pitchers. The hits included Bob Johnson's twelfth and thirteenth home runs and a homer by Sam Chapman.

Yankees Shell Tiger Hurlers, Triumph, 12-7

By the Associated Press

Detroit, June 21.—The World Champion New York Yankees showed today they still pack plenty of dynamite in their bats by firing a 17-hit bombardment against four Detroit pitchers and sinking the Tigers, 12 to 7.

The victory ended a five-game losing streak for the Yanks and kept Detroit from advancing into second place in the American League just as the Tigers' loss to Philadelphia yesterday had kept them from taking the lead.

Indians Defeat Bosox On Bell's Homer, 7-4

Outfielder's Circuit Blow Comes in Eighth Inning With Two Mates On; Milnar Receives Credit for Tenth Victory Although Hit Hard

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, June 21.—Roy (Beau) Bell produced a dramatic three-run homer in the clutch today to give Cleveland a 7 to 4 comeback triumph over Boston and cement the Indians' hold on first place.

Bell's eighth-inning circuit blow broke up a 4-4 tie, overcame two Boston homers and provided the Indians' sixth straight victory. It was the tenth triumph of the season for southpaw Al Milnar, who was touched for ten hits, and the first setback in five decisions for Boston's Jack Wilson. Milnar has been defeated only twice.

The Red Sox grabbed a three-run lead in the third inning when youthful Ted Williams hit a homer with the sacks occupied by Wilson and Lou Finney, who made four hits in as many trips. The Indians tied it up in their half. Ken Keltner was hit by a pitched ball and Milnar and Lou Boudreau doubled, the latter eventually scoring on an infield out.

The pitchers settled down but when Jimmy Foxx drove for the circuit in the eighth—his seventeenth homer of the year—Boston appeared to have counted the run needed for a 4-3 victory.

Bell Hits First Pitch

Cleveland didn't give up, however. Boudreau walked. Outfielder Roy Weatherly, who made three sensational catches to save Milnar further trouble, got a double, and Rollie Hemsley singled. Weatherly was out trying to score but Hal Trosky was purposely passed, bringing up Bell, who drove Wilson's first pitch over the right field wall.

A crowd of 12,000, about half of them ladies' day patrons, saw the Indians win their eighth in nine starts since a dozen Cleveland players complained they couldn't play winning ball for Manager Oscar Vitt.

Giants Come From Behind, Beat Reds, 4-3

By the Associated Press

New York, June 21.—The New York Giants solved Paul Derringer today and came from behind to beat the Cincinnati Reds 4 to 3 in a crucial contest that lifted the Giants to second place in the National League and dropped the champions to third.

Big Paul had won six straight games and today kept the Giants shut out on two hits for the first five innings. During this period the Reds collected all their runs and were steaming along placidly when the Giants broke Derringer's spell in the sixth.

Lansburgh Beats Lord Baltimore

Lansburgh's softballers turned in an 8-to-3 victory over Lord Baltimore yesterday in the playoff of a previous clash, which ended in an 8-to-8 stalemate. It was the third victory of the season for Lansburgh's against two defeats and one tie.

For four innings the eventual winners were out front, but a two-run Lord Baltimore spree tied the score in the fifth. Lansburgh's came right back to take a lead it held easily.

Dixie Tavern Beats Aggies, 5 to 1

Snitz's steal of home in the seventh inning broke up a pitchers' duel and gave Overnight Transportation of Baltimore a 1-0 victory over I. B. M. last night in the feature of a softball double-header.

Snitz committed his game-winning theft while Temple Jarrell, I. B. M. pitcher, held the ball in his hand. I. B. M. got only one hit, a double by "Brother" Love, while the winners made four.

In the other half of the twin bill of exhibitions, Dixie Tavern defeated the U. S. Aggies, 5-1.

U. S. Contracts Spur Output In Wool Mills

Prices Reported Lifted 5 Cents a Yard on Men's Wear Fabrics

By the Associated Press

New York, June 21.—American Woolen Co. will step up operations in many of its plants as a result of successful bidding on Government contracts for thousands of yards of wool cloths, a spokesman for the company said today.

The big textile concern, which has mills scattered through New England, boosted prices 5 cents a yard on all men's wear woolen fabrics and blankets yesterday after these cloths were withdrawn from the market las' week. The withdrawal followed announcement of the Government buying program which threatened a market already worried by possibility of scarcities.

Army officials said contracts now let to the industry would be "double anything bought in peacetime." In addition, the Army announced it would open bids for 300,000 additional wool blankets with the right to increase the quantity by 50 per cent.

Textile experts said July and August probably would be record wool consumption months since mills would start processing raw wool for conversion into cloths required by the Army. New England reports indicated raw wool was being rushed out of warehouses into combing plants.

Boston Wool Price Off

Boston, June 21 (AP).—The Commercial Bulletin will say of the wool market tomorrow:

"The buying interest which mushroomed last week out of the Army textile program has gone flat again and fine Class III wools which sold at 88 cents clean, last week, have been sold at 85 cents this week.

"Not only is interest in wool less in the Boston market but it is very much less in the West. Civilian business which was expected to be sucked in after the Army fabrics movement has not materialized to any extent. Caution still is the better part of valor in New York, apparently . . . ."

War Uncertainty May Keep Banks Open Saturdays

New York, June 21 (AP).—New York Clearing House Association member banks will meet next Friday to consider remaining open Saturdays in July and August should an emergency arise.

It was pointed out that if some unprecedented move in the European war occurred on Saturday, when the banks normally would be closed as permitted by State law, it might place them in an embarrassing position.

It also was learned that many of the New York banks have empowered officers to open should an emergency arise.

Business Failures At New Low for Year

New York, June 21 (AP).—Business failures in the United States dropped to 245 during the week ended June 13, lowest for any full week thus far in the year, Dun & Bradstreet reported today. This compared with 249 both in the preceding week an da year ago.

Week's Auto Output Estimated at 90,060

Detroit, June 21 (AP).—Ward's Automotive Reports, surveying production activity in the motorcar industry today estimated output for this week would total 90,000 cars and trucks. Last week assemblies numbered 93,635; a year ago this week they total 81,070.

The survey said there would be slight change in operations next week, but that the July 4th holiday in the period following would bring manufacutring into new low ground for the year.

New York Clearings

New York, June 21 (AP).—The weekly statement of the New York Clearing House today showed:

Total surplus and undivided profits unchanged at $931,357,000.

Total net demand deposits (average) increased $162,133,000.

Clearings week ending today, $3,255,303,201.

Rail Plates Orders

Cleveland, June 21 (AP).—Nickel Plate Railroad announced today it had placed orders with four manufacturers for 875 gondola, flat or box cars, and with three steel companies for 3,800 gross tons of 112-pound new rails, for delivery at various times until next fall.

Market value	$93,674	$150,474	$76,634

The SEC also reported yesterday that the market value of total sales on all registered securities exchanges in May, 1940, amounted to $1,587,302,182, an increase of 25 per cent over April and an increase of 117.9 per cent over May, 1939.

The two leading New York exchanges accounted for 94.1 per cent of the market value of all sales, 93.5 per cent of the market value of stock sales, and 99.8 per cent of the market value of bond sales on all registered securities exchanges.

Local Dividends Declared

Directors of the Security Storage Co., of Washington, declared a dividend of $1.25 a share on capital stock, payable July 10 to holders of record at the close of business on July 5.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the State Loan Co. of Maryland yesterday a profit-sharing dividend of 2 per cent was declared on the preferred stock, payable July 1 to holders of record June 1. This is the nineteenth consecutive semi-annual profit-sharing dividend paid, according to officials.

Deposits of Foreign Banks Leap in Week

New York, June 21 (AP).—Deposits of foreign banks in the Federal Reserve Bank of New York increased to $234,410,000 from $157,010,000 in the previous week, the Reserve Bank's condition statement disclosed.

Member bank reserve balances rose about $227,000,000 and gold certificates on hand and due from the United States Treasury increased around $230,000,000.

Holdings of United States Government securities dropped about $1,500,000.

Court Dismisses Stockholders' Suit

New York, June 21 (AP).—Supreme Court today dismissed a stockholders "derivative" suit against directors of Phoenix Securities Corp. to recover $1,000,000 paid in settlement of a Delaware action brought by stockholders against Phoenix, Loft, Inc., and others.

The court said there was no evidence of wrong doing by the defendants in the settlement and that the plaintiffs should have applied for relief to the Delaware court where the original suit was brought.

Oil Prices Cut, 3 States Order Output Drop

California Joins Texas And Louisiana; War Hits Export Sales

By the Associated Press

San Francisco, June 21.—The California oil industry umpire announced reduction today in the State crude oil production quota for July to 587,000 barrels a day, or 5,000 barrels a day under the June quota.

Gasoline Prices Cut

Dallas, June 21 (AP).—Some oil States headed for apparent new production peaks today, but Texas and Louisiana prepared to trim their output until warring Europe resumes taking its quota.

California and Illinois neared new highs. The California retail price of gasoline tumbled 1½ to 2½ cents a gallon a few days ago.

Oklahoma produces under an oil compact commission 90-day agreement. Her production was off about normally for the season.

Pennsylvania cut the price of crude 25 cents a barrel, the second such cut this month. Production of the Eastern State's All-Eastern Field and Bradford-Allegheny Field continued unabated.

By declaring two production holidays this month and five next month, the Texas Railroad Commission hoped to trim Texas production to 1,300,000 barrels a day, a drop of 195,964 barrels daily. The commission considered closing the State's 92,000 wells until crude stocks were lowered.

Conservation Commissioner B. A. Hardey, of Louisiana, said that State's production will be lowered next month. In June Louisiana produced 280,166 barrels a day.

Week's Offerings Of New Issues Sharply Higher

By the Associated Press

New York, June 21.—The log jam in the new securities market showed signs of breaking this week as a firmer tone in stock and bond prices bought a sharp increase in the sale of new issues.

Public offerings during the week ended yesterday, reported today by Poor's Publishing Co., totaled $34,748,641 compared with an average of only $6,700,000 a week during the preceding four-week period.

Over 70 per cent of the total represented a demand for new money rather than the refunding of existing debts, but almost all of it was accounted for by municipal issues. New corporate financing remained virtually at a standstill.

Pound Ruling Hits Americans

New York, June 21 (AP).—Americans with funds in London no longer can convert them into dollars to take out of England at the official rate of $4.03 to the pound, a cable received by New York banks from London said today.

The only way to convert pre-war sterling balances into dollars is at the "free sterling" rate of around $3.58 to the pound.

Last fall when Great Britain laid down restrictions on foreign exchange, Americans, despite capital export barriers, were permitted to send funds to the United States at the official pound rate, and in the past nine months most pre-war balances were moved here.

Huge Lard Purchase Negotiated by British

Chicago, June 21 (AP).—The British food ministry has negotiated for the purchase of a large amount of United States lard, according to reports in the provisions trade today.

The exact amount was not announced, although there was one report that the order approximated 20,000,000 pounds. Several packing interests participated in the transaction, provisions men said.

Packing interests said the United States Government was not involved in the transaction.

U. S. Lead Output Increases in May

New York, June 21 (AP).—Production of lead in the United States in May totaled 46,268 tons, compared with 35,423 in April and 46,006 in May, 1939, the American Bureau of Metal Statistics announced today.

Domestic shipments in May aggregated 46,919 tons against 46,496 in April and 40,124 a year ago. Stocks on hand at the end of the month amounted to 62,955 tons compared with 63,610 in April and 129,270 in May, 1939.

Steel Scrap Price Rises

Pittsburgh, June 21 (AP).—Steel scrap advanced 50 cents a ton today after recent hesitancy as the industry tried to gauge effects of the French peace plea. Number 1 heavy melting was quoted at $20.50-$21 a ton and sales were reported at the higher figure.

Exchange Market

New York, June 21 (AP).—The free British pound jumped 5½ cents in relation to the dollar today.

The advance more than canceled Thursday's setback but still left the unit around 10 cents lower on the week.

The Canadian dollar added ⅛ cent at 89¼ U. S. cents.

The Swiss franc bounded .15 of a cent to the best level since late last year. Short covering was believed the main influence behind the increase, foreign money dealers said, but it was also noted the franc was the last of the big continental monies which may be traded on a comparatively free basis.

Closing rates follow (Great Britain in dollars, others in cents):

Official Canadian control board rates for U. S. dollars: Buying 10 per cent premium, selling 11 per cent premium, equivalent to discounts on Canadian dollars in New York of buying 9.91 per cent, selling 9.09 per cent.

Canadian dollar in New York open market 10⅛ per cent discount, or 89.87½ U. S. cents.

Confused Political Panorama, Uncertainty On Peace Terms Drive Traders to Cover; Stocks Unevenly Lower in Dull Trade

New York, June 21.—It was a toss up whether the news from France or the White House was the more sensational but both served to confuse traders and emphasize the need for caution. Both financial and commodity markets moved at a snail's pace. News was eagerly awaited of the German terms for French surrender and none believed that peace for France would be pleasant.

Meanwhile Wall Street produced a great mass of oral and written comment on the riddle of President Roosevelt's Cabinet shifts. Opinion appeared to be about equally divided, one group asserting that intervention in European war was near, while the other held the Stimson-Knox selections were a dodge to circumvent the Republicans.

Dullest Trade in Years

The tendency to take cover until the new smoke screens which obscure the political panorama lighten, was particularly in evidence on the Stock Exchange where transfers of 539,320 shares were the smallest since March 10, 1939. Prices for shares were irregularly lower, coppers and stores showing the only substantial losses. Independent aircrafts advanced moderately.

In bond trading firmness ruled throughout the domestic corporate list. In the foreign section French goverment 7s broke 20 points to 50. Little more than a week ago this issue was at par. Sterling firmed a little in the foreign exchange section.

A smaller than seasonal decline in automobile production in the last week points to a determination by the industry to have a substantial inventory position in advance of possible use of the plants for war work. Meanwhile, more frequent announcements are appearing of plant expansions, notably for aircraft and munitions production.

Eyes Turn to Taxes

With so much emphasis placed upon war as a begetter of business activity, there has been a noticeable neglect of other important domestic factors, including taxes, limitations on profits, Government spending and the normal peacetime trends of business.

The excess profits measure, sponsored by Senator La Follette, looks drastic enough to suit the taste of almost anyone who advocates a thin diet for corporations in war time. The unwisdom of being too complacent about tax possibilities is emphasized by some of the more thoughtful brokers' analysts. Here the divergence of opinion in Congress over tax policies is noted. For example, one group is in favor of revamping the entire tax structure; another section favors legislation that would seriously threaten the profit incentive in business, while a third stanchly defends the profit motive. The tendency in the financial district to take a pessimistic view of the long-term outlook is, of course, based on the Government's past performances.

B. M. T. Shares Strong

Strength and activity in B. M. T. shares, which went above 20 for a net gain of 1⅛, provided a mild feature on the Stock Exchange. Loft led the list in activity without change. Steel shares closed about even, recovering from earlier dips.

Coppers were moderately lower, reflecting reported cancellation of sales for French account. Store issues showed the widest losses. Oils were shaded as gasoline prices were cut in various sections. Rail, rail equipment, utility and manufacturing specialties were steady.

Listed bonds were quiet and generally firm today, notwithstanding the unfortunate events in Europe and the tangled political situation here. United States Treasury bonds moved slightly higher on the news of the immense new gold acquisition by the United States. Corporate issues were up, with few exceptions. In the foreign department French 7s continued to fall, but the tone was good in other securities. Trading amounted only to $4,180,000.

Treasury Issues Gain

Treasury issues in the formal market showed advances running to ¾ point, but much of this movement represented a late gain on the previous day in counter trading. The actual overnight improvement recorded by counter dealers ranged from 1-32 to 8-32 point. New York City transit unification bonds jumped 1⅝ points, with trading active. Best grade utility railroad and industrial bonds moved upward.

Speculative rails in the corporate section continued to reflect modest demand, and an unwillingness on the part of holders to let go. Cheaper reorganization rails were marked up more sharply than the relatively well priced interest-payers. Holding company and share privilege issues were firm. Local tractions that still are listed advanced along with New York City bonds.

French stamped 7s of 1949 tumbled another 20 points, on a single trade, and closed at 50. German and Italian bonds firmed, while Australian and Canadian obligations were irregular. Danish, Norwegian and Belgian issues followed no definite course, and Latin-Americans also were uncertain.

Relief Rice Bought

The Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation announced yesterday that it had purchased 48,300,000 pounds of rice for distribution among needy families.

Foreign Markets

London, June 21 (AP).—Industrial securities dipped in the stock market today as the possibility of factory damage by air raids curbed demand. Selling was limited, however, and declines moderate. British government bonds moved irregularly with the long-dated issues under pressure after recent brisk advances. Oils steadied after a heavy opening. Most rubbers were unchanged and Kaffirs improved in late trade after a shaky start. In the foreign bond list Brazilian loans rose as much as 2 points.

Official Canadian control board rates for U. S. dollars: Buying 10 per cent premium, selling 11 per cent premium, equivalent to discounts on Canadian dollars in New York of buying 9.91 per cent, selling 9.09 per cent.

Canadian dollar in New York open market 10⅛ per cent discount, or 89.87½ U. S. cents.

15.4% Rise Forecast In Allegheny Loadings

Pittsburgh, June 21 (AP).—The Allegheny regional advisory board today predicted carloadings in its area during the third quarter will be 15.4 per cent greater than they were in the same period last year.

The board estimated 880,078 cars for the quarter against 770,358 for the third quarter of 1939 and an estimated 517,345 for the current year. Areas covered by the forecast are eastern Ohio, northern West Virginia, western and central Pennsylvania.

Chicago Livestock

Chicago, June 21 (AP).—Hog prices advanced unevenly 5 to 15 cents today. The top was $5.35. All killing classes of cattle were strong, and in some instances higher. Lamb trade was active and steady. Total hog receipts were only 17,000, with 4,000 consigned to packers; advances were mainly on weights under 270 pounds. Clearance in the cattle market was good, with very limited supply of best cattle offered. Top of $10.50 was paid for two loads of yearling steers scaling 1,027 lbs. All grades of steers were measurably higher than a week ago. Stock cattle were slow but firmer.

Boston Wool

Boston, June 21 (AP) (U. S. Dept. of Agriculture).—Demand for wool was rather slow in Boston today, although inquiries from mill buyers were being received by houses. In view of the lighter demand, sale prices were mostly slightly easier than earlier in the week on a few lines. Country-packed three-eighths and quarter blood bright fleece wools were selling at 39@40 cents, in the grease, delivered to users. Good French combing length fine territory wools in original bags were moving at 92@96 cents, scoured basis. Clearings at these prices, however, were comparatively restricted.

Hardware Firms Merge

St. Louis, June 21 (AP).—The merging of two of the Midwest's oldest hardware companies was effected today with the sale of the assets of the Simmons Hardware & Paint Corporation to the Shapleigh Hardware Co., for $2,712,497.

Commodities' Traders Wait Peace Terms

Wheat and Corn Firm; Cotton Gains Slightly; Sugar Buoyant

By the Associated Press

Traders stepped warily in the main commodity futures markets yesterday while they waited word of French peace terms for a cue.

Chicago wheat ended a narrow session unchanged to ¼ cent; a bushel higher and corn gained ⅛ to ¼ of a cent. Less favorable crop reports attracted attention.

Cotton contracts at New York came out slowly and prices held up fairly well. The final range was 5 cents a bale higher to 30 lower.

Speculative support helped buoy sugar at New York. Hides were marked up around 1-5 cent a pound and silk improved.

Wool tops lost more than a cent in the face of news of mounting orders for woolen textiles. Copper and cocoa also slipped a notch. Rubber moved unevenly.

The Associated Press weighted index of 35 wholesale spot commodities, based on 1926 as 100, advanced to 71.84 from 71.72 Thursday.

Wheat Trade Sluggish

Chicago, June 21 (AP).—The wheat pit was unusually quiet today as dealers restricted operations pending European developments which they hope may supply the cue for future market activity.

For minutes at a time not a hand was raised or a shout heard in the crowded pit. Prices advanced about ½ cent at times but backed down frequently and closed unchanged to ⅛ higher compared with yesterday, with July 78¼@¼ and September 78¾@⅞.

Speculative enthusiasm was at a minimum because of the uncertainty. Some buying based on less favorable crop reports and improved private flour demand appeared at times. Additional Government flour purchases are expected over the week-end.

Louis to Meet Baer or Galento

Winner of July Bout To Be Met

Next Title Defense To Be Held in September; Champ Collects $55,589

By the Associated Press

New York, June 21.—Joe Louis, a successful young man rapidly nearing the $2,000,000 mark in earnings from his fists, pocketed a $55,589 check today for his latest chopping block job and learned that his next outing will be against either Two-Ton Tony Galento or Madcap Maxie Baer.

Promoter Mike Jacobs, agreeing with most folks that the Brown Bomber turned in one of the most "artistic" performances in cutting down Arturo the Gallant Godoy in eight rounds last night, announced the winner of the Galento-Baer bombing in Jersey City July 2 would be the next tasty dish served up to the heavyweight champion, probably in September.

The site depends entirely on which fellow walks out of the Jersey City Ball Park with the other guy's scalp. If Galento wins, he will tangle with Louis here, largely because in his four-round stand against the Bomber last year, when he had Joe on the verge of a knock-out once and sitting on the floor on another occasion, he created a lot of interest among the cash customers for a return match.

World Fight in Chicago

If Baer comes through against Galento, he and Louis will fight it out in Chicago. Baer's poor showing against Louis here in their first meeting five years ago still doesn't sit too well with Mr. Local Fan.

Louis showed up at "Uncle Mike's Mitt Salon" personally today to collect for last night's work. He didn't have a mark on him.

Godoy, on the other hand, visited a doctor early. Eight stitches were needed to sew up the tear on his left eye and three more were taken to fix the left. He will rest for ten days and then have his tonsils taken out.

Al Blozis Breaks American Record

doors slowed the track to such an extent that no race records were threatened, but Norwood (Barney) Ewell, Negro star from Penn State, and Clyde Jeffrey, of Stanford, served notice they'll put on a great sprint battle tomorrow. Each had a heat victory in 9.8 seconds in the 100-yard dash trials and in the 220-yard dash Ewell won his heat in 21.3 and Jeffrey, defending champion in this event, took his in 21.8.

Wolcott Wins Easily

Fred Wolcott, the blond streak from Rice Institute who is defending champion in both the 120-yard low and 220-yard high hurdles, qualified handily for his specialties. Boyce Gatewood, of Texas, however, turned in better qualifying times to indicate he'll press the Rice star in the finals. Paul Moore, Stanford; Campbell Kane, of Indiana; Ed Buxton, of Wisconsin, and Ed Burrowes, the Princeton star, all had no trouble qualifying in the half-mile and it appeared they will dominate the finals battle.

The 440-yard dash trials gave promise of another speed battle, the heat winners today being Lee Orr, of Washington State; Fred Alliniece, of Prairie View Texas State, and Gene Littler, redhead from Nebraska.

Following Southern California in the qualifying list came Pittsburgh, Wisconsin and Texas, each with four places. California and Indiana each gained three, with the rest of the 32 schools to be represented tomorrow gaining two or less.

Qualifiers for tomorrow's finals:

SHOT PUT—Al Blozis, Georgetown (56 feet, ½ inch); Elmer Hackney, Kansas State (46 feet 10¼ inches); Stan Anderson, Stanford (51 feet 4½ inches); Herb Michael, California (52 feet 6¼ inches); Bill Trout, Jr., Stanford (50 feet 4 inches); Don McNeil, Southern California, (51 feet 4 inches); John Bazyk, Pittsburgh (48 feet 5 inches); Roger Hoeger, A. C. L. A. (47 feet 10 inches); Archie Harris, Indiana (48 feet 1¾ inches); George Paskvan, Wisconsin (47 feet 10 inches). Best distance—Blozis, Georgetown, 56 feet ½ inch. (New meet record, old record 55 feet 10⅜ inches by Elmer Hackney, Kansas State in 1939.)

440-YARD DASH—Lee Orr, Washington State; Jack Sulsman, Ohio State; Jim Herbert, New York University; Fred Alliniece, Prairie View, Texas State; Craig Williamson, Stanford; Herbert Bozrow, New York University; Gene Littler, Nebraska; Howard Upton, Southern California; Warren Briedenbach, Michigan. Best time—Littler, Nebraska, 47.8 seconds.

100-YARD DASH—Norwood Ewell, Penn State; Bill Brown, Louisiana State; Harold Stickel, Pittsburgh; Barney Willis, Southern California; Clyde Jeffrey, Stanford; Mickey Anderson, Southern California; Leo Tarrant, Alabama State; Fred Lee Ramsdell, Texas. Best time—Ewell, of Penn State, and Jeffrey, of Stanford, 9.8 seconds.

DISCUS—Archie Harris, Indiana, 159 feet 1 inch; Al Blozis, Georgetown, 155 feet 6 inches; Jack Hughes, Texas, 153 feet 7¼ inches; A. Cornet, Stanford, 152 feet 8½ inches; Edsel Wibbels, Nebraska, 152 feet 6¼ inches; Bernard Wolf, California, 150 feet ½ inch; Boo Pitch, Minnesota, 149 feet 8½ inches; Stan Anderson, Stanford, 146 feet 6½ inches; George Paskvan, Wisconsin, 145 feet 8 inches; John Bazyk, Pittsburgh, 145 feet 7 inches.

220-YARD DASH—Norwood Ewell, Penn State; Harold Sinclair, U. C. L. A.; Mickey Anderson, Southern California; George Koettel, Oklahoma; Clyde Jeffrey, Stanford; Barney Willis, Southern California; Bill Brown, Louisiana State; Leo Tarrant, Alabama State; best time, Ewell, Penn State, 21.3.

220-YARD LOW HURDLES—Fred Wolcott, Rice; Charles Marshall, Butler; Jim Buck, Oregon; Boyce Gatewood, Texas; Ed Dugger, Tufts; Gilder Farrow, Xavier of New Orleans; Harold Stickel, Pittsburgh; Max Speedie, Utah; Gordon Revell, Kansas State Teachers; best time, Gatewood, 24.1.

120-YARD HIGH HURDLES—Fred Wolcott, Rice; Max Speedie, Utah; John Biewener, Southern California; Boyce Gatewood, Texas; Ed Smith, Wisconsin; Charles Hlad, Michigan Normal; Ed Dugger, Tufts; Frank Fuller, Virginia; ninth qualifier to be determined by photo; best time, Gatewood, Texas, 14.2.

880-YARD RUN—Ed Buxton, Wisconsin; Ed Burrowes, Princeton; Francis Hogan, Michigan; Paul Moore, Stanford; Jim Kehoe, Maryland; Denzil Widel, California; Campbell Kane, Indiana; Kirman Storli, Oregon; Bill Dale, Washington State; best time, Moore, Stanford, 1:54.6.

Man of the Month

The Man of the Month contest is sponsored jointly by The Washington Post and Station WJSV. Following each of the Nats' games, Arch McDonald will award points to Washington players as he deems performances merit. The Man of the Month will be presented with a $50 merchandise order by The Post.

By Arch McDonald
Station WJSV Baseball Broadcaster

Undisputed hero of the Nats last night was Sidney Hudson and to him goes the greatest point award ever made for a single game in the Man of the Month contest.

To Hudson, 20 points, because he pulled the Nats out of a seven-game losing streak with a masterful one-hit performance against the Browns to win a 1-0 game.

To George Case, six points, because he made possible the winning run by opening the game with a single, stealing second and scoring.

To Buddy Lewis, six points, because he drove in the winning run and made a second hit for the Nats.

To Zeke Bonura, four points, because he made two hits and came up with a brilliant play on Swift's smash to keep the tying run off the base in the eighth.

Phils Defeat Cubs, 6-5, for Third in Row

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, June 21.—The Phillies chalked up their third straight victory today, beating the Chicago Cubs, 6 to 5, behind Ike Pearson's effective relief pitching.

Pearson replaced Si Johnson with two on and no one out in the seventh and yielded only one hit in the last three innings. Lloyd Brown started for the Phils but gave way in the sixth.

The Phils scored four runs in the third on Chuck Klein's double and Merrill May's single to take a commanding lead. The winning run came in the sixth on Art Mahan's single and Herman Schulte's triple.

Potomac Boat Club Holds 1st Rowing Regatta, June 30

The first rowing regatta of the season will be held on the Potomac above Key Bridge Sunday, June 30, under auspices of the Potomac Boat Club with four clubs competing. These will be, besides Potomac, Old Dominion Boat Club, of Alexandria; Virginia Boat Club, of Richmond, and Arundel Boat Club, of Baltimore.

The first event, at 1 p. m., will be a match race between Paul Lanigan and Edmund Mason, both of Potomac. Mason holds the Middle States junior single sculls championship, which Lanigan held last year and the winner probably will represent the club at Philadelphia, July 7.

Other events, with all clubs represented, will be a four-oared gig race, quadruple sculls and eight-oared shells. A girls' canoe race will wind up the series.

Rosslyn Ten Defeats Silver Spring, 14 to 6

With Pitcher Ponder turning in a five-hit effort, Rosslyn defeated Silver Spring in the Hot Shoppe Softball League, 14 to 6, yesterday. Matkins, Hanna and Schuler hit home runs for the winners.

Margo Lee Is Net Victor Over Mrs. Herbert

bert. Prior to yesterday's match the blonde, blue-eyed girl who becomes the eleventh champion of the 13-year-old tournament, had breezed through three matches with loss of but five games.

Against the hard-hitting Mrs. Herbert, who last year cleaned up all opposition after losing the City of Washington finals to Mrs. Margaret Robinson, Miss Lee was not quite as effective as she had been in earlier matches, but still she won convincingly—with something to spare.

She romped through the first set with a display of power that presaged the upset which was to come. Faltering a bit in the second set as Mrs. Herbert surged back with an improved game, Miss Lee finished strongly to leave no doubt that the better player won. She was the steadier player throughout, committing very few errors and capitalizing to a large degree the many mistakes of her foe.

Without detracting at all from Miss Lee's victory it should be mentioned that Mrs. Herbert was not at her best, except sporadically in the second set. Margo, however, was never extended, and it is probable that the result would have been the same even had Mrs. Herbert been on her game.

In avenging two 1939 tournament defeats by Mrs. Herbert, who eliminated her in the semifinals of the City of Washington and District events last year, Miss Lee used no surprise method of attack. She simply proved better than her adversary in every department, especially at the net, where she scored frequently on overheads and meanwhile was able to send passing shots down the line whenever Mrs. Herbert tried a forecourt sally.

Miss Lee Turns on Steam

The third and deciding set was even until the fifth game when Miss Lee turned on the steam and clinched the match in brilliant fashion, winning four straight games, two of them to love.

Capping the victory, she won match point on a sizzling cross-court forehand shot which Mrs. Herbert just looked at before she ran to the net to congratulate her conqueror.

Just as Miss Lee had a bit too much power and finesse for Mrs. Herbert, the combination of the two was far superior in doubles to Mrs. Wilmerding and Miss Carter, who had upset the second-seeded duo of Elinor Finckel and Mrs. Dorette Miller en route to the finals.

Nervous at the start, the Wilmerding-Carter team quickly fell behind at 3 to 0 and never held the lead in either set. Their only games won in the first set was the fourth in which they broke Mrs. Herbert's service and the sixth when Mrs. Wilmerding held. Mrs. Herbert and Miss Lee ran up a 4-to-0 advantage in the second set. Their streak was interrupted in the fifth as the losers again broke Mrs. Herbert's service, but resumed immediately as Mrs. Wilmerding lost her service and Miss Lee held hers, scoring the match point on a forecourt net shot.

Col. Paul Ristine, special assistant to the United States Attorney General, made presentation of prizes.

Tribe Replaces Frank Pytlak

Cleveland, June 21 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians announced today the purchase of Catcher Jim Hegan from Wilkes-Barre club of the Eastern League. In return, the Tribe will send Catcher Henry Helf, now in a hospital for treatment of a minor intestinal ailment, and some cash to its Pennsylvania affiliate.

The Indians have had only Rollie Hemsley for catching duties since Frankie Pytlak went home to Buffalo Monday night. Helf has been used mainly as a bullpen receiver.

Yolanda, and they fell to the ground like two drunken sailors dancing a mazurka in a typhoon. They rolled around for a while.

The horrified umpires banished both of them, and as Chapman was walking past the Washington bench the Washington players—from the security of the dugout gloom—called him some names. Ben swung at random (a utility infielder) and hit Earl Whitehill, who hadn't even gotten up enough steam to take his profanity out of the D. A. R. convention class. The adagio act resumed immediately, with Whitehill and Chapman waltzing around in a hot, gummy embrace in perfect time with the gasps of the crowd. Then Whitehill missed a step and slipped, scratching his forehead on a cinder, and the sight of the resultant drop of blood took the fight out of everybody.

We still think our sensible friend George Selkirk typifies the fighting ball player. George one day was rushing in to join one of those militaristic Maypole dances the boys put on when he suddenly stopped dead in his tracks. Caution had seized him more strongly than anger. Then he rushed over to first base, lifted up the sack, took out his new store teeth and put them under the bag for safekeeping.

fiers from Baltimore, Don McPhail with 81, and Johnny Farrell, 80.

Overton Has 74

Third best score of the day was an odd 74 by last week's Middle Atlantic champion, Spencer Overton, who played the par 37 front nine in 2 under par 35, but went 4 over on the back side for a 39 and 74. He was trapped on the par twelfth and then three-putted for a double bogey 5.

Congressional's Bill Wenzel was next with 75, including eagle 3s on the eighth and thirteenth holes, where he dropped respective putts of 30 and 12 feet. Host Club Champion Gene Pittman and Schoolboy Titleholder Earle Skinker had 76 each, while the 77's included Gridder Charley Malone, Tom Belshe and Billy Rettweiler, all of the host club.

Seven outstanding players were deadlocked with 78's and faced a play-off when they heard John DeFord, last player out, was near par. They all changed shoes and were on the first tee awaiting the play-off when DeFord came in with an 80, making a place for all the 78's.

Burnett Just Gets In

Chevy Chase invitation Champ Volney Burnett, who was 5 over par on the first three holes, was one of the 78's, while others included George R. Miller, who seldom fails to make the championship flight; Luther Steward, jr., who specializes in paly-offs, Southpaw Tom Carrick and E. G. Barnes, Baltimore; M. Parker Nolan, Congressional, and Martin F. McCarthy, making his first tournament appearance of the year.

Bogart missed a 12-foot birdie putt on the first hole, but on the other par fives knocked in birdie fours, 5, 5 and 13, two from putts over 10 feet. He missed the green on the third hole for his lone bogey in one of his greatest rounds of golf.

Bogart and Malone meet in what appears to be the first-round feature today, while Skinker and McCarthy, Overton and Steward and Burnett and Miller loom as other good matches.

Dr. R .A. Keilty warned all contestants to be on time or face elimination.

Deyoe Winner Of World Fair Skeet Shoot

Crack D. C. Shooter Wins Shoot-Off in Stratford Competition

Special Dispatch to The Post

Stratford, Conn., June 21.—George Deyoe, crack Washington, D. C., gunner, captured the World's Fair special, opening event on the twelfth annual Great Eastern Skeet Championships at the Remington Gun Club here today with a 100 straight.

Tying for the first position with Deyoe were Ed Lee, of Norwich, N. Y., and Dr. R. F. Westermeier, of Buffalo, both having scored 100 straight.

However, in the shoot-off, Deyoe scored another 25 straight to take first place, while Lee missed one bird. Dr. Westermier finished with a 21.

H. Lutcher Brown, of San Antonio, Tex., captured the Class 2 honors with a 95 and 75 in the shoot-off. Eight other shooters tied with Brawn, all having 95's. Second in Class 2 went to Anthony Persy, of Rochester, with a shoot-off score of 73.

Class 3 honors went to Mrs. M. L. Smythe, of Aurora, Ohio, one of the Nation's foremost women shooters who scored a 93. Seven other competitors scored a 93 in this division. However, in the shoot-off Mrs. Smythe broke a 25 straight to take top honors.

A. G. Benoit, of West Camp N. Y., won Class 4 with a 90, tying with six others, and breaking 24 in the shoot-off.

H. W. Cruickshank, Rochester, N. Y., scoring an 85, took first place in Class 5. Four other shooters were tied with 85, and Cruickshank went on to win with a 25 straight in the shoot-off.

Other Washington scores were: Bill Rapley, 97; Miss Constance Smith, 96.

In Class 4, Paul T. Stone, Washington, D. C., scored a 90-23.

Stewart Beats Montgomery

Wayman Stewart, 126, of the Anacostia A. C., gained the decision over Jimmie Montgomery, of the Boys Club No. 2, in the main bout last night at the Purple Gloves tournament held at Atlantic Gardens under colored Elks' auspices.

Sheepie Proctor, 130, also of Anacostia, decisioned Thunderbolt Green, of the Fairmont A. C., in the most spectacular bout of the evening. The Thunderbolt sent Proctor to the mat for a seven-count in the second.

Jaybo Kenner, 200, heavyweight Golden Gloves champion, disposed of his opponent, Thomas Chambers, of the Fairmont A. C., by a technical knockout after 20 seconds of the first round.

Bobbie Gordon, 120, decisioned Prince Albert, 122.

George Ferrekl, 130, decisioned Harvey Smith, 128, Northwest A. C., in two rounds. Smith failed to answer the bell for the third.

Sam Bradley, 147, Boys Club, kayoed Kid O'Hara, 143, of the Foggy Bottom A. C., in 90 seconds of the first round.

Bucky Wicks, 175, of the Boys Club, decisioned Otis Harris, 172, Boys Club.

Vassar Freshman Is Upset Victor In National Tennis

By the Associated Press

Brookline, Mass., June 21.—Katherine Hubbell, of Dedham, 18-year-old Vassar College freshman, defeated top-seeded Mercedes "Baba" Madden, of Lake Erie College, 6—2, 6—2, today, to gain the National College Girls' tennis championship.

Miss Hubbell and Miss Madden, a Boston girl, then teamed to capture the college girls' doubles title by beating Judy Lachenbruch, of Wisconsin, and Christine Waples, of Bryn Mawr, by the same score, 6—2, 6—2.

The victories brought Miss Hubbell, who won the Massachusetts State Girls' Title in 1936, her first championship in senior competition. Her forcing play and deep placements repeatedly caught Miss Madden out of position.

Contract Bridge

There are many amusing incidents in Ely Culbertson's autobiography, "Strange Lives," published by Winston & Co.

Today's Hand

Neither Side Vulnerable.
SOUTH DEALER.

	♠ A Q 3 2 ♡ 8 6 ◇ Q J 10 9 8 ♣ J 7
♠ 7 6 5 ♡ K 9 7 5 ◇ K 4 ♣ K 8 6 4	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠ 10 9 8 ♡ J 10 3 2 ◇ 6 5 ♣ A Q 9 3
	Culbertson ♠ K J 4 ♡ A Q 4 ◇ A 7 3 2 ♣ 10 5 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	2 ◇	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: 5 ♡.

His quick-witted strategy in deliberately sacrificing a trick to keep the opponents off the scent of his vulnerable point may be ranked as one of the really great coups of the times.

West opened the five of hearts; East played the ten, and without blinking Culbertson won with the ace—a seemingly colossal extravagance but actually a cunning economy. He next played a low spade to dummy's queen and followed with the finesse of the diamond queen, which lost to West. And no one can blame that defender for continuing with a low heart, since declarer's play of the ace on the first trick plainly indicated that the queen and jack lay with East and that the heart suit was ready to be run.

Ely won the trick with the queen and run off his contract in diamonds and spades.

Had he made the normal play of the heart queen, West upon winning the diamond king would have realized the folly of pursuing the heart leads and looked about for a shift. He would have undoubtedly tried the clubs, and he and his partner would have won four club tric

Sen. Gibson's Body Arrives in Vermont For Burial Today

— Brattleboro, Vt., June 21 (AP).—The body of United States Senator Ernest Gibson, who died yesterday in Washington, arrived in Brattleboro today amid mounting speculation over the name of his successor.

There was a report Gov. George D. Aiken (Republican), would resign and permit Lieut. Gov. William H. Wills to take over the Governorship and name him Gibson's successor.

The Senator will be buried here tomorrow, after services to be attended by a Congressional delegation from Washington.

Politicians speculating over Gibson's successor also heard the names of Ralph Flanders, Springfield industrialist, and Ernest W. Gibson, jr., secretary of the Vermont Senate. Representative Charles A. Plumley (Republican), the State's only U. S. Representative, was mentioned as a prospective candidate for the Senate in November.

Carpenter's subdivision of lots in Square 878, as per plat recorded in Liber No. 11, folio 87, of the records of the office of the Surveyor of the District of Columbia. Subject to the right of redemption by the maker of the aforesaid deed of trust, her heirs and assigns, within a period of sixty days from date of sale, not including Sundays and holidays, as provided in said deed of trust. Subject to any and all liens created by conditional bills of sale for heating and other equipment, if any, and overdue water rents, if any. All other assessments to be adjusted to date of transfer of title.

TERMS OF SALE: One-third of the purchase money to be paid in cash, balance in two equal installments, payable in one and two years, with interest at 6 per cent per annum, payable semiannually, secured by first deed of trust upon the property sold, or all cash, at option of purchaser. A deposit of $300 required on day of sale. Examination of title, conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps and notarial fees at cost of purchaser. Terms to be complied with within 30 days from day of sale, otherwise trustees reserve the right to resell property at risk and cost of defaulting purchaser, after five days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C., or deposit may be forfeited, or without forfeiting deposit trustees may avail themselves of any legal or equitable rights against defaulting purchaser.

MR. AND MRS. — Men Are So Helpful — BY ARTHUR FOLWELL AND ELLISON HOOVER

DID YOU DRINK UP WHAT WAS LEFT OF THE MILK?
YEAH, LAST NIGHT WHEN I CAME HOME
AND THERE WAS A TOMATO HERE —AND A FEW ASPARAGUS TIPS DID YOU SEE THEM?
GUESS I ATE 'EM
AND I SUPPOSE YOU ATE THE CUP OF CUSTARD THAT WAS HERE, TOO
YEP ANY OBJECTIONS?
WELL, I WAS SAVING THEM FOR MYSELF, BUT SINCE YOU WERE HUNGRY—
OH, I JUST SAW 'EM AND THOUGHT YOU'D THANK ME FOR GETTING RID OF 'EM

Listen!
with Slocum

If "convention chaos" breaks out in Philadelphia next week when delegates convene to choose a Republican Presidential candidate, there is one man who can be counted on to remain calmly detached through it all.

That's Elmer Davis, the Columbia Broadcasting System's distinguished news analyst who will be there to report proceedings for CBS listeners.

Mr. Davis' objective reports on foreign and domestic news and his calm and careful analysis of its meaning, have won him the name, "Master of Understatement," among his associates.

It was during the war excitment of September, 1939, that Mr. Davis stepped into the job of being a CBS news analyst. He observed the scene as though he were sitting down to study a leisurely treatise on the effect of Horace and Catullus on modern American poets—except that this time he was studying the effect of Hitler and Mussolini on a bewildered world.

While teletypes clicked with war news, rumors and propaganda, while news agencies from opposing foreign forces sent out conflicting statements, Mr. Davis set about with scholarly precision to decide what he believed to be true and then said what he believed without verbal gymnastics.

So, when the unemotional, analytical voice of Elmer Davis comes through the loudspeaker from Philadelphia's convention hall, CBS listeners can rest assured that he has sifted the facts before he utters a word.

"Orphans in Love"

By Marion White

Chapter 47

"IF PETER should ever come to me, and ask me, I'd go with him. I don't care whether it would be good or bad, whether I'd lose my immortal soul or not, I wouldn't care about anything, if Peter wanted me."

Outrageous Talk

Mother Rosa frowned. This was outrageous talk. Sacrilege. Ellen did not mean it. She was beside herself. She glanced up and their eyes met. Mother Rosa's eyes widened.

She bit her lip, nervously. Ellen did mean it. There was no dramatic pretense in her low, quiet voice, no indecision, in her steady, determined expression.

"Very well, Ellen. I promise. I will never tell Peter that you are here."

Spring came early to Riverview. There were still small mounds of snow upon the hilltop when the first buds appeared upon the trees, and a dozen tiny rivulets worked their way down to the river, gathering force as they traveled, so that they broke over the rocky cliffs of the cove in white, turbulent cascades.

One afternoon no cloud was to be seen in the sky. The temperature was mild and promising, and the sun beat down in brilliant, constant rays, reaching beneath the cold crust of the earth with its penetrating, rewakening warmth.

The next morning the dogwood trees were abloom with soft pinkish-white petals, as if during the night some magic wand had been waved over them, sprinkling them with beauty.

It was a Saturday morning. For Ellen, it was a particularly busy morning. The younger girls, astonished by this sudden, swift approach, could not be convinced that Easter was a matter decided not by the blossoms in the valley but by the numbers on the calendar.

Each Clamors

Each one clamored for her own particular Easter costume; each one had to be assured that the work, as it concerned her, was progressing satisfactorily.

That afternoon Peter came up from the city. Mother Rosa talked with him in the sitting room.

Farther down, in the same wing of the building Ellen sat by the window in the sewing room. This was at the back of the house, so she could not see anybody who walked up the long path from the front gates.

"How are you Peter?" Mother Rosa's voice was cordial, but noticeably lacking in warmth. She was annoyed with Peter. She made no attempt to conceal the fact.

"I'm all right thanks." He stated it without enthusiasm.

She thought some of the swift assurance had deserted him: he was not so brimming over with satisfaction as he had been at Christmas.

"How are things progressing?"

He laughed. "Amazingly. I can't believe the things that have happened these past few weeks."

"That's splendid. I'm very glad to see you so happy."

"But I'm not." He sat there, working the brim of his hat around through his fingers. "I'm not happy at all." He looked up quickly, and she saw that he spoke truly. "Mother Rosa," he asked, with a sort of pathetic longing in his voice, "have you heard from Ellen?"

She started. "Have I—" She blinked in confusion. Then: "Yes, Peter. I've heard from her."

"How is she?"

"She's fine. Just fine."

Never Thought

He contemplated his hat again, sheepishly. "Gosh, I never thought she'd run off without saying goodbye. I was dumfounded when they told me that she'd left. But of course, I knew . . ."

"You knew what?"

"That she was in love with this Maillard fellow. It was a swell break for Ellen. But . . . well, I do wish I could have seen her, before she went."

"Before she went where?"

"Out west, with Maillard." He glanced up quickly, sensing the surprise in her voice. "She did marry him, didn't she?"

"Marry who, Peter? What are you talking about?"

"Roger Maillard, the millionaire. Ellen married him, didn't she?"

"What?"

"Who ever told you such a thing?"

At Club

"Why, Miss Evans. She's the woman at the residence club. Ellen left quite suddenly, she said, but of course they all knew she was going to be married. And when I'd heard that he had gone back to Wyoming—Gee, Mother! Then Ellen isn't married?"

Mother Rosa compressed her lips in a thin, tight line. "Are you married, Peter?" she demanded sternly.

"Me? Not really . . . that is——" He fidgeted uneasily. He swallowed, cleared his throat.

Then in a very convincing tone: "No! I'm not married."

"But you were engaged. We read it in the papers."

"I know. That part was true enough. But . . . Lord, I've been an awful fool!"

Mother Rosa nodded. "I think so too, Peter," she admitted frankly.

He sat up eagerly. "But that's all behind now. If Ellen isn't married, maybe there's still a chance. You'll tell me where she is, Mother Rosa?"

She shook her head slowly, as if trying to dislodge the problem from her conscience. A promise once given is a sacred thing. Under no circumstances can it be broken. No circumstance.

Another Matter

Yet, when that promise is given under the stress of misunderstanding, that is quite another matter. Or is it? A lifetime devoted to truth and honor and sacred duty does not encourage one to toss an obligation overboard lightly. A promise is a promise . . .

"I can't tell you, Peter. That is, not—"

"You can't tell me? But why? Why?

"I promised Ellen that I wouldn't. I must speak to her first."

"Oh." He sank back dejectedly. "You mean Ellen doesn't want to see me any more?"

The old nun stood up. She walked across the sitting room to the French doors which opened out on the courtyard in the rear. She looked down across the hill, toward the right. She saw the pink blossoms which covered the rising slope.

"Peter," she said, "the dogwood is all in bloom. Why don't you walk down and see it? Then, when you come back, we'll talk this over."

He shook his head dully. "I don't want to look at dogwood."

"I think you should," she persisted, stubbornly. If he would walk out across the courtyard here, and turn to the right, he'd pass the sewing room. And she'd still be keeping her promise. "I think you should, Peter. Then come back later."

Stood Up

He stood up slowly. "Dogwood!" he mumbled, under his breath. Mother Rosa was getting childish in her old age. But he answered politely; "All right. Since you insist. But I'll be back. In a hurry."

"Maybe you will, Peter." Maybe you will. Most likely, however, you'll never see the dogwood. Not if you have an eye in your head, and a grain of sense.

She unlatched the double door. "Turn to the right, Peter. Keep to the right."

She closed the doors, all but a tiny crack, and against this crack she pinned her ear. She heard his footsteps crunching over the damp earth; she heard him kick a stone irritably out of his path. She hoped he'd keep his eyes up, and not go along staring at the ground. Then—
